VOTE ON CITY JOB CUT TODAY

CHINESE REPLY TO ULTIMATUM WITH GUNFIRE

Shell Japanese Fleet at Shanghai.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 19 (Friday). — (U.P.) — Japanese leaders held a council of war today as Chinese troops, estimated at 100,000 by military observers, accelerated their concentration in the Shanghai area. Chinese troop trains poured thousands of fresh troops into Nanking from the north. Lieut. Gen. Uyeda, Japanese army commander, called in all Japanese regimental commanders, the chiefs of the army and navy air forces and Admiral Stumada, chief of staff of Admiral Nomura, Japanese naval commander in chief, for a conference to determine their strategy in the impending battle.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 19.—[Friday.]—The Chinese defenders of Shanghai today decided to fight it out with the Japanese invaders and answered the Japanese ultimatum to evacuate the city with an offensive of their own. Three Japanese bluejackets were killed.

The roar of artillery and the screaming shells over Shanghai roofs was the Chinese retort to yesterday's ultimatum by Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, commander of all the Japanese land force, who specified that Chinese troops must retire from their front lines by 7 a. m. tomorrow [5 p. m., Friday, C. S. T.] and must complete their evacuation beyond a 12 mile radius of greater Shanghai by 7 p. m. tomorrow [5 a. m., Saturday, C. S. T.].

Fire at Japanese Flagship.

The shells were directed at the Japanese fleet in the Whangpoo river and the Japanese marine headquarters in the Hongkew district. The Chinese artillerymen were also apparently trying to hit the flagship of Admiral Kichisabuo Nomura of the Japanese navy. One of the shells splashed into the waters near the flagship.

Some of the shells failed to explode, but several burst over the streets of Shanghai, tearing away electric signs and smashing windows.

One of the shots struck the American owned Savoy hotel, but there were no casualties. Another struck and damaged a nearby café. The shells were of the three inch type.

The Japanese artillery returned the fire, which died down to sporadic shooting as dawn broke.

Decide to Fight.

The Chinese barrage was explained by Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the 19th route army, as follows:

"Our only recourse is to fight and answer gunfire with gunfire. We cannot comply with the Japanese demands. Why should we withdraw when we are in our own territory?"

The Chinese commander expressed fear for the lives of neutrals in Shanghai in the event of a terrific battle which now seems inevitable.

"Is there not some place of refuge where neutral foreigners can go to avoid the danger? No one can tell what is likely to happen. Our soldiers know where the Americans, Europeans and other neutrals reside, but when the battle develops, accidents are likely to happen. The Japanese are using the settlement as a military base. We have no choice but to use our every resource to defeat them."

Gen. Tsai added that he will order all Chinese civilian to evacuate the danger zones within the settlement.

Japan's "Six Points."

The Japanese ultimatum, which was handed to Mayor Wu Teh-chen of the Chinese city and Gen. Tsai at 9 o'clock last night, contained the following six points:

1. The 19th Route army must cease all hostilities and complete the evacuation of troops to points twenty kilometers [about twelve and one-half miles] from the international settlement by sundown on Feb. 20.

2. In case the Chinese troops withdraw as specified, the Japanese troops will not advance from areas adjacent to the Hongkew district, nor will the Japanese fire on, bombard, or pursue the Chinese if the withdrawal is begun.

3. All anti-Japanese movements shall be stopped.

Will Investigate Evacuation.

4. An investigation commission will be dispatched to ascertain whether such withdrawal has been completed.

5. The safety of Japanese life and property must be assured and all activities of plain clothes men shall be

EXCHANGE HITS SHORT SELLERS A HARD BLOW

New York Restricts Security Lending.

Chamber of Commerce of the United States, representing organized business men of the nation, calls on congress to cut half a billion dollars a year from government expenditures while the senate adds nearly two millions to expenses. Page 4.

New York, Feb. 18.—[Special.]—In the most drastic reform introduced since the country-wide controversy over short selling began, the New York Stock exchange announced today that, beginning April 1, its member firms will be required to obtain the express consent of customers before their stock may be lent to protect commitments on the down side of the market.

The new rule, announced by the governing committee of the exchange, imposes severe restrictions upon bearish speculators and will, in the opinion of brokers, reduce short selling possibly to the extent of 50 per cent unless means of circumventing the regulation are discovered. In some quarters the exchange's action is believed to mean the death of large scale operations for the decline in the New York market.

Causes a Lively Rally.

Rumors of the impending action by the exchange governors were responsible for a lively rally in the stock market between 2 and 3 p. m. Terrified shorts who did not learn of the proposed rule until after the close of trading here turned to the San Francisco and Los Angeles markets, which profited handsomely from the urgent covering movement. Leading issues which were believed to harbor a large short interest rose sharply, some as much as 3 or 4 points, as the frightened shorts sought to cover their contracts rather than risk the uncertainties of today's market in New York.

United States Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph, General Motors, Southern Pacific, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Allied Chemical, and Bethlehem Steel were among the stocks which eastern shorts bid for frantically on the Pacific coast. Trading goes on there after the close of the New York markets. Brokers said they had orders to buy heavily in London before the opening here.

Here's New Rule on Lending.

Under the resolutions which the governors of the exchange adopted, the indiscriminate lending of stock out of "long accounts" will be prohibited, and the so-called "hypothecation clause" under which member firms have been accustomed to obtain a sweeping but general authorization from their customers no longer will be considered valid so far as lending stock is concerned. The new rule reads as follows:

"Resolved, That members of the exchange shall not, on and after April 1, 1932, lend, either to themselves as brokers or to others, securities held on margin for customers unless they shall have obtained separate authorization in writing permitting the lending of such securities; it was

"Further Resolved, That no general form of customer's agreement, even though it includes specifically the right to lend securities, shall be deemed sufficient compliance with this resolution, but such right shall be evidenced by a separate authorization in writing; it was

Rights of Customers.

"Further Resolved, That in the case of the accounts of all new customers opened after the date hereof the requirement of such separate authorization in writing for the lending of securities shall apply; and it was

"Further Resolved, That the committee on business conduct may, at its discretion, require that members shall at a stated period bring to the attention of all customers their right to revoke any authorization theretofore given for the lending of securities."

Announcement of the new rules followed a report from Washington that President Hoover recently had summoned President Richard Whitney of the exchange to the White House for a conference on what the administration regarded as "abuses" of short selling in the market here. One version had it that the President had "demanded" more stringent regulations on selling of this character. Previously Whitney had been defending the short sale as a legitimate market function.

THE JIGSAW PUZZLE

Slim Lead Held by De Valera in Irish Election

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 18. —The two great parties in the Irish election are running neck and neck in the counting which continued today and will extend through tomorrow and perhaps Saturday.

With 95 of the 145 seats voted on tabulated, Eamon de Valera's Fianna Fail [Republican] party had 46 seats; President William T. Cosgrave's government party, 32 seats; independents, 10 seats; Labor, 7 seats.

Since Labor votes with the Republicans and the independents usually line up with the government party, this means that De Valera's party has a slim lead of eleven seats.

Predict Tie.

Many shrewd politicians today predict a virtual tie and the necessity of a coalition government to carry on the work of the country. In this event some eminent neutral will likely be asked to form a government of leaders of both parties. Such an arrangement would no doubt be precarious, but it probably would last through the Eucharistic conference next June and might prove more permanent than is now believed.

De Valera said tonight that he expected a majority of 8 or 9 and hopes that he will be able to form the government.

President William T. Cosgrave declared the result likely will be "their line an ball," using a football simile, "and what they'll do with it no one knows." Cosgrave, however, is quite prepared to retire after ten years in office and will cherish no bitter feeling if his party is turned down by the people.

Says Little Harm Would Result.

He has all along held that a spell of responsibility might sober the Fianna Fail party and do the country no harm. He also thinks the country is so well organized that there would be no attempt to displace civil service, police, and army chiefs for political reasons as might have happened a few years ago.

Indications tonight were that neither party will command a large enough majority in the dail to insure an orderly administration, as the death or even temporary illness of two or three men might upset the government. Right now three new government members of the dail are ill and two are unlikely to attend the opening of the dail.

These facts are being used as an argument for a coalition. It is also pointed out that Eamon de Valera has declared he will not raise the question of separation from England with this dail but will have another general election on this issue later. As technical independence is the chief plank dividing the two parties, a coalition would thus be made easier.

EXECUTIVE ENDS LIFE AFTER TWO ATTEMPTS FAIL

After his first attempts had failed, Arno P. Rayner, 45 years old, president of a lithographing concern, pulled the trigger of a revolver a third time last night and ended his life.

He fired the fatal shot after locking himself in a washroom in the plant of the Rayner & Dalheim company, 2054 West Lake street. Charles Babcock, secretary of the company, discovered the body.

Sergt. William Grady of the Warren avenue police discovered that one shot had gone wild, embedding itself in a wall, a second cartridge had failed to explode and that the third had struck Rayner in the right temple.

Rayner left a note to his widow, ascribing his act to illness. He had been highly nervous lately, Babcock said. The widow and two children live at 835 Monroe avenue, River Forest.

Schwab at 70 Sees Business Clouds Vanish

New York, Feb. 18.—[Special.]—On his birthday, at 70, Charles M. Schwab finds business sentiment better, predicts eventual prosperity, and announces his retirement from all directorates except those of the Chase National bank, Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and the Bethlehem Steel corporation, which he hopes will be his "monument."

Mr. Schwab gave an interview. At 25 Broadway he sat in his accustomed chair as Bethlehem's chairman, talking away in that smooth, persuasive voice to reporters who filled the directors' chairs.

Sees Ultimate Prosperity.

"How about the future of the country?" was the first question put by reporters.

"I'm going to tell you about that," said Mr. Schwab. "I can't see anything but ultimate prosperity and success. I have been an optimist all my life. At Bethlehem we have spent money like water because we believe in this country's future. I remember that Mr. Morgan once asked me, 'Do you believe that we will ever see a year in which this country will make 10,000,000 tons of steel?' and I predicted that we would see a 54,000,000 ton year. It came in 1929.

"And last year, the worst year in my experience, we made 50 per cent more than the amount which we thought we would never reach again. I have never built a mill which I did not think was way too big for the times, but ultimately it was not too big.

"There is no reason to think that the country will go backwards. There may be a long period of depression, but the natural consumption of products is bound to carry the country ahead by and by. Also we will have learned lessons of economy and efficiency."

Can't See Russian System.

Next Mr. Schwab was asked for his ideas on the possible Socialization of industry.

"Fifty years ago," he said, "the working man in our industry held the worst end of the stick. He was a machine, not a human being. Every year has tended to show the stockholders' increasing interest in better labor conditions, and I expect continued improvement along this line. I don't believe in Russia or in the ultimate success of that experiment. The present system, probably modified, I consider the best for industry and human happiness."

The directorates from which Mr. Schwab has resigned include those of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool company, Empire Safe Deposit company, Federated Metals corporation, Loew's, Inc., and the United Zinc Smelting corporation.

CHICAGO AND COUNTY TRIM TO RESCUE THEMSELVES

Teachers Boo 'Fads and Frills' of School System.

One thousand high school teachers lost their classroom dignity at a hilarious session in the Engineering building, 205 West Wacker drive, last night. They voted to publish a list of "public enemies" which would carry the names of prominent taxdodgers and declared themselves in favor of abolishing athletics, dramatics and other extra-curricular activities from the high schools.

The attitude of the teachers as a whole toward the "fads and frills" in the school system was shown when one gray haired instructor arose to protest against the resolution calling for abolition of extra-curricular activities.

Jeers Greet Protest.

"Does this resolution mean," he inquired solemnly, "that if I see an opportunity for character building in a student, I may not attempt to bring out inherent gifts in him?"

Cries of "Sure!" and a chorus of derisive laughter greeted him and he sat down, announcing loudly that he would resign from the association.

The resolution to publish a list of "public enemies" modeled upon the Chicago crime commission's list of gangsters was greeted with cheers. The resolution called for the gathering of information concerning prominent persons who have not paid their taxes and the listing of them in the order of the amount of taxes they owe. The city council has also ordered such a list compiled.

Picketing Is Suggested.

"It may come to having pickets walking up and down in front of buildings," declared one teacher. "They would carry signs such as 'This building has not paid taxes for three years and now owes $300,000.'"

"Boycott the business man who doesn't pay his taxes so that we can get our pay," shouted another teacher.

Then came a squabble about athletics, dramatics, and similar subjects in the schools. The resolution condemning them was introduced.

They Adopt Resolution.

Boos and laughter and one or two modified versions of the Bronx cheer hailed this assertion. The resolution was adopted almost unanimously.

"Now, let's not antagonize anybody," pleaded one teacher.

"I've got two aching teeth in my head that ought to be pulled out," shouted another. "I'm ashamed to ask a dentist to pull them on credit. Let's quit being easy and talking about antagonizing people."

More cheers and whoops of delight. As the meeting broke up one woman teacher was heard to declare to another: "We certainly do have a good time at these meetings."

Teachers Threaten Walkout.

Superintendent of School Bogan admitted yesterday that repeated threats of a walkout by school teachers had reached him. James A. Meade, president of the Men Teachers' union, was outspoken.

"I'll join the teachers in a walkout any time," said Mr. Meade. "All school employés should walk out together, and the janitors and engineers should join in such a move."

Mr. Meade declared he would bring up the subject of a strike at the joint conference of teacher unions which is to be held tonight in the union headquarters at 506 South Wabash avenue.

Start on Collection of $34,000,000 Taxes Monday.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Four important developments yesterday followed the refusal of the legislature to remain in session for the relief of Cook county's financial dilemma. They were:

1. Mayor Cermak announced he will recommend today the elimination of 2,479 city employés. "That is probably only half of the number which will be lopped off before I am through," he added. At this rate 4,958 city jobs would be abolished. The proposal will be considered by the council finance committee today.

2. President Whealan of the county board said of the county budget: "It will have to be revised so drastically that no one will recognize it from what it is now." The cut proposed is 425 jobs, which would make a total cut of 5,383 city and county jobs. Mr. Whealan also threatened to start mandamus proceedings against the Circuit court judges to enforce a "reasonable number" of jobs in the county fee offices.

3. President Myers of the school board said: "The schools will not spend more than a reasonable estimate of their income, which means the elimination of millions." The closing of the schools is the most probable result.

4. Collection of 1930 taxes will be started Monday with the sending of bills to owners of real estate and personal property in the loop.

$8,000,000 City Saving.

Mayor Cermak's proposed saving of city salaries was estimated by the controller's office at "about $7,000,000 in addition to the $1,000,000 a month saving begun in January."

President Whealan's reduction in county expenditures, it is said, will have to be $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 to make a favorable impression upon the security buying public. A reduction of 425 county jobs, however, would save only $975,000.

The minimum expense cut considered by the school board is $20,000,000, and some trustees think it will have to reach $30,000,000. The sanitary district, park boards and other local governments, officials said, will have to get in line and march along in the economy parade, if they wish to reestablish credit for themselves.

Appeal for Tax Payments.

Coupled with these moves for economy, an appeal will be made to the property owners to pay their 1930 taxes.

County Clerk Sweitzer started rushing out bills for taxes on real estate in the loop. At the same time Assistant County Treasurer Perry placed an extra staff at work on tax bills for banks.

The efforts of both officials were limited yesterday to the loop. The loop owners, both of real estate and of personal property, are considered the wealthiest in Chicago, and they will be asked by Monday morning to turn more than $34,000,000 into the treasury for 1930 taxes.

1930 Taxes Under Fire.

These taxes are under attack, although they have not technically been declared invalid. County Judge Jarecki declared the 1928 and the 1929 taxes illegal and void. The 1930 taxes are on the same assessment base and inferentially Judge Jarecki indicated his view of them.

In addition Judge Williams in a mandamus proceeding has ordered the board of review to add 15 billion dollars' worth of personal property to the 1930 tax roll.

Both decisions are pending in the State Supreme court, but the special session of the legislature passed a bill which will give credit on a subsequent tax bill for any excess payment now made.

Plan Plea to Civic Pride.

In that situation it is planned to appeal to the civic pride and conscience of the large loop property holders first. In the area bounded by the river, its south branch and Roosevelt road, the 1929 taxes on real estate totaled $30,588,114. The 1930 taxes on the same property, although not reckoned officially, are about 9.7 per cent higher. Of the 1929 taxes, $22,488,379 has been paid, leaving only 26.6 per cent delinquent. The first four of the tax books on the loop banks show a total of $2,960,771 in taxes.

It is hoped by the officials that these large real estate owners and loop banks will pay promptly. The heads of the local governments expect, according to their estimates yesterday, that 70 per cent of the taxes will be

...ain within 10 days, but that is a much higher percentage than has been paid by penalty date on the two previous tax assessments.

Mayor Cermak and Mr. Whealan hope, however, that the large property owners will set such a good example for the others that 50 per cent of the 1930 taxes will be paid in the next 60 days.

The penalty date for the 1930 taxes has not yet been established. Legally that date was last Jan. 1, but the statute also says that it shall be thirty days after the bills are rendered.

Because of this uncertainty in the law, the county treasurer will probably announce that the penalty date will be thirty days after the last tax bills have been sent out. County Clerk Sweitzer estimated yesterday that it will require three weeks to get the last bill on its way. Thirty days additional would shove the penalty date to April 10.

Decide on Penalties Today.

It will probably be decided today also whether any penalties shall be added to the tax bills as sent out. Assistant Treasurer Perry said that he desires to protect his bond and that of the county treasurer. It is regarded probably that action by the county board, as suggested by President Whealan, will be taken on the penalty date, which will be supported by an opinion from State's Attorney Swanson and County Tax Attorney Hayden Bell.

It was also suggested that the legislature, when it reconvenes on April 19, should be asked to legalize the procedure agreed upon. This is looked upon largely as a formality because the general assembly nearly always approves of emergency acts of local officials in tax matters. In this instance the legislators and state officials are anxious to have the Cook county taxes collected so that the state may obtain $42,000,000 overdue.

Urge 1932 Budget Cuts.

To make the tax collection program effective, as well as seek the good will of security buyers, drastic cuts in the 1932 budgets must be made in the meantime, officials pointed out.

Delegates from the 4,000 county employés assembled in the rooms of the board of assessors yesterday to protest against salary cuts of 20 per cent which the county board finance committee has recommended. President Whealan and Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the county finance committee, attended the gathering. Mr. Whealan said:

"In view of the situation, the present budget is meaningless. It must be revised drastically. The situation demands a reduction in salaries and a reduction in the number of jobs. It cannot be avoided. Public service must be curtailed. Perhaps we will have some difficulty with the positions which are created by the judges of the Circuit court under the state constitution, but we will call the judges in and talk it over."

Warning from Kavanagh.

"We are in such shape," said Commissioner Kavanagh, "that there must be enormous cuts everywhere. It now looks like we will have only a skeleton organization everywhere except in the county hospital, poor house and charity service. Some of the offices will have to be closed temporarily."

Mr. Whealan said later that he personally favored following the recommendations of J. Louis Jacobs, efficiency expert, who recommended the elimination of several hundred jobs. Jacobs has said that more than a fourth of the county jobs could be eliminated if the offices were properly operated, but to get in that position he thinks civil service should be installed.

Aldermen to Ponder Cuts.

In the city hall the council finance committee will meet today to consider Mayor Cermak's proposed pay roll cuts. Commenting on the situation last night the mayor said:

"The legislature did the damnedest thing a legislature could have done. I have lost faith in this general assembly, but I think that the whole trouble is that it was ill advised.

"I shall ask that 2,479 jobs be dropped from the pay rolls at once. I will defer all work which I think can be delayed, and the cuts will affect all departments.

"There is no use carrying people on the pay roll whom we cannot pay. We might just as well start trimming immediately, then we will have less to save later on."

Mayor Raps Legislature.

Swinging back to the general assembly, the mayor went on:

"Every reason they gave for adjourning sounds queer. They said they desired to await the decision of the State Supreme court on Judge Jarecki's decision. When that comes, will they wait 30 days for a rehearing of the case? When that is disposed of will they wait then until the United States Supreme court gives its decision?

"Instead of helping the small taxpayers by funding part of the 1930 taxes, the legislature is responsible for making the property owners pay the whole bill at one time. It has nullified all our efforts to aid the property owners.

Has Faith in People.

"Will the 1930 taxes be paid?" continued the mayor, repeating a question. "The people who live in Chicago and love their city will pay their taxes. The property owners who desire police and fire protection will contribute their share to the cost of operating the city.

"Yes, I believe there are enough public spirited citizens, large and small, in Chicago, to save their city."

In a speech delivered last night at the Evanston Woman's club Judge Jarecki advised real estate taxpayers to pay half of their taxes at once and to protest the remainder. At the same meeting John M. Pratt, executive director of the Evanston Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, advised the 600 who attended not to pay anything "until there is a legal assessment."

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson and J. L. Jacobs, Chicago efficiency expert, conferred for three hours today in the executive mansion over the Cook county assessorship, for which post the appointment of Mr. Jacobs has been urged. Chicago's corporation counsel, William H. Sexton, also attended the conference. When it was concluded, Mr. Jacobs had nothing to say, but the governor told reporters no appointment would be made "for a day or two."

Earlier in the day while he was waiting for the conference, Mr. Jacobs said that he believed the 1930 tax bills should be sent out immediately.

Jacobs is reported to have told the governor that he would accept the appointment, if tendered, only with the understanding that he would be free from political interference. He also is believed to have expressed a doubt that a re-assessment of personal property for 1930 would reduce real estate taxes as much as 50 per cent, the claim made by some persons.

MAYOR CERMAK GIVEN ROASTING IN LEGISLATURE

Senate, House Democrats Defend Him.

Mayor Explains Stand

Mayor Cermak last night said he "must decline to enter into controversy with the general assembly."

"This indignation at Springfield," he said, "is due entirely to misinterpretation of one end of a telephone conversation that was overheard. I did say, 'They can go to hell.' That was my reply to information that, in a conference of legislators and others, certain men were advocating a two months' recess. I am still willing those individuals should travel in the direction indicated, but I was not suggesting a course of procedure for the whole assembly."

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Roasting Mayor Cermak of Chicago was the business in the legislature today for those few members who remained over for perfunctory sessions after the general adjournment taken last night until April 19.

In his wrath when the assembly quit work for sixty days without giving Chicago adequate tax relief, Mr. Cermak was said to have sent word that the members could "go to hell" so far as he was concerned. "They're afraid to take action because of the primaries," said Mr. Cermak.

The hurt feelings of the senate were made known by Earl B. Searcy, Springfield Republican, who, though he voted against the recess, felt that the mayor was "sinking to a pretty low level to make such a statement."

Charges Cermak Agreed.

"I think such talk from a mere mayor of a city comes with poor grace," said Searcy, "and I want to tell the senate that Cermak was a party, at least privately, to the agreement to adjourn until April 19 to consider the Chicago 'funding' bills. I'll say additionally that the fear of the legislators at the outcome of the primaries is no greater than the fear of the mayor of Chicago that big financial interests there may force him to trial for evasion of income tax."

Immediate answer to this was made by Minority Leader Thomas J. Courtney, the Democratic organization's choice for state's attorney of Cook county.

Says Attitude Is Not Personal.

"You Republican senators get pretty thin skinned at times," replied Courtney. "I don't know what you mean by the income tax reference, but I do know that the mayor's attitude is not personal. It is that of the mayor of a great city who is disappointed that relief was not granted the city by this assembly."

Martin R. Carlson of Moline, a Republican, had the next say. "This is the third time Cermak has been insolent," he declared. "It is a display of bad temper, after we have been here for 16 weeks trying to help Chicago."

The reply to this came from Harold G. Ward, Chicago Democrat.

"It cost you downstaters nothing to give us the Kelly plan, and when the times comes that we get real legislative apportionment we will not have to beg you for help."

Attack in House Similar.

Much the same sort of castigation went on in the house.

There, Howard L. Doyle of Decatur, a supporter of Michael L. Igoe, independent candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, termed the mayor's statement "a reflection upon the entire membership of the house."

"If he has any condemnation or criticism for anybody it belongs to the senate," said Doyle. "The house passed the 'funding' bills but the senate refused them. The Democratic leader in the senate is his candidate for state's attorney in Cook county and if that leadership is so weak that the mayor's wishes can not be carried out, it certainly is no fault of the membership of the house."

Sees Failure to Agree.

Speaker David E. Shanahan laid the recess to the inability of attorneys for civic organizations to agree on what relief measures would best benefit Chicago.

The political gossip in Springfield is that one reason for the delay was the fear that the candidacy of Omer N. Custer, administration choice for governor, might be injured if, in his capacity of chairman of the state tax commission, he ordered a reassessment of personal property in Cook county for 1930. The reassessment might have eventuated had the special sessions lasted much longer.

Boyle Has Repeal Bill.

James P. Boyle, Chicago Democrat, filed his petition for reëlection to the house of representatives before he left Springfield today with the announcement that he would introduce a bill to repeal the Illinois prohibition law, if returned to the assembly next session. The bill passed last session was vetoed by the governor.

"I am of the opinion that the people of the state favor the repeal of the state prohibition law," said Mr. Boyle, "but I believe that at the time such laws are repealed legislation for the protection of minors and other like regulations should be replaced upon the statute books, and it shall be my purpose, in collaboration with my colleague, Senator Frank McDermott, to prepare and introduce proper legislation to bring about this result."

BUSCH DEMANDS EARLY DECISION ON TAX VALIDITY

Reviews Charge of Delay Against Realty Lawyers.

Francis X. Busch, counsel for the city in the appeal of Judge Jarecki's decision holding the 1928 and 1929 tax levies invalid, renewed his charge yesterday that Attorneys Roy D. Keehn and Morris Schaeffer, representing the property owners who started the case, are taking advantage of legal technicalities to delay hearing of the appeal by the Illinois Supreme court.

Early hearing of the appeal took on new importance yesterday, attorneys said, as a result of the decision of county officials to start 1930 tax collections at once. The 1930 levy is based on the same assessment which Judge Jarecki termed fraudulent in his decision. Disposition of the appeal by the high court will be an important factor in restoring the confidence of taxpayers and increasing collections, lawyers said.

Briefs Filed on Jan. 29.

Mr. Busch and the attorneys associated with him filed their briefs and other records on Jan. 29 with the clerk of the Supreme court.

"Mr. Keehn could have answered then," Mr. Busch said, "but under the rules of the court he has until the April term. He has not filed his answer yet. He and Mr. Schaefer are hopeful of a compromise offer, such as a 25 per cent reduction in their clients' taxes. They have a contract calling for 20 per cent of what they save, and they hope to save $5,000,000."

Judge Jarecki said that having granted an appeal on the case, he was powerless to hurry the attorneys. Attorney Urban A. Lavery, who represents the county in the appeal, has filed a motion with the Supreme court asking that oral arguments be heard at once, but no action has been taken upon this motion.

Keehn Denies Charge.

Attorney Keehn denied that hope of effecting a compromise was influencing him in the delay of his answer to the appeal briefs. He and Attorney Schaeffer wish the case settled by the Illinois and United States Supreme courts before seeking a compromise, he asserted.

Mr. Busch and his associates got a fifteen day extension for the filing of their briefs, and their arguments, which differ from those made before Judge Jarecki. The arguments are of an unusual nature which requires much legal research in preparation of the answers, Mr. Keehn said.

LEWIS DEMANDS U. S. QUIT LENDING MONEY TO FOREIGN NATIONS

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois tonight advocated a federal agency to alleviate the distress of foreign nations with American bought commodities to take the place of continued foreign loans made by the United States.

Senator Lewis also proposed that America locate nations holding "grievances" and call them into conclave separately and iron out difficulties.

Addressing the Savannah Bar association, Senator Lewis said the lending of money to foreign nations must be stopped. "We must end the making of enmities in efforts to collect the loan and end the continuing of hatreds and antogonisms under the delusions that the advance of loans give opportunity for trade and restore lost friendships to the United States."

Senator Lewis proposed a government agency to determine the needs of foreign countries in distress and that the necessities be purchased from American farms and factories.

Myles O'Donnell, Public Enemy, Dies; Ill for Year

Myles O'Donnell, 28 years old, west side hoodlum and public enemy, died last evening in his home at 1229 South 61st court, Cicero. Unlike many of his associates already dead, he died of natural causes. He had been ill for more than a year. Myles was a brother of William [Klondike] O'Donnell, racketeer. Myles figured in several gunning episodes, the most notorious being the killing of Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggin eight years ago. At the time of the shooting McSwiggin was riding in O'Donnell's car.

More Persons Get Jobs Than Lose Them in January

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—More persons got jobs than lost them in the manufacturing industries during January, according to labor turnover figures issued today by the labor department. This was the first time in nearly a year, the department said, that the accession rate has exceeded the separation rate.

In January, the statistics showed, 4.15 persons for every 100 on the pay roll got jobs, while only 3.35 lost jobs. In the preceding month the accession rate was 3.29 as compared to a separation rate of 3.43.

Layoffs continued to account for the major portion of the separation rate, 2.54 persons per 100 on the pay roll having been laid off during January. The discharge rate for the month was .19, while the quit rate was .66, according to the department's figures.

Autos Lead Trend Up.

Of 10 major industries for which separate figures were shown, automobiles had the highest accession rate, 9.39, while the lowest accession rate, 1.71, occurred in the iron and steel industry.

Meantime, the American Federation of Labor gave a darker picture of the situation in its monthly survey of business.

The ten million dollar fund raised by Chicago for relief of its unemployed is exhausted, the federation stated. The fund, according to the federation, had been expected to prove sufficient to meet the city's needs until October.

"Well over 40,000,000 American citizens representing the families of 8,300,000 unemployed, are now living below minimum standards for health," the federation declared, adding that 3,000,000 families are in need of immediate relief, while only one to one and a half millions are receiving help.

Relief Up $450,000 a Day.

Pointing out that decreased tax returns in many states will prohibit the use of state money for relief, the federation declared that the need for relief is increasing daily. Returns from fifty-six cities, it was stated, indicated that from October to December, 1931, relief payments increased at the rate of $450,000 a day.

The federation assailed industry for failure to make "fundamental economic adjustments" necessitated by technical developments. "From 1920 to 1929, one million jobs were discarded by the introduction of new machinery and efficiency measures in industry," it was stated, "but work hours were not adjusted so that the million workers laid off could be reabsorbed into productive work." The only possible means of providing jobs for all is to shorten working hours, the federation stated.

Workers' incomes last year were below their 1929 total by eleven billion dollars, it was estimated, while farmers' income was five billions lower than in 1929. Earnings of industry, the federation asserted have dropped by eight billions, while dividend payments are one billion lower.

COL. M'CORMICK SOUNDS PLEA FOR RETRENCHMENT

With federal government expenditures exceeding income by several billions and with national credit about to be exhausted by the flotation of a huge loan, the bankruptcy of the nation can be prevented only by the immediate adoption of a program of retrenchment and strict economy.

That was the warning given by Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, in an address on "The Cost of Government" yesterday noon at the Hamilton club. The audience was composed of members of the Chicago assembly and their guests.

Traces Rise of Spending.

Going back to the early days of the world war, Col. McCormick showed how the ground was laid for the embarkation on a program of national spending on a scale never before believed possible; how during the war this spending idea was steadily broadened, and how since then it has become a habit and a racket.

"Everybody will agree," Col. McCormick said, "that during the war years of 1914 to 1917 the country prospered exceedingly. Some will say, and some felt, that the country had fallen behind in a moral obligation. I am sure that I felt, once war was declared, that we had incurred a grave national peril which required our utmost efforts to overcome. These three factors governed our war activities.

"I believe that the prime causes of our spending orgy were a sense of wealth, of moral delinquency, and of national peril. This led to a condition of hysteria upon which was fastened an organized reign of terror against all criticism.

Evils of the Censorship.

"We had organized propaganda, censorship and a cheka. These were used to fight enemies at home and abroad, and were used just as much to prevent criticism, encourage extravagance, and protect corruption. Under them cupidity flourished.

"In their shadow unscrupulous men sought dubious contracts, harbor appropriations, camp locations, and the many spoils of war and politics.

"The war over, patriots demobilized. Unworthy job holders and contract seekers remained behind. Those that could not remain in the federal service flowed over into the states, the counties, and cities.

"The propagandists found new euphemisms for public expenditures in civil life to take the place of patriotism and self-sacrifice for unnecessary wastefulness in wartime.

"The necessity for reëstablishing ourselves in civil life has diverted our attention from the corruption of our politics; and the vast, if temporary, prosperity which flowed from our post-war vigor concealed the extent to which we were being bled, until finally the drain of taxes became too much for industry to bear and bankruptcy has come fast upon our cities, counties, and states, until the federal government—the unscrupulous voracity of its directors unchecked—finds its outgo several billion dollars greater than its income, and is about to exhaust the national credit in a loan to secure which both an exorbitant rate of interest and an appeal to patriotism will be necessary."

Urges Support of Retrenchment.

"I am glad to be able to conclude this sordid picture with a word of hope, because Otis F. Glenn of this state in the senate and Speaker Garner of Texas in the house have set up the standard of retrenchment.

"If we rally to their support with anything of our wartime energy we will rescue our country from bankruptcy, but we must work fast and vigorously or it will be too late."

Until the war came along, Col. McCormick explained, the tax spenders had not made the golden discovery that a nation that had hitherto thought in millions could be made to think in billions.

He pointed out that all the first war plans were based on quick decisive campaigns, and that it was only after these had all broken down and the war had settled into a siege that the world discovered to what extent credit could be extended and to what heavy taxes men and industry would submit under the impulse of patriotism.

"We found," he continued, "that it was the interests vested in wartime—both in and out of public office—the habit of taxation, and the quite extraordinary boom which followed the war that led to the post-war extravagances."

To illustrate how money was spent during the war Col. McCormick cited figures showing comparative costs for the various allied nations. It cost the United States, he said, ten times as much to put a man in battle as it cost the French.

Raps Superfluous Jobs.

He declared that 40 per cent of the artillery's battalion officers were superfluous and that at the rear as at the front there were always excessive numbers. He asserted, further, that while great plans were under way toward building up an army of five million men there was no plan to move this army to the war; that enormous manufacture of artillery was carried on in this country despite the fact that there was ample artillery already in France; that even if a way had been found to take the American made guns to France there were not enough horses in France and England to draw them.

The cost of the war from April, 1917, to November, 1918, Col. McCormick said, was 40 billion dollars, or about $30,000 per man. He compared this with French expenditures of 20 billions for four years. The United States had an army of 4,800,000, of which 1,400,000 were put in battle. France had an army of 7,500,000. Germany, who fought most of the world on land and sea for four years, spent a little more than 32 billions.

Allan T. Gilbert, president of the Hamilton club and founder of the Chicago Assembly, introduced Col. McCormick. At the speakers' table were Mrs. McCormick, Col. Wallace Whigam, Judge Charles E. Woodward, Fred G. Miner, and Weymouth Kirkland. The program was broadcast by station W-G-N.

Burros Carry Food

Durango, Colo., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The first train to arrive from Denver since Feb. 8 reached here today after bucking snow blockades in Cumbres pass, 10,000 feet up in the mountains. The train carried 2,000 sacks of mail.

Trains running today between Durango and Alamosa carried a large supply of food, hay, and grain intended for northwest New Mexico, which faced a shortage of supplies because of the heavy snow which has stalled rail and highway traffic.

The supplies will be left at Chama, N. M., whence they will be taken by sled and pack burros to Dulce and there distributed to several thousand persons whose winter stores are nearly exhausted.

POLICE CAPTAIN'S GARAGE PROVES BANDIT NEMESIS

Two Are Captured in Stolen Auto.

Neighbors of Police Captains Dan Lynch, James Fleming, Patrick Gallery [retired], and Lieut. John Leahy, who usually sleep easily at night in the assurance of ample protection, were aroused yesterday morning by a series of shots echoing through their backyards.

CAPT. DAN LYNCH.

Three young men had made the error of parking a stolen automobile in Capt. Lynch's garage. Two were captured and the third was believed to have been wounded, although he escaped.

Wife Rents the Garage.

Last Saturday morning a youth, later said to be Joe De Lorenzo, called at the Lynch home and asked about renting space in the backyard garage. Mrs. May Lynch rented it to him for $8 a month and was paid $8. When her husband returned home that night she told him of the transaction. Capt. Lynch was curious. "Who was the renter?" he asked.

Mrs. Lynch said he was a very well dressed young man who told her he was a medical student living near Kedzie avenue and Harrison street, a considerable distance away. His parents had gone to Florida, he told her.

Two Caught; One Escapes.

Capt. Lynch went back to the garage. An expensive new car without license plates was there. He called the automobile section of the detective bureau and soon learned the machine had been stolen that morning in a robbery in a garage at 4238 West 16th street in which a large sum of money was also taken.

Detectives Maurice Cushing and David Tinman, armed with shotguns and .45 automatic pistols, were stationed in the Lynch basement 24 hours a day, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, waiting for some one to enter the Lynch garage. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning the garage lights were switched on. Jack Lynch, 23 year old son of the captain and a former star athlete at Notre Dame, called to his father, who ran out, gun in hand.

Cushing and Tinman were on the job. The first few shots brought out Fleming, Gallery and Leahy. Three forms scampered from the garage. Young Lynch made a flying tackle capture of one. Another put up his hands and surrendered on being surrounded. The third was lost in the darkness.

The prisoners gave their names as James Ketzer, 5642 South Laflin street, who recently obtained a judgment of $40,000 for an arm twisted in an accident, and William Rycraft, 3927 Grenshaw avenue. After cursing their absent companion for his dumbness in renting a police captain's garage in a colony of policemen's homes, they gave his name and admitted they participated in the garage robbery.

PROHIBITION LAW CALLED MISTAKE BY DEAN WIGMORE

"The prohibition law was a huge mistake imposed upon us by a fanatic minority which overawed timid politicians," John H. Wigmore, dean emeritus of the Northwestern university law school, charged yesterday. He spoke on "Lawless Administration of the Law" before the final session of Northwestern university's police conference at Harris hall in Evanston.

Earlier in the day United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson proposed the creation of a mobile, state-wide investigating body, somewhat like the secret service organization of the federal government, to cope with crime.

REPEAL U. S. DRY LAW IS DEMAND OF HOTEL MEN

Adopt a Resolution for Control by States.

The executive council of the American Hotel association, representing 29,250 hotels with invested capital of 5 billion, 25 million dollars and employing 575,000 persons, adopted a resolution yesterday calling upon President Hoover and congress to move for repeal of the 18th amendment and restoration of liquor control to the states.

Aligning themselves with the American Legion, American Bar association, American Medical association, and American Federation of Labor, which have previously gone on record against Volsteadism, the hotel men took a further step. In a supplementary resolution the council authorized its president, Thomas D. Green of New York, to appoint a committee to take the necessary steps "to put teeth in this protest."

Expect Washington Lobby.

Although no definite program has yet been discussed, a spokesman for Mr. Green predicted that the committee would be instructed to establish a Washington lobby to urge upon congress a program for a national referendum on prohibition and to organize machinery for support of liberal candidates in the various congressional elections next fall.

Debate upon the resolution was held behind closed doors at a meeting in the Palmer house. Sponsors of the resolution had feared that acrimonious debate might be raised by members, who have previously maintained that adoption of such a resolution might antagonize that part of the nation's hotel clientele now committed to the dry cause.

The resolution was adopted unanimously by the 36 delegates after the Michigan representative, P. A. Anderson of Port Huron, had withdrawn his objections.

The preamble to the resolution was devoted principally to an attack on the economic waste of prohibition, a waste from which, it was asserted, the tax burdened hotelkeepers have been the principal sufferers. There was no mention or discussion of the damage inflicted on hotel properties by bibulous convention guests since drinking became a national habit.

Cite Increase in Taxes.

"The various taxes exacted from this industry are upwards of $200,000,000 annually," the preamble asserted. "These taxes have been greatly increased through the enactment of the eighteenth amendment, because of the loss by the states and federal government of the former taxes imposed upon the legal sale of liquor.

"Prohibition laws failed to prohibit. The public, insistent upon the service of liquor with food, has been encouraged to patronize so-called clubs, speakeasies and other like places to the exclusion of hotel dining rooms, resulting in tremendous losses to this department of hotel operation, as well as appalling shrinkage in its invested capital.

"The 18th amendment and national prohibition have created a cancerous growth in our body politic. They have taken from the government taxable income running into billions of dollars; have confiscated private property of great value without just compensation; have caused unemployment of hundreds of thousands of people heretofore lawfully occupied in the legal manufacture and sale of liquor and in allied industries.

Wealth for Criminals.

"At the same time these laws are putting wealth beyond the dreams of avarice into the pockets of our criminal classes, and debased our youth and our public officials, the guardians of our lives and property.

"The business of the legitimate hotel keeper has been diverted to the bootlegger and speakeasy with no relief from taxes, while the latter have evaded taxes.

"The subject of prohibition should be considered primarily from the economic viewpoint rather than from its moral, religious or sociological aspects."

The delegates were guests of the Hotel Greeters association at a banquet in the Morrison hotel last night. Mayor Cermak was among the scheduled speakers.

A SEATTLE 'CANDHI,' IN RACE FOR MAYOR, NIBBLES ON CARROT

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A Shrine club luncheon here was "panicked" today when one of the nine candidates for mayor, who came as guests, appeared as "Mahatma Gandhi." It was Victor Aloysius Meyers, playboy of the mayoralty campaign.

A voluminous sheet was twined around his body, his bared feet were thrust in sandals and behind him, unwillingly, trotted a goat.

Arriving at his appointed place with the other eight candidates, "Mahatma" Meyers reached into the sheet and withdrew a bottle of milk, a carrot and a salt shaker. He gravely salted his carrot and nibbled it.

Into the hands of the chairman he placed a card which read: "This is my day of silence."

When it came his turn to speak, Meyers, the orchestra leader who is seeking election as "the personality candidate," rose only to make a bow.

BUSINESS ASKS U. S. CUT EXPENSE A HALF BILLION

Senate Group O. K.'s Insect Fund of $1,450,000

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, representing the organized business men of the country, called on congress today to cut 500 millions a year from federal government expenditures.

At the same time the senate appropriations committee added $1,783,832 to the appropriation bill for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year of 1933.

The committee reported the bill to the senate carrying aggregate appropriations of $177,192,646, compared with $175,408,814 provided by the measure passed by the house. The senate committee's allowance is $58,472,048 less than the appropriations for the department for the current fiscal year and $10,500,759 less than the President's budget proposed.

Won't Increase Expenses.

An item unrelated to agriculture was added to the bill at the last moment. This is $1,000,000 for the expense of the exhibit the national government will have at the Chicago Century of Progress exposition next year. Paradoxically, this Chicago item will not increase federal expenditures, but, on the contrary, will leave the treasury with a net profit, for it is intended to issue a special postage stamp commemorating the exposition, the profits from the sale of which to philatelists, it is estimated, will exceed $1,500,000.

The greater part of the amount the committee added to the house bill for the department of agriculture is for the control of grasshoppers, for which the committee voted $1,450,000. This action was taken in response to a supplemental request for that amount submitted by the President on Feb. 4 to meet a threatened infestation of grasshoppers, chiefly in northwestern states, next summer.

Senator Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], a member of the committee, described the grasshopper ravages of last season and stated that federal aid is needed. The states affected, he said, would be unable to provide funds for the eradication work if matching of the federal appropriation were required. The committee thereupon voted the amount requested with the proviso that it should be used to purchase poisoned bait in counties or districts financially unable to do so, but that the organization required shall be furnished locally. The territory affected comprises 213 counties in Colorado, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming.

The next largest item added to the house bill is $180,640 for the forest service, of which $76,500 is an increase in the allotment for administration of the national forests, $52,400 for improvement, and $45,940 for acquisition of additional lands.

The bureau of plant industry is given $43,480 additional, of which $20,000 is for experiments to counteract the downy mildew of hops and $19,780 to continue operation of the Ardmore, S. D., dry land agriculture experiment station, which the house voted to abolish as a useless expense. The Fort Assiniboine, Mont., animal husbandry experiment station was likewise saved from the pruning knife by the addition of $1,200. The bureau of agricultural economics gets $34,412 more in order to raise the house allowance for market news services to the extent of $25,412 and keep a forester in Europe at an expense of $9,000. The house allotment of $375,000 for control of the Japanese beetle was raised by the committee to $400,000. The weather bureau is allowed $38,500 additional and the food and drug administration $10,600.

For the purpose of throwing them into conference with the house for final adjustment, the committee struck from the house bill the provision prohibiting salary increases and the filling of vacancies, except by executive order, and the provision limiting the expenditure for purchase of any automobile except the secretary's to $750.

Strike Out "Burden" on Dixie.

The committee also struck out the house bill provision withholding federal aid for highway construction from projects on which states employ convict labor. The southern states were hard hit by this threat and raised the roof of the committee hearing room with their outcries. The southerners complained that it would be necessary for them to enlarge and build additional penitentiaries if compelled to take convicts off the roads where they are housed in camps.

The chamber of commerce appeal for a 500 million dollar reduction of the annual cost of the federal government is contained in a referendum on "a business man's plan" for meeting the one billion 240 million deficit which is being submitted to constituent organizations.

The referendum, the result of which will be submitted to congress, is based upon a report of the chamber's special committee of which Fred W. Sargent of Chicago, president of the Chicago and North Western railway, is chairman.

Demand a Balanced Budget.

The committee recommends "that the primary emphasis should be placed on balancing the budget by reduction of governmental expenses, not by increased taxation."

"While reduction of expenses is strongly urged by the administration and by leaders in both parties," the committee goes on to say, "this may accomplish much or little, depending upon how seriously congress considers the necessity for reduction. The presentation of a budget for 1933 of four billions [more than in the year of 1929], is not hopeful. Furthermore, over and above this budget, there are proposals looking toward further expenses of hundreds of millions of dollars which have high official or political advocacy.

"With due regard to the fact that there are large fixed expenses for bond interest and some other expenditures growing out of the war, vast current expenditures for 1933 are within the control of congress. It seems possible to make very substantial reductions in current expenses if congress is convinced of the necessity and that the country demands an economy program. If not so convinced, substantial expenditures above the four billion dollar figure are to be expected."

Urge Need of Retrenchment.

The chamber committee on expenditures dwelt on the "imperative need of retrenchment," suggesting that "a wise program of taxation and borrowings cannot be made without prior determination of the minimum current expenditures that will be needed to maintain essential activities.

"We are of the opinion that American business and the public generally should expect that congress will endeavor whole heartedly to determine the feasibility of a reduction of federal expenditures by at least $500,000,000."

One immediate step toward retrenchment, in the opinion of the committee, would be the incorporation in the departments of many of the forty-two boards and other independent offices now costing 1 billion 300 million. Pending a thoroughgoing reorganization of the government the President, the committee added, should be empowered to transfer and consolidate activities in the interest of greater economy and efficiency. The consolidation of the war and navy departments is specially urged.

Suggest Moderate Tax Boost.

The chamber proposes that the budget be balanced by the fiscal year of 1934, that in this and the next fiscal year, new debt borrowings in decreasing amounts be utilized to keep tax increases moderate, that a time limit be put on tax increases.

Moderate nonretroactive increases of corporation and individual income taxes [normal and surtaxes] are suggested, with personal credits reduced. On the manufacturers' tax proposed by the ways and means committee Democrats the referendum is silent. Instead it is suggested that "if still further revenues are needed, there should be excise taxes at low rates upon a broad range of articles of wide use and not of the first necessity."

Any change in estate taxes is opposed, but allowance suggested where there has been shrinkage of value between time of death and payment.

FINED $6

MISS CORNELIA LUNT.

Miss Cornelia G. Lunt, 89 years old, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston and fined a total of $6 for a violation of traffic rules. Policeman Jack Serbin testified that he had placed an arrest notice on Miss Lunt's automobile when he found it parked double on Davis street. After she failed to appear in court she was arrested on a warrant. Miss Lunt, whose father was Orrington Lunt, one of the pioneer residents of Evanston, declared she did not get Serbin's ticket.

INDOOR WEATHER MACHINES TO BE DISCUSSED TODAY

Air conditioners, apparatuses designed to regulate "indoor weather," will be discussed today as a potential new major industry by F. C. Lyons of Dayton, O., before the National Electric Lighting association, in convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Progressive developments have been made in manufacturing air conditioners, it is pointed out. The conditioner serves for every climatic change, according to the association. In summer weather the machinery sets in motion fresh air, cleaned, dried and cooled, and in winter circulates warm currents, charged with moisture.

The association convention opened Wednesday and will end today. One of its features is the annual sales conference of the commercial section of the great lakes division.

More Snow, Heavy Rains in Southern California

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A lingering storm trailed another veil of snow and rain over southern California today, complicating a situation of blocked roads, swollen streams, and snowbound communities.

Agricultural agencies said that extensive damage was feared unless the skies cleared soon.

The present storm at 5 p. m. had brought 1.96 inches of rain to Los Angeles, raising the season's total to 16.49 inches, compared to 8.97 inches at this time last year.

CEREMONY IN AIR MAKES PRINCESS A MOHAMMEDAN

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—An Englishwoman who some day is destined to rule with her husband over a half million savages and headhunters renounced the Christian faith and became a Mohammedan today while the air liner in which she was traveling sped over the English channel.

The wife of Maj. Bertram Brooke, tuan muda [prince] of Sarawak, she went through the ceremony of reception into the Moslem faith before the astonished gaze of a score of passengers flying from England to France. [Sarawak is a British protectorate state in the west of Borneo.]

The Sarawak princess adopted the name Khairulnissa—fairest of women. As wife of the tuan muda, she already was known as the dayang muda.

Has Considerable Beauty.

The princess, a woman of considerable beauty, has been in turn a Protestant, a Christian Scientist, and a Catholic. Pope Piux XI. granted her a special audience when she was received into the Catholic church two years ago. She appeared before the pontiff in the Malayan national costume.

She is the daughter of the late Sir Charles Palmer of Reading, who was a member of the biscuit firm of Huntley & Palmer. He is said to have left her a fortune of $1,250,000.

She is a sister-in-law of the present rajah of Sarawak. Sarawak now is governed by the third rajah, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, and his wife, the Ranee Sylvia, daughter of Viscount Esher. It is that state over which the tuan muda and the dayang muda eventually will rule.

Brookes Have Ruled Since 1840.

The Brooke family became the ruling house of Sarawak when, in 1840, the heir presumptive of the sultan persuaded James Brooke, an English officer, to help to put down an insurrection. As a reward, he was made rajah, the sultan abdicating in his favor.

The internal administration of Sarawak, which has about 500,000 inhabitants, is entirely in the hands of the rajah.

Child Taken to Hospital by Mother Dies of Scalds

Henrietta Carlson, 2 yeare old, died last night in the Women's and Children's hospital, 1606 Maypole avenue, of scalds suffered Wednesday when she fell in a tub of hot water in her home. She was taken to the hospital by her mother, Marie. Police were unable to notify the mother of her child's death because of an apparent error in addresses. The hospital records show Mrs. Carlson listed her address as in North Laramie avenue. It is believed she meant Larrabee street.

Boy, 12, Drops Revolver and Discharge Kills Him

A revolver which John Matzkanin, 12 years old, tried to hide, dropped from his hand yesterday, and was accidentally discharged. The bullet struck near his heart, causing his death a few minutes later. The accident occurred in the hen house in the rear of John's home at 5042 South Damen avenue.

ALCOHOL BOSS TELLS HOW AID WAS MURDERED

How Edwin Gill, booze runner and speakeasy owner, was shot to death Wednesday night near Fowler, Ind., was related yesterday by Andrew Bandura, 212 Mason street, Calumet City, so-called bootleg king of his town. He was questioned in his home by Police Chief John Shubert of Calumet City.

"Gill was driving my car, loaded with alcohol, to Cincinnati," said Bandura. "Near Fowler a coupe chased us and the men fired. One bullet punctured a tire on our car and another hit Gill. Three men surrounded us. One put a gun to me and said: 'Get back at the wheel; we'll tend to him.' They unloaded our alcohol, then made me drive up a distance, and left me alone."

Gill's widow, Mrs. Jean Gill, 567 Hirsch avenue, Calumet City, had a different theory, however. She said the assassins mistook Gill for Bandura. The two men bore a striking resemblance, she said. If her story is true, Gill would be the second man to have died from bullets intended for Bandura, police said. Two years ago Joseph Piccolo was shot to death as he emerged from Bandura's home. At that time detectives said they believed the bullets were meant for Bandura.

DEMOCRATS SAY HOOVER CLAIMS ALL THE CREDIT

They Point to Origin of His Program.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Now that the major measures of the Hoover legislative program have been approved, or—like the Glass-Steagall bill—are but a step from assured approval, the Democratic administration accord seems to be wearing a bit thin.

SENATOR J. T. ROBINSON. [A. P. Photo.]

A little bit more of the hearty cooperative spirit with which the session began was rubbed away today by Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, senate minority leader, and Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, acting on the Democratic behalf.

Not to be outdone, President Hoover set his secretariat to work and produced a 29 page mimeographed document to show that the Democratic assertions were wrong. In addition to this he was defended on the house floor by Representative Carl Mapes [Rep., Mich.].

Issue Is Over Credit.

The issue, as in so many political squabbles, was as to who is to get the credit for the two most recent proposals for lifting the country out of the depression.

It irritated Senator Robinson's Jeffersonian sense of fair play to have the Glass-Steagall federal reserve act revision, now pending in the senate, touted as a Hoover measure.

Representative Sabath [Dem., Ill.] had urged the expansion of the federal reserve eligibility privileges in December, 1930, said the Democratic leader, and had had his suggestion coldly turned down by the governor of the federal reserve board.

And the "Hoover bill's" permission for government bonds to be used as a currency, declared Senator Robinson, was Democratic back in 1900, when such a proposal was made by Senator James K. Jones, then chairman of the Democratic national committee, and was Democratic as late as last January, when similar propositions were offered by Representative Keller, another Illinois Democrat, and by Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.].

Says Treasury Opposed.

Up to three weeks ago, Mr. Robinson reminded his senate colleagues, former Secretary Mellon and the then Undersecretary Mills, had "emphatically and unqualifiedly" disapproved these bills.

Moreover, said he, the principal provisions of the present measure were lifted from the more comprehensive bill sponsored by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.].

"Democrats in both houses of the congress have coöperated with the President and his party associates in the preparation and passage of so-called emergency measures," said Senator Robinson. "But when enactments are presenting the best thought and the untiring efforts of members of both parties are claimed by Republican leaders as the achievement of President Hoover alone, the Democrats in the congress are not only justified, they are almost required to call attention to the record of the two parties touching the particular subject matter of legislation being dealt with."

Not New, Byrns Says.

Meanwhile, over on the house side, Representative Byrns was telling his colleagues that President Hoover has another think coming if he thought his message of yesterday urging reorganization of the executive offices was either new or Republican.

The President, he insinuated, has hustled the message to congress because the Democratic leadership of the house was on the eve of coming out with a concrete plan of reorganization. His own bill to consolidate the war and navy departments, said Representative Byrns, was being opposed by the administration despite the fact that such action might be expected to save 100 million dollars a year.

"The President," said the Democratic congressman, "has created more commissions and more independent boards than any other President of the entire country. We could make a good start in the interest of economy by abolishing them and devolving their duties upon the legally constituted agencies of the government.

"If something is not done the taxpayers and consumers of this country will dig down into their pockets to the amount of 1 billion 400 million in June, 1933, after his administration has come to a close."

Aid Hungry School Children

Wife Sues for Divorce from Harry C. Moir Jr.

Mrs. Maxine Mosser Moir, 22 years old, of the Croydon hotel, New York, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against Harry C. Moir Jr., 26 years old, son of the former owner of the Morrison hotel. She charged cruelty and adultery, naming Verda Weir, who was arrested recently in an apartment at 7805 Essex avenue with Moir, as a corespondent. Miss Weir and Moir will appear today in the Felony court on statutory charges. Moir also faces charges of accessory to robberies allegedly committed by other youths who used the apartment. Mrs. Moir was Moir's third wife.

MAYOR WILL SPEAK TONIGHT FOR BENEFIT OF HUNGRY CHILDREN

Mayor A. J. Cermak will speak on the life of George Washington tonight at 9:15 over W-G-N, the TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, on a program which will tell of the Washington benefit dance for the hungry school children's fund to be held at the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms on Monday. Both Wayne King and Bernie Cummins, orchestra leaders, will be introduced from their respective ballrooms.

Announcement was made yesterday that the entertainment at the Aragon will include two of the principals in "The Chocolate Soldier," Oscar Straus' operetta now playing at the Erlanger theater. The two stars, Allan Rogers and Miss Marian Palmer, will appear in a duet, accompanied by Wayne King and his orchestra. Other stage and radio stars will appear at both ballrooms.

Tickets to either ballroom benefit may be obtained from the American Legion posts and their auxiliaries, service bodies of the Pennsylvania and Illinois railways, and from public service offices of the TRIBUNE. The price is $1.

FALLEN PREMIER REJECTS POST IN FRENCH CABINET

Laval Blocks Effort to Form New Ministry.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 19 [Friday, 3 a. m.]—The French political crisis took a more desperate turn early this morning when former Premier Paul Painleve's attempt to form a "concillation cabinet" collapsed after a night of laborious negotiations.

The famous mathematician and politician, who was named by President Paul Doumer to form a government yesterday morning after Pierre Laval's resignation, felt so confident of success that he called at the Elysee palace again last night and formally accepted the assignment.

Laval Blocks Move.

The combination envisaged was a collection of moderate left wing nonentities to offset the presence of Andre Tardieu, Paul Reynaud and Laval, who would thus be able to continue the former government's foreign policy and maintain the delegation at the disarmament conference with only minor changes.

Failure was caused by the insistence of the right wing majority that one of their trusted leaders, Tardieu, Laval or Reynaud, should occupy the key position of minister of the interior, which is important because of the influence it gives the group in power over elections. The lefts refused to give their consent and Tardieu and Laval rescinded their offers of collaboration.

Painleve's only chance now seems to be a straight left wing government similar to the short lived Camille Chautemps cabinet which succeeded the first Tardieu government for a few days during the London naval conference. It would probably share the same fate, politicians believe.

Public Angry at Senate.

Public opinion is inflamed against the senate for precipitating this crisis when big international issues are at stake, particularly because France may be endangered if the already delayed budget is not rushed through.

Yesterday morning a mob of royalists and Fascist students stormed the senate building. They fought police, smashed windows and shouted "Down with the senate!" and "Vive Tardieu!" Several were hurt and many were arrested.

Senator Henri Cheron complained to police that he was manhandled by students while leaving the building. "They insulted me and knocked my hat in the mud," he said.

ROB STORE OF CASH, LIQUOR.

Maurice Bernstein, owner of a drug store at 5901 Irving Park boulevard, discovered when he opened the place yesterday that burglars had entered during the night and taken $125 and 39 pints of whisky.

Cripples Chop Wood for 386 Needy City Families

The Goodwill Industries, an organization which provides employment for crippled and disabled persons in cooperation with the Joint Emergency Relief fund, reported yesterday that 386 Cook county families had been supplied with free wood so far this winter. The wood was chopped in the forest preserves by 59 men, all deaf mutes and heads of families. They were paid through a coöperating arrangement with the relief fund.

Opens Fight to Build 120 War Vessels in 10 Years

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.] — Chairman Carl A. Vinson [Dem., Ga.] of the house naval affairs committee today called upon the American people and their representatives in congress to save the United States navy from ultimate destruction by supporting legislation providing all ships needed to bring the United States up to parity with Great Britain.

Speaking from the floor of the house, the Georgia Democrat asserted the United States navy is rapidly sinking to the position of that of a second class naval power. He expressed the opinion that if the people of the country fully realized how rapidly the fleet is sinking in effectiveness compared with the navies of Great Britain and Japan they would insist upon enactment of his bill, which provides 120 war vessels to be built over a ten year period at an estimated cost of 616 millions.

Navy Sinks Through Delay.

"We have listened to the siren song of delay for ten years, while our naval strength has sunk lower and lower," Chairman Vinson asserted. "The pacifists, those who believe that complete and total disarmament is the way to eternal peace, would have us continue this delay. But to continue delay means the slow but ultimate destruction of the American navy."

By his action today Mr. Vinson served notice that he intended to rescue the Vinson bill from the house naval affairs committee pigeonhole, where it has reposed since the 20th of January, when the committee members voted to hold it up "in view of the abnormal economic conditions and in the hope substantial results might be achieved at the Geneva disarmament conference."

Forecasts Geneva Failure.

Representative Vinson told his colleagues that changed world conditions had caused him to change his mind and campaign for passage for his bill at this time. He said that the first few weeks of the conference had made it apparent that nothing would transpire at Geneva.

Chairman Vinson said the time has come when the United States should serve notice on the world that she intends to build up to the tonnage limits prescribed by the London naval treaty. With a strong navy, he said, the United States can direct its own actions in world affairs. "If we become weak," he added, "our actions will be controlled by a less generous and noble people than those which live in this country."

"The primary duty of government is self-preservation," concluded Mr. Vinson. "No government which fails to provide for its own preservation against the assaults of every probable foe is entitled to the support of its people."

Chairman Vinson said a survey had disclosed that this country, by 1936, would have scrapped virtually a half billion dollars' worth of warships as its contribution to disarmament. He said thirty-one ships costing 212 millions had been scrapped as a result of the Washington conference. Another 163 ships eventually will be scrapped as a result of the London treaty, he said. The cost of the 163 ships was listed at 267 millions.

SALE OF PASCHEN CATTLE BALKED BY U. S. JUDGE

County Judge Perry L. Persons of Lake county yesterday ruled that Darling & Co., fertilizer merchants, could have the proceeds from the sale of thirty-nine calves, one bull, seven turkeys, and farm equipment on the Paschendale estate of Chris Paschen, former Chicago building commissioner, to satisfy a $1,500 judgment obtained in a Municipal court of Chicago.

The concern had levied on 143 calves, two horses, and three bulls. They were reduced to the smaller sale when the Foreman-State National bank, now absorbed by the First National bank, showed by its attorneys that it held a mortgage on all the Paschen animals that were on the Wisconsin acres of the estate on June 1, 1931. Only those that were south of the state line, which cuts through one of the large barns, could be sold for the benefit of Darling & Co., Judge Persons held.

Deputy Sheriff John Froelich of Lake county prepared to sell the smaller number this afternoon. But last night a new complication appeared. He was served with an order, signed by Federal Judge Barnes, restraining any sale of any Paschen cattle or equipment pending disposal of creditors' claims against Paschen in a bankruptcy action.

MERGED DEFENSE SPELLS DISASTER: GEN. MACARTHUR

Life of Nation Is at Stake, Chieftain Says.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.] — Gen. Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff, today assailed the move to amalgamate the army and navy into a single national defense establishment as "fraught with potential possibilities of disaster for the United States." Under certain conditions, he wrote in a letter to Representative Charles H. Martin [Dem., Ore.], the very life of the nation might be involved.

DOUGLAS McARTHUR. [Ewing Photo.]

The MacArthur barrage was directed at the Bryns-Williamson bills providing for the consolidation of the army and navy into one department under a cabinet member. Assistant secretaries would be appointed for the army, the navy and a separate air force. The house expenditures committee of which Representative Martin, a former general officer in the regular army is a member, is now conducting hearings on the amalgamation proposal.

House Approval Seen.

Although the consolidation bills have been vigorously opposed by the highest army and navy officers and officials, one of the measures is virtually certain to be reported out favorably to the house within the next few days by the house expenditures committee.

Supporters of the consolidation plan have hailed it as a long stride toward governmental economy. Gen. MacArthur asserted in his letter that nothing could be further from the truth. He declared that passage of the consolidation bill would, in his opinion, "represent one of the greatest debauches of extravagance that any nation has ever known."

Gen. MacArthur said also that the amalgamation bills would add to government bureaucracy at Washington by setting up a superstaff to handle army-navy-air affairs.

Sees Colossal Cost.

"Formation of the organization proposed would not materially lessen the necessity for the separate logistical, administrative and training staffs now existing, but would at once attract to itself a group of officers, civil officials, clerks and others, which would probably exceed in cost and size during the course of time anything that this nation has ever experienced," the general said.

"Although I recognize the possibility of effecting relatively unimportant economies in isolated activities, the ultimate cost of this superimposed structure would, in my opinion, exceed by millions any economies that could be safely effected.

NEW TESTIMONY ADDS MYSTERY TO KEGEL CASE

Jury Determined to Get Facts.

Additional testimony regarding the poison charges made against Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel, wife of former Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, left the grand jury in a quandary yesterday. Foreman John P. Larkin said his fellow jurors and himself are now more determined than ever to get the truth, and he said the jurors were impressed by the alibi of Gerald Lee, who was accused as an accessory of Mrs. Kegel's.

Lee had once admitted being with Mrs. Kegel in an ice cream parlor at Broadway and Irving Park boulevard at the time she discussed her pending divorce case with Mrs. Mary Ryan, formerly a maid in her home, who said Mrs. Kegel made several attempts to kill Dr. Kegel. Later Lee claimed he had been beaten by detectives to force this admission. He had said he saw Mrs. Kegel put a powder in Mrs. Ryan's ice cream, but later he said that was a false statement.

Dentist Is Witness.

Dr. E. E. French, a dentist at 668 Oakdale avenue, and A. B. Spicer, one of his patients, both testified yesterday before the grand jury that Lee was in the dentist's chair from 2 o'clock to 3:15 o'clock on Jan. 25. The alleged poisoning was at 2:30 o'clock on that day, Mrs. Ryan, who is recovering at the John B. Murphy hospital, stated.

When Foreman Larkin called George Voulgaris, owner of the ice cream parlor, on the telephone yesterday to ask him to come to the grand jury room, Larkin said Voulgaris answered the telephone, saying: "Is this you, Dr. Kegel?" and then refused to heed a telephonic summons.

The foreman requested Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse to have a policeman bring Voulgaris before the jury today.

Undecided About Calling Kegel.

The jurors have not decided yet whether Dr. Kegel will be called, they said. Dr. Kegel's attorney, former Judge Harry Olson, said yesterday he was not interested as a lawyer in what the grand jury does about the indictment already voted against Mrs. Kegel and Lee, but as Dr. Kegel's counsel he is interested only in the divorce proceedings.

Bail bonds in the sum of $50,000 were scheduled yesterday for Mrs. Kegel, who, however, did not surrender. Her attorney said she is ill, but he believed she would be able to go to court by tomorrow.

SET HEARING ON KUNZ CONTEST IN WASHINGTON

Hearing of the election contest of former Congressman Stanley Kunz against Congressman Peter C. Granata, who defeated him for reëlection in the election of Nov. 4, 1930, was set for next Wednesday by the house committee on elections at Washington yesterday. The committee will receive briefs, but will postpone extended hearings pending the outcome of proceedings in Cook county, it was announced.

Those proceedings consist of charges of making false returns which have been filed before County Judge Jarecki against approximately 100 polls officials in the 20th and 27th wards, parts of the 8th congressional district.

EVERY COURTESY SHOWN TO TWO FREED GUNMEN

Now Prosecutor's Police Give Them a Hand.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Willie Washington, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Thomas Taylor.

Carl Parker, 25 years old, nephew of Judge Carl G. Sherwood of Clark, S. D., and Stanley Wilson, 19 years old, confessed gunmen who were released through unusual court proceedings after they had been sentenced to the penitentiary for robbery, were revealed to be still under the protective arm of the authorities yesterday when they appeared at the state's attorney's office.

The records show that the two men spent only six hours in the penitentiary after the original sentence before the doors were opened for them through a judicial order maneuvered by Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo, former speaker of the Illinois house of representatives. Their release on probation was ordered by Judge Charles A. Williams, who had sentenced them. They had committed seven drug store robberies and tried to kill at least one of their victims, according to the record.

Depart by a Window.

Yesterday Parker and Wilson had been in the state's attorney's office only a few hours when policemen opened a window leading to a fire escape. The gunmen were told to depart that way to escape the "indignity of being photographed."

Clarence P. Denning, secretary of the Chicago Bar association, which yesterday was to have taken up the question of the release of the two men, also announced a postponement. The board of managers, said Mr. Denning, could not discuss such a situation based only on newspaper reports. He said that by next Thursday perhaps another report would be obtained.

State's Attorney Swanson said he would discuss the case today with Assistant State's Attorney William Rittenhouse. He was too busy to do it yesterday, he said.

Position of Rittenhouse.

Mr. Rittenhouse said it would be his position that since Judge Williams had all the facts before him nothing should be done by the prosecutor. The state's attorney's office has nothing to do with the granting of probation, that being purely a judicial function, Mr. Rittenhouse said.

Parker and Wilson appeared at the state's attorney's office because Chief Investigator Patrick Roche was seeking them. Roche had said that he would ask that one of the robbery cases be reinstated or that he would try to send the men to New York or St. Louis where they were suspected of crime before the Chicago drug store robberies.

Reports in the criminal court building were that Mrs. Erma Gareri, 1400 Lake Shore drive, who acted as Judge Shurtleff's messenger in the negotiations for probation, was busy on the telephone after Parker and Wilson surrendered yesterday to Roche. Not long afterward, according to these reports, the policemen opened the window. Roche was not at his office after the men surrendered.

Twelve Robberies Solved by 4 Youths' Confessions

Twelve robberies were solved by police last night with the confessions of four youths who were arrested earlier in the day. They are associates of Walter Bukent, 19 years old, alleged bandit, who was shot Tuesday night by a private detective and is now recovering from the wound. He is in custody. The four seized yesterday are Bernard Kolansinski, 23; Zigmund Techman, 17; John Linkevitch, 16, and Edward Bielowski, 17.

N. K. McGill, 10 West 35th street.

"Only ten per cent of those who attend the hearings are discovered subsequently violating the smoke abatement ordinance," said Mr. Chambers.

84 PER CENT VOTE FOR DRY REPEAL IN DIGEST POLL

New York, Feb. 18.—[Special.]—A vote of more than five to one for the repeal of the 18th amendment has been recorded in returns from the first eight states in the nation-wide straw ballot on prohibition being conducted by the Literary Digest, it was announced today.

Of the total of 323,550 votes received in the first tabulation 51,285 are for prohibition and 272,262 are for the repeal of the amendment, or 15.85 per cent dry and 84.15 per cent wet.

The eight states represented in the returns are New York, Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. In this tabulation New York is the wettest with a percentage of 87.43 for repeal and North Carolina is the dryest with a percentage of 41.17 for continuance of the amendment. This year the voting is only for continuance of the amendment or repeal of it, while the 1930 poll included modification.

Illinois and Maryland are second and third in wetness, their wet percentages being 85.73 and 82.79 respectively. Second and third in dryness are Indiana and Georgia with dry percentages of 36.03 and 31.68 respectively.

Third Wife to Sue

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Jack Pickford, brother of the film star, Mary Pickford, and his wife, Mary Mulhern, former Follies beauty, are headed for the divorce court.

Patrick J. Cooney, attorney for Miss Mulhern, said today she will file a divorce petition.

"It is true that Jack and I have parted," said Miss Mulhern, "but there is no more that I can say at present."

The separation came a short time ago after Pickford had recovered from a long illness. Miss Mulhern returned to New York while her husband went on a trip to the mountains.

The couple were married Aug. 12, 1930, at Del Monte, Cal. Miss Mulhern is Pickford's third wife. He was married first to Olive Thomas, screen star who died in Paris, and later to Marilyn Miller, stage and screen actress.

NO JOB, GOOD CAR, FAMILY; CHARITY CARES FOR ALL

Acting on a report that a "suspicious looking man" was loitering about, a Woodlawn police squad went into the alley in the rear of 6130 Eberhart avenue last night. They found Luther Steem, 26 years old, of 3209 Prairie avenue, unemployed father of four children.

"Just a minute," objected Mr. Steem as the squad motioned for him to accompany them. "I must get my Peerless coupe." It was a neat car, carrying new state license plates on rear and front. Both Mr. Steem and his automobile were taken to the station. There he said he had purchased the car on Dec. 23 for $75 and had obtained the licenses since then. He also admitted he was unemployed. Sergt. Walter O'Leary looked at the machine, then at the new license plates, and next at Mr. Steem.

"How," he inquired curiously, "can you afford a car and new licenses when you have four children and are out of work?"

Mr. Steem solved the problem easily. "Charity," he explained.

$400,000 THEFT FROM BANK TOLD BY EX-PRESIDENT

The "inside story" of how three young tellers stole $400,000 from the South Side Trust and Savings bank five years ago was related from the witness stand for the first time yesterday by Isaac N. Powell, former president of the bank which is now closed.

At the time that the tellers were arrested, they estimated their peculations at $185,000. Powell, then president, declared that they had taken only $23,000 which was fully covered by insurance. He told Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday that a total of $400,000 had been taken by the young men, of which only a part was covered by insurance.

Powell was summoned to explain his debt of $19,625 to the bank. He said that he and the directors of the bank had agreed to make up that portion of the $400,000 not covered by insurance and his share was represented by his note for $20,000.

Sent to Penitentiary.

Two of the three clerks, John F. O'Connell and Peter Hein, served penitentiary sentences and two gamblers who urged the youths to embezzle money to bet on the races were sentenced to five years each by a federal judge.

Powell said his troubles and the bank's troubles began with the theft of the $400,000. The bank closed on June 9, 1931, owing 20,000 depositors $3,000,000.

He argued that he was not legally indebted to the bank because there was $23,000 in salary coming to him. Judge Feinberg said this was no defense because the uncollected salary failed to appear as a liability of the bank in its report to the state auditor. He instructed the receiver to file suit against Powell for the debt.

Pays Part of Debt.

Jake Adler, part owner of the "Midnight Frolics" cabaret, gave the receiver $500 cash as part payment of his $4,000 debt to the bank. He promised to pay the remainder as soon as possible.

Henry M. Kaut, 44 years old, formerly a teller of the First National bank of Downers Grove, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes to serve two and one-half years at Leavenworth penitentiary after he pleaded guilty to making false entries in the books of the bank.

The false entries covered up approximately $70,000 taken from the bank, according to the prosecution. Kaut, who is married and has two children, contended that he really did not get the money, but found himself short at various times through mistakes and made the false entries to cover up the shortages.

Auditor Nelson Closes Bank.

The Kaufman State bank of Chicago, 124 N. La Salle street, was closed yesterday by State Auditor Nelson at the request of the board of directors. The bank's deposits dwindled from $960,000 in June, 1930, to $340,000 at the time of closing. Fred Edgerton, chief bank examiner, declared that the Kaufman bank was not regarded as a regular "loop" bank because of its small size and the private character of its business.

Capiases for the arrest of John Bain and the five others indicted with him in the Bain bank investigation were not served yesterday when it was announced that the defendants would post bond within a few days. Bain, his two sons, and son-in-law are now under bond in the Felony court. Surety for a $10,000 bond was posted for Frank Mulholland, one of the six indicted.

$1,200 Found in Clothes of Aged Charity Patient

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Andrew Maki, 64 year old laborer, was taken to the county hospital today when he told police he did not have money for medical treatment. At the hospital attendants found between $1,200 and $1,300 in Maki's clothing.

SUPREME COURT HEARS ARGUMENT TO DISBAR HOYNE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Special]—The last of the disbarment cases against attorneys connected with the Chicago sanitary district pay roll were submitted to the Illinois Supreme court this evening. Walter H. Dodd, representing the Chicago Bar association, and Grover Niemeyer, representing Maclay Hoyne, former head of the district's legal department, offered the final arguments.

Niemeyer asked the court to discharge the rule against Hoyne, whom the bar association desires to disbar for a period of two years. He insisted that while Hoyne nominally was the head of the sanitary district's legal department in the "whoopee" period, he was without authority to hire or discharge lawyers. It was pointed out that he neither had recommended nor advised hiring the surplus legal talent. Niemeyer insisted that so far as his approval of the pay rolls was concerned he had no discretion.

The legal status of Hoyne's connection with the sanitary district excited the interest of the court, and both Niemeyer and Dodd were questioned during the argument by Chief Justice Stone and Justices Heard, Orr, and Jones.

Ex-Judge's Wife in Race for G. O. P. Delegate Job

Mrs. Harriet E. Edwards of Waukegan yesterday announced her candidacy for the place of delegate to the Republican national convention from the 10th Illinois district. Mrs. Edwards, who is the wife of former Judge Claire C. Edwards, was Lake county manager for Ruth Hanna McCormick in the last senatorial campaign.

HEADS DOWN . . . AND COMPLEXIONS LOOK UP . . . . .
No, this isn't just an acrobatic stunt. The lady has learned a new exercise that helps to cure skin eruptions. Here it is. Bend down, as shown in the picture, throwing the head forward, relaxing the neck. Let your hair fall forward. Blood rushes to your very hair roots. And this flushing of the circulation stimulates the natural action of the pores. Then—and how important this is—you must keep the pores thoroughly cleaned of accumulations. Work Palmolive lather into the pores, going over and over every inch of the skin. Rinse carefully. If skin troubles trouble you, you'll be wise to follow this treatment twice daily.

EARS SHOULD LOOK AS WELL AS LISTEN . . . . .
Look lovely, I mean. We're exposing them so much these days that we must give our ears certain appealing touches. Julia Crandall, the Washington, D. C. beauty specialist, advises rouging the ear lobe with a pink or rosy dry rouge. That accentuates your vitality and places an alluring accent on the delicate shell-like quality of the ear. Try it. CHINESE REPLY TO ULTIMATUM WITH GUNFIRE curbed within the districts outside the places evacuated by the Chinese.

6. The Japanese reserve the liberty to act if the demands are not complied with.

The foregoing text was issued to newspaper men by the Japanese official bureau last night, but Gen. Tsai insisted that the actual text of the ultimatum demanded that the Chinese permanently dismantle the Woosung forts, as well as the Lion hill fort protecting Nanking [temporarily abandoned as the Chinese capital], and that the Japanese be permitted to occupy Woosung, Chapel, and the so-called Pootung district on the opposite side of the Whangpoo river from Shanghai.

I interviewed Gen. Tsai at his headquarters at Chenju late last night. He had just returned by train from Nanziang, about six miles north of Chenju on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, where he had conferred with other high military and civil officials of the Nanking government on plans for defending Shanghai against the long threatened Japanese offensive.

Will Use All Resources.

"In opposing Japanese aggression I am obeying the mandate of the central government, and there is no conflict of opinion between me and Gen. Chiang Kai-shek," the Chinese commander began. "Should the government order my troops to withdraw, I would obey, but the government realizes the futility of any further adoption of a policy of nonresistance and has decided to use the nation's full resources to prevent Japanese invasion.

"If Japan wants peace she must withdraw her forces from Chinese territory completely—not into the foreign settlement but back to the Japanese transports. China't position is sound and legal. We are entitled to defend our territory against foreign invasion.

"The Japanese have proved themselves uncivilized and perfidious militarists. How can China or the world enjoy peace and international justice with Japanese troops occupying China's territory? How can we discuss peace with the Japanese in occupation of our land? If Japan will evacuate China's territory there will be no need for a conference because peace will come automatically."

Referring to the Japanese proposal of establishing a neutral zone, Gen. Tsai said it was unacceptable because the Japanese could not be trusted to observe such a zone.

Tells of Chances of Victory.

Asked whether the Chinese forces were able to withstand the Japanese modern equipment, including artillery and powerful types of modern tanks and airplanes, the Chinese commander replied:

"In every battle there is a victor and a vanquished, but often the vanquished, providing he is fighting for a principle, emerges victorious. Should we be forced to withdraw to the interior, leaving the Japanese in control of all China's ports, we are convinced that China ultimately will win the struggle against Japanese might because the world must ultimately recognize the justice of China's cause and come to our assistance."

"While the immediate objective of the Japanese ultimatum was to protect lives and properties of Japanese residents, it also might serve to protect the international settlement against Chinese encroachments. The Chinese military forces have constantly disregarded the settlement's neutrality and have fired guns into the area endangering the lives and property of foreign residents. We desire to continue diplomatic negotiations with the Chinese in order to achieve an amicable settlement, but, in the meantime, the Japanese forces must take the necessary precautions to check unwarranted assaults by Chinese troops."

CHINESE IN THREE U. S. CITIES TO BUY SIX ARMY PLANES

Cleveland, O., Feb. 18.—(AP)—Chinese residents of Cleveland, Buffalo, and Syracuse, N. Y., will purchase six airplanes for their embattled government, Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, director of the Chinese board of trade in Boston, said here today.

Tehyi said the planes, which can be converted to military use, will cost about $100,000.

The Chinese have pledged one-fourth of their income until the amount is received, Tehyi added. It is in addition to funds subscribed for medical care of Chinese wounded in the battle with Japanese troops, he said.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS APPEAR IN SHANGHAI IN SUITS OF ARMOR

SHANGHAI, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Like shades of King Arthur, a squad of Japanese soldiers appeared in Shanghai streets today clad in suits of light armor.

The armor was painted and completely covered their bodies from the waist up. It was topped by modern trench helmets, however, instead of the ancient top pieces of the days of Charles V.

Inquiry at Japanese headquarters brought the information that the armor was only for the use of soldiers at exposed sentry posts and that it would not come into general use.

S. R. M'KELVIE DEFENDS FUNDS FOR FARM BOARD

S. R. McKelvie of Nebraska, former member of the federal farm board, addressed the Chicago advertising council at its luncheon in the Hotel La Salle yesterday. In discussing the operations of the farm board he said that while two months ago apologies might have been in order for the size of the five hundred million dollar fund appropriated for the use of the board, congress now has passed the reconstruction corporation bill providing four times as much for the assistance of business.

He asserted that if the agricultural marketing act was repealed today, the majority of the farm coöperatives established under its provisions would continue to function, although their growth might not be as rapid.

As a Nebraska publisher, McKelvie reminded the advertising council of the importance of the rural field.

"Surveys indicate," he said, "that small towns in the United States do 15 billions annually in business, or 30 per cent of the retail business of the country.

"Industry largely is not sufficiently conscious of the small town trade, and neglect of this field has wide effects.

2 BOY VICTIMS HALT RACKET; SUSPECT SEIZED

Two juvenile newsboys whom Frank Ruzek fooled by posing as a postal inspector got even yesterday with the result that Ruzek, who is 22 years old and lives at 816 West Madison street was seized by Town Hall police and may be turned over to federal authorities.

Ruzek's racket, police charged, was to terrify newsboys by flashing a badge and representing himself as a postal agent. He would accuse the boys of rifling mail boxes. Then he would demand money and caution the boys to remain where they were while he called police. That would be the last seen of him.

Two of his victims, Gunnar Johnson, 12 years old, 856 Cornelia street, and Gordon Gillispie, 14, of 3544 Reta street, vowed to upset his scheme. Yesterday they spotted Ruzek standing in a doorway at 3619 North Halsted street. They notified Ray Hoover, 4157 Clarendon avenue, a newspaper circulating man, and he called police.

ONCE WEALTHY BROKER HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

H. E. A. Olson, 56 years old, who, the police say, was worth $2,000,000 before the 1929 market crash, was in a detective bureau cell last night unable to post a $5,000 bond on a charge of embezzlement.

Olson, who now lives at 517 West 61st street, was president of the H. E. A. Olson Securities company. The company had offices at 30 South La Salle street until it closed six months ago. The charge against Olson was made by Frank Karlson, 4924 North Whipple street.

Karlson charged that he gave Olson a $4,500 mortgage to sell in September, 1930, and never received the money for it. Olson admitted receiving the mortgage, the police said, but asserted that another man defrauded him of it.

JAPAN CHARGES U. S. HAD FINGER IN LEAGUE'S PIE

Sees American Hand in Note of Protest.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Feb. 19 (Friday).—(AP)—Premier Inukai called upon Emperor Hirohito at the palace this afternoon and was understood to have submitted important decisions made by the government concerning Shanghai. His visit followed a conference with Minister of War Araki and Foreign Minister Yoshizawa.

TOKIO, Feb. 18.—(AP)—American influence in framing the first draft of the league of nations' latest note of protest regarding Shanghai was charged by Japanese foreign office circles today.

"There are strong indications that America had a finger in this pie," a spokesman said, basing his belief on what he called official information.

The first draft was much milder in tone, he admitted, than the note finally sent to Tokio appealing to Japan's "supreme sense of honor" to end hostilities at Shanghai out of respect for Article X. of the league covenant.

Has Legal Objections.

This action of the twelve neutral members of the council was described as irregular, illegal and "entirely inadmissible."

"A few members of the council now are empowerd to act in its name," the spokesman continued. "These twelve councilors are not diplomats accredited to Tokio, hence they have no right to address the Japanese government in the names of their respective states. We intend to stress these legal objections in our reply.

"The document has created a most unpleasant impression here and it is unacceptable because it is addressed to Japan alone. Those who sent it assume thereby that Japan is the aggressor, whereas the fact is that China is the aggressor.

"Such a one sided appeal is unprecedented in league history. It intimates that the Chinese are in the right. We are unable to accept any such intimation."

U. S. Denies Charges.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—(AP)—From the state department today came an emphatic denial of charges that the United States aided in framing the note of the council of the league of nations to Japan urging her to evacuate Chinese territory and respect her treaty rights.

The denial was followed by a clarification of this government's attitude toward damage to American life and property in the Shanghai international settlement during impending major clashes. It was made known that Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham informed Chinese and Japanese officials two weeks ago that both would be held responsible.

Britain Warns Both China and Japan.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Through the minister to China, who is now at Shanghai, the British government has warned the Chinese government that either side—China or Japan—will be held strictly responsible for acts such as the fatal wounding recently of two British sailors by artillery shells.

It was requested that the Chinese military authorities be given strict instructions to avoid further similar incidents. No further action in connection with the death of the two men is contemplated here, and it is assumed that the incident will be settled by payment of indemnity to the sailors' families.

Lord Ponsonby, Labor leader in the house of lords, today accused the British government of a "very serious error in judgment" in not supporting the United States in the note of Jan. 7 which, he said, forcibly reminded the Japanese of their obligations under the nine power pact and the pact of Paris.

"LAND OF PEACE" UNFURLS BANNER OF INDEPENDENCE

Manchuria Severs Tie with China.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 18.—The new republic, or Ankuo (meaning land of peace), born of military conquest, proclaimed its independence from China today and unfurled its five barred rising sun banners over Manchuria and inner Mongolia.

The executive committee of northeastern Manchuria, composed of Chinese leaders raised to high places by the army of occupation, declared an area half again as large as the Japanese empire and holding 30,000,000 people to be what is generally regarded as a protectorate of Japan.

Land of "Milk and Honey."

In flowery, classical language calling their country the land of milk and honey, the proclamation asserted:

"We have decided to sever relations with the Chinese government and to proclaim complete independence.

"The people have suffered long enough under the maladministration of military overlords. That military clique must be banished forever. The desire of the people for peace is like a starving man's hunger.

"We oppose anti-foreignism. We want friendship and peace with all nations. We are determined to maintain the policy of the open door with equal opportunity for the commerce of all peoples, thereby promoting mutual prosperity."

Dependent Upon Japan.

Normally the state is independent of Japan as well as China, but actually it is virtually dependent on the Japanese government, for it could not last a day without the protection of Gen. Shigeru Honjo's army, which obliterated Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's authority last fall.

The boundaries of Ankuo are clearly defined only on the north, the south and the east. Westward it extends vaguely into the Mongolian plains, from where a few princes came to participate in the convention. This was believed to be intentional so that its frontiers could eventually touch those of outer Mongolia, a communist republic closely allied with Moscow.

News of additional adherents to the new régime was received tonight. Gen. Ting Chao, commander of the Chinese Eastern railway guards and recent defender of Harbin against the Japanese, offered to coöperate with the government and his offer was accepted. Likewise, that picturesque bandit chieftain, "Old North Wind," whose men have lived off the country for years, offered to surrender.

How Régime Lines Up.

The principal figures in the new lineup were Gen. Ma Chan-shan, once defender of Tsitsihar and now governor of Heilungkiang; Kang Shih-yin, governor of Fengtien; Hsi-Hsai, governor of Kirin; Chang Ching-hui, governor of the Harbin district; Tang Yu-lin, governor of Jehol, and Lin-shen and Chan-wang, Mongolian princes.

Henry Pu-yi, the former Manchu Emperor Hsuan-tung, who was spirited out of Tientsin at the beginning of the Sino-Japanese trouble, is generally looked on as the leading candidate for lifetime dictator of his native land. A silver standard is planned as a temporary expedient, leading eventually to adoption of a uniform gold standard.

WATCHMAN FALLS DEAD.

Timothy J. Lorden, 50 years old, 6017 South Mozart street, a watchman for the Chicago Athletic club, fell dead of a cerebral hemorrhage yesterday morning at Wabash avenue and Madison street.

GERMAN WAR VETS TO HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE ON SUNDAY

The central committee of German War Veterans of Chicago is making arrangements for a memorial service, to be held in the Eighth Street theater next Sunday afternoon for German and Austro-Hungarian soldiers who fell in the world war. The principal speakers will be Prof. Paul Munge of Notre Dame university and Col. Thomas K. Davey, who will represent the American Legion.

3 SEIZED FOR CUTTING MONEY TO MAKE MORE

Two men and a woman, alleged to have made six $20 bills out of five by use of paste, shears, and scraps of paper, will be arraigned today before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of altering and defacing currency. They were arrested yesterday in the Lincoln hotel, 1812 North Clark street, by secret service men under Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan.

The prisoners are Louis Martin, his wife, Mary, and Michael Galla. According to the government, they have confessed that they came from Los Angeles a month ago, scattering more than 500 fraudulent bills en route.

Their method consisted of snipping a half inch to an inch out of a good bank note. A brown paper patch would make the bill passable.

Philip Snowden Ill; Must Stay Home Several Days

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Philip Snowden, Viscount Ickornshaw, who was reported yesterday to be suffering from a chill, was described this evening as "not so well," and may be confined to his home for several days. He is 68.

TWO DEATHS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS MAKE TOLL 152

Two deaths yesterday in auto accidents raised the 1931 Cook county toll to 152. The victims:

Miss Angeline Dzuirgot, 18 years old, 1303 West Huron street. Died at her home of injuries suffered in an automobile accident on July 4, 1931.

Jacob Kranasz, 40 years old, 1427 Emma street, a mechanic. Died at St. Mary's hospital from hurts sustained Jan. 29 when he was run down at Noble and Augusta streets.

Anthony Torrez, 22 years old, of Rondout, was fatally injured last night when he was struck in Rockland road at Rondout by an automobile driven by Robert Thomas, of Libertyville. He died shortly afterward at the Condell hospital in Libertyville.

Mrs. Bessie Blackman, 48 years old, of 374 Oak street, Glen Ellyn, a clubwoman of that suburb, was fatally injured yesterday when the automobile she was driving collided with a taxicab in St. Charles road, at Poplar street, Elmhurst. Herbert Klenman of Elmhurst, driver of the cab, was ordered held for the inquest.

Leonard A. McGraw, 27 years old, 6728 Newgard avenue, yesterday explained to Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston that he did not enjoy the time he spent in the Evanston jail. After his arrest on charges of speeding last Feb. 9, he said, he was unable to post a $25 bond and so was held. After remaining in a cell several hours, he said, he walked out. He telephoned that he would appear for trial. Judge Porter fined McGraw $5 and costs for speeding 40 miles an hour in West Railroad avenue.

Warren Howes, 1726 East 83d place, a plumber, was recommended held to the grand jury for manslaughter at an inquest into the death of James Lynch, 46 years old, 8524 Dante avenue, a furniture mover. Lynch was crossing Cottage Grove avenue at East 67th street when Howes' car struck him, knocking him beneath the wheels of the trailer of a truck.

LEAGUE FIDGETS AS TOKIO IGNORES WARNING ON WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 18.—The report that Japan has finally delivered her ultimatum to China and has made no effort to answer the league of Nations' appeal for moderation and to respect her international obligations caused great anxiety here today.

Naotake Sato, Japanese spokesman, who last night said he thought Tokio would answer the appeal by this morning, today said nothing. He brought to the league council his "observations" on the second report of the league's Shanghai investigating commission, and while doing it heard a legal commission, appointed to examine his technical objections to China's convocation of the league assembly, decide against him. Sato indicated that Japan had abandoned any further efforts to obstruct the assembly meeting.

Some of the Japanese delegation explain the delay of the arrival of Tokio's reply to the league on the grounds that there is a lot of excitement over the elections next Saturday. Others hint that perhaps Tokio has decided that "appeals" do not require any formal answer. The Japanese tonight said that "most of the claims of the Shanghai investigating commission were not quite exact." Excesses by the Japanese troops were formally denied.

GUILTY IN RAPE CASE.

CUT ARMS TO OUR LEVEL! GERMANY TELLS NATIONS

Takes Stand for Equal Disarmament.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 18.—Germany politely but firmly reminded the disarmament conference today why it was called. Submitting specific proposals for disamament, she set for all other powers the standard imposed upon her by the Versailles treaty.

Count Rudolph Nadolny, ambassador to Turkey and head of the German delegation in the absence of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, produced the suggestions which were consistently presented at the preparatory conference and as persistently turned down.

Nadolny's speech was novel in its application of the Versailles yardstick to all the navies of the world. Germany, her spokesman said, desires other nations to scrap their capital ships and, if they can build them, get along with those similar to Germany's.

Would Ban Big Ships.

"The German delegation declares now that it is disposed to adhere to the complete abolition of capital ships as proposed by Italian, Spanish, and other delegations," said Nadolny, "and it is in agreement with those that proposed absolute prohibition of aircraft carriers and submarines. It is prepared to accept proposals which go even further."

He asked not only that ships be limited to 10,000 tons, but that guns be limited to a caliber of 280 millimeters [about 11 inches.]

"Maximum tonnage of the various type of vessels shall be reduced simultaneously with proportional reduction of total tonnage," according to the German project.

Objects to Draft Treaty.

The Germans object, Nadolny said, to the draft convention as supported by Great Britain, France, United States and Italy as a basis for discussion. He ran in all the German ideas on consideration for trained reserves as part of a country's military strength.

He advocated placing a ban on conscription and the destruction of fortifications, field works and the like which "owing to their proximity to the frontier constitute a direct menace to a neighboring country and possibly obstruct measures for the prevention of war."

Limitation of budgets proposed by the American delegation after a year of opposition, was opposed by the Germans. Nadolny explained that the problems of the present crisis show that with the continual deviations of purchasing power it would be next to impossible to establish such a basis of disarmament.

Asks Equal Treatment.

The ambassador reiterated Germany's insistence on equal treatment with the victors in the war. He objected to the French formula for security before effecting disarmament.

The Mexicans, it is reported, are drawing up the quaintest disarmament plan yet. They intend to legalize the "conscientious objector." According to this plan any citizen of any country by signing a convention and paying a fee would get a card immunizing him from service in an offensive war. In a defensive war, however, he would have to serve.

By dignifying the profession of a conscientious objector, the Mexicans claim that millions of citizens would go on record as being unavailable in event of an attack on a neighbor. This, the Mexicans hold, surely would dampen the ardor of any government proposing to declare war.

Haiti's delegate, Constantin Mayard, in the longest speech of the conference—7,000 words—said that Haiti is for the French world police plan because she owes her blood, civilization and political system to France. At the same time, he said, Haiti is backing a system which would protect her from the "bullying" of the United States.

SENATE ACTION ON WORLD COURT EXPECTED SOON

Opponents Sure They Can Win.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—The question of American adherence to the world court will be taken up in the senate foreign relations committee next Wednesday with every probability that the controversy will be reported out and carried to the senate floor.

The plans for this action, taken at the instigation of Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], pro-court committee member, were made known today.

With the world situation what it is, and particularly in the light of the league's failure to halt the Sino-Japanese conflict, foes of American ratification of the court protocols are ready and willing that the test should come now. They declare that when the showdown comes, there will be more than the one-third necessary to defeat the court.

In the last congress anti-court senators claimed they could count on 28 unfavorable votes. They now assert that this number has been considerably augmented.

Senator Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority floor leader, said:

"If they want it beaten now is the time to bring it up. The country is decidedly against the court."

The world court protocols, embodying the Root formula for American participation, have lain in the senate foreign relations committee since their transmission to the senate by President Hoover on Dec. 10, 1930. A week after receiving them the committee, by a vote of 10 to 9, decided to postpone a report until after the close of the short session. A later vote taken on a motion to reconsider by Senator Walsh, reaffirmed this position.

"TIN BOX" FARLEY RULING MAY SEAL ROOSEVELT FATE

Tammany to Fight Him if He Fires Sheriff.

New York, Feb. 18.—[Special.]—As they await Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's decision in the ouster proceedings against Sheriff Thomas M. ["Tin Box"] Farley, Tammany men here and Democratic leaders throughout the nation are concerned more over the political consequences certain to accrue from whatever is done than over the immediate outcome of the case.

It is the conviction in all quarters that the result, whichever way it goes, will have an important and far reaching effect upon the governor's political future. Mr. Roosevelt has been positive in asserting repeatedly that politics has no place in the determination of Sheriff Farley's fate; that the case is one of fact and merit, not of political intrigue, and that his decision would not be influenced in the least by politics.

A Division of Sentiment.

Tammany is divided about evenly in its opinion of what the governor will do. Some believe the governor's line of questioning and the standard of conduct for public officials he laid down can mean only that the sheriff must go. Others equally are certain that the case was not proved against the city official.

There is a similar division of sentiment and opinion regarding the political results. Wise men in the hall predict that if Farley is removed it will mean, beyond question, that Roosevelt cannot expect Tammany's support for President nor hope to have the New York delegation in the national convention.

The sheriff just back from his trial on charges growing out of the Seabury graft investigation today was in Flower hospital as the result of burns he suffered while ill last week when he fell against a radiator in his home.

Infection Losing Ground.

The sheriff was ordered to the hospital by Dr. S. A. Chilian, who said he discovered a spreading infection caused by the burns.

Farley went to the hospital immediately upon his return from Albany. Today, the infection was losing ground, but it is probable that the sheriff must remain there for several days.

Dr. Chilian said he did not know whether Farley would be able to appear in court Tuesday when the grand larceny charge against him goes to trial.

The sheriff refused to receive reporters himself, but the physician said that his general physicial condition was good and that he appeared to be rallying.

CROWDED BUS RUNS WILD; CRASHES INTO 3 TAXICABS; 20 HURT

New York, Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Its driver incapacitated and a detective, who happened to be a passenger, at the wheel and able to steer but not to stop it, a bus containing about 25 persons ran wild through two busy Brooklyn blocks today, stopping only when the policeman deliberately drove it into three parked taxicabs.

Eleven persons who were in the bus, including the driver and the detective, were so seriously hurt that they were removed to Kings county hospital, as were also the drivers who were sitting at the wheels of the three cabs. Six or eight other bus passengers received treatment on the scene.

The bus, operating on one of the B. M. T. routes, was proceeding east on Church avenue, when a first accident incapacitated the driver. A car came around a corner and struck the rear end of the bus. The driver lost control, and the bus went up on the sidewalk, striking a telegraph pole.

For two blocks the bus traveled its perilous course.

The detective saw three cabs idle by the curb at Gravesend avenue and decided that they would do as a bumper.

With a terrific smash, which broke every pane of glass in the bus and ripped the cabs apart, the wild ride ended.

ROOSEVELT AID HERE; PREDICTS SWIFT VICTORY

Sees Governor Gaining in Nomination Race.

BY PARKE BROWN.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic state committee of New York and campaign manager for Franklin D. Roosevelt, came to Chicago yesterday to look over the pre-convention situation in several middle western states. He predicted Gov. Roosevelt's nomination on the first ballot.

J. A. FARLEY.

"Our confidence in the outcome," he said, "grows stronger and stronger. Offers of new support are coming in every day and we are as confident as ever that the governor will be nominated on the first ballot."

He denied reports from the east that he had come here to open western headquarters for Roosevelt. This report, it was suggested, was due to the fact that a second purpose of his visit here was to arrange for hotel accomodations for the Roosevelt central group, including the New York governor, if he determines to attend the convention.

Mr. Farley and George W. Harder, secretary of the New York state committee, who accompanied him, made those arrangements at the Congress hotel, and it is believed that hotel will be the center of the Roosevelt activities.

Pays Visit to Cermak.

The New York chairman visited Mayor Cermak at the city hall and talked briefly with Thomas F. Donovan, Illinois chairman, whom he is to see again today. Other Illinoisians with whom he hopes to talk are Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman, County Clerk Sweitzer and other old friends.

Among the chiefs from nearby states with whom Mr. Farley expects to confer before starting eastward again this evening are the state chairman of Iowa and Wisconsin, R. F. Mitchell of Fort Dodge, and O. A. LaBudde of Milwaukee.

Custer Rally Tomorrow.

A rally at Galesburg tomorrow will mark the opening of the campaign of Omer N. Custer for the Republican nomination for governor. Galesburg has been the candidate's home for 38 years and his friends and neighbors are expected to stage a big turnout in which state officials and Republican leaders are to join. It is understood Gov. Emmerson may not be present, but most of his cabinet will attend.

Worker Should Have Rum Since Rich Do, Judge Says

"As long as the wealthy drink, I don't see why the working man should be deprived," said Judge Thomas A. Green in the jury court yesterday as he dismissed a charge of violation of the liquor law against Adam Krolikowski, 61 years old, owner of an alleged saloon at 3015 East 83d place. Policeman James Little testified that he arrested Krolikowski two weeks ago on a search warrant.

CHICAGOANS FILE FOR NOMINATION IN AUDITOR RACE

Increasingly persistent rumors that State Auditor Oscar Nelson will not seek reëlection were accepted yesterday as the explanation for new warmth in the early stages of the race for the Republican nomination for his office.

During the day three Chicagoans filed nominating petitions for the auditor's post. They were Robert M. Perbohner, former aid to the last Republican mayor of Chicago; Thomas J. Houston, former president of the city civil service commission, and James B. Blackman. Mr. Perbohner issued a statement in reference to his candidacy.

"I maintain," he said, "that if the banking laws of the state of Illinois had been honestly and rigidly enforced without fear or favor there would have been no bank failures and no loss to hundreds of thousands of depositors."

Renewed activity by supporters of David H. Jackson, former head of the state securities division, a former Lundin man, also was noted.

Jurors Return Suicide Verdict in Rehm Death

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of suicide at an inquest into the death of Frank A. Rehm, 59 years old, retired capitalist, who shot and killed himself on Wednesday in his room at the Drake hotel. The jury found that Mr. Rehm had been despondent since the death of his brother, William H. Rehm, nearly a year ago. The widow, Mrs. Clara Grommes Rehm, who arrived in Chicago yesterday morning from France, did not appear at the inquest.

STOP ROOSEVELT CRY SWEEPING OVER VERMONT

Bitter Battle with Smith Men Looms.

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—The determination of the supporters of Alfred E. Smith in many sections of the country, especially New York and Massachusets, that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt shall not obtain the party's presidential nomination has spread with tremendous rapidity to Vermont. In fact, there is a good deal of bitterness being manifested by the followers of Mr. Smith in the Green Mountain state as well as throughout the northern part of New Hampshire.

There is, as well, a considerable amount of complaint on the part of many of the Roosevelt supporters. Some of the Roosevelt leaders have gone to rather extreme ends in criticizing Mr. Smith and his supporters. Smarting under the statewide criticism of the Vermont Democratic committee in indorsing the Empire state governor at a preliminary gathering, the Roosevelt men have launched severe verbal attacks on Mr. Smith. He is accused of being ungrateful and widely termed by Roosevelt supporters as the Bryan of the Democratic party.

Smith Forces Bitter.

On the other hand, the Smith supporters are equally as bitter. They maintain that Mr. Smith was stronger by far a month ago than he was in 1928, while they say that President Hoover's popularity has unquestionably decreased.

Indications are multiplying that this Smith-Roosevelt feud will not only mean a bitter fight in Vermont but will ruin the exceptional bright prospects held for the party in Vermont

McAdoo for Garner.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 18.—(AP)—William Gibbs McAdoo today announced a preference for John N. Garner of Texas for the Democratic presidential nomination. The former secretary of the treasury, who was himself a candidate for the nomination in 1924, said that under the speaker of the house all elements of the party should be able to unite.

Gov. Murray Hailed in Texas.

Collinsville, Tex., Feb. 18.—(AP)—This town, where Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma was born, hailed him at a homecoming celebration today as "the next President of the United States."

His addresss explaining his political credo left the impression it was the platform on which he would seek the Democratic presidential nomination. He is expected formally to announce his candidacy next Sunday, after the Oklahoma state convention on Saturday.

"If the Oklahoma state convention makes me chairman of its delegation to the Democratic national convention," he declared, "I'll write a plank in the party platform, even if I have to bring out a minority report, that will represent the real will of the people and scuttle the ship of any Wall street candidate who asks for the party nomination."

ATTACK MADE ON 11 MILLION FUND FOR DRY FORCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—A wet Republican from the middle west today told the wet Democrats from the east and the north that they'd better tell the folks at home that although their recent wet votes had given the Democrats a majority in the house the house was ruled by dry Democrats from the south.

LEONIDAS C. DYER.

Leonidas C. Dyer of Missouri was the gentleman who did the telling, as he objected to the proposed $11,000,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement for the fiscal year of 1933.

"The speaker's a dry," shouted Representative Dyer. "The chairman of the judiciary committee is a dry. And the chairman of the appropriations committee is a dry; he recommended this $11,000,000 appropriation without crossing off a dollar."

Assails Dry Law Régime.

Mr. Dyer had been making a bitter anti-prohibition speech. He had been declaring that because of prohibition "the federal government had put the stigma of criminality on a million people" while state governments had classed another million as criminals.

He scorned the high appropriations for "an attempted enforcement"; he listed the millions spent for new jails to house prohibition violators; he condemned "the greatest spy system in the world."

Quoting from the opening paragraph of a biography of Wayne B. Wheeler, he read how "he had controlled six congresses, dictated to two Presidents, held the balance of power in both parties, and had been the most powerful personage in the United States."

Then Mr. Dyer shouted, "But the people will no longer be tyrannized by a little handful of propagandists whose principal interest is in the money they can squeeze out of the public."

Agree on Beer Measure.

The wets in the house for the first time this session today reached a virtual agreement upon a bill to legalize beer. The measure, framed by Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.] and Representative O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.] of the "wet bloc" calls for beer with alcoholic content of 3.2 per cent [by volume], to be sold in bottles under strict supervisions. It provides for a tax of 4 cents a bottle.

An item in yesterday's TRIBUNE stated that James Lynch, who was fatally injured when he was knocked off his feet by an automobile and rolled beneath the trailer of a truck, lived at 8534 Dante avenue. Mrs. Victor Bauer of the Dante avenue address said yesterday that Lynch did not live there.

CHILD IN PAPER BOX KILLED BY POLICE AUTO

John Elliott, 9, climbed into it. His companions closed the top and tied it shut with string. They attached a rope to the carton and started down the street.

"We are taking John for a ride," they called.

Just as the carton was being pulled by the entrance to a police station, a towing car drove out. It was driven by Patrolman Albert Ott.

Ott, trying to avoid the three children, who scattered, drove over the carton. There was a cry—then silence.

Policemen carried John into the station. He was dead.

95% of all the coal burned in Chicago homes

In Chicago there are hundreds of dealers, peddlers, brokers, and jack-of-all-trades, striving for the fuel buyers' dollar with special inducements, so-called "bargains," and suave salesmanship. But every winter, 95% of all Chicago families who buy coal for their homes buy it from members of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association.

WHY? . . . .

This overwhelming verdict shows that Chicago families know their coal—know a full dollar's worth of value when they see it, and know a sincere and experienced coal man when they deal with one. 95 out of every 100 Chicago coal buyers can't be wrong! Some of them have gone elsewhere for their coal and have come back sorry that they made the experiment; some of them have tried expensive equipment for burning more costly fuels than coal and have ripped out the equipment after they have figured up their first year's bills—sadder, wiser, and poorer.

From whom are you buying your coal? It will pay you to find out. It will pay you to deal with a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association. He pledges you full weight and honest grading of the coal you buy, and this Association backs up his pledge with a guarantee that has been proved genuine.

He can help you make a real saving on your fuel bill—not with dubious "bargains" but with honest values and sound advice on the type and size of coal that your plant will burn with the greatest efficiency. He owns his own railroad siding and yard. He has selected from the best mines the coal which he stores in sufficient quantities to be ready for any demands you may make.

His are the scales that weigh the coal; his are the trucks that deliver it; his the means and the will to assume complete responsibility for your satisfaction.

Chicago families have said with a vote of 95 to 5 that you will do well to make certain that your coal merchant is a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association. If you are not absolutely sure, call the Association's office, State 9723, and they will gladly tell you.

do you blame common ills on you may lack good resistance!

You may think being housed up explains why you are ill oftener now than at any other time of year. You may think bad weather is to blame.

These only contribute to the real trouble. The germs you catch from other people cause most of your usual ills.

Being overheated or chilled lowers the vitality you need to resist them. It is the combination of germs and poor resisting power that is dangerous.

Why not try to escape common ills this spring by building up good resistance?

Squibb Adex Tablets—a new concentrate of the vitamins in cod-liver oil—offer such a pleasant way.

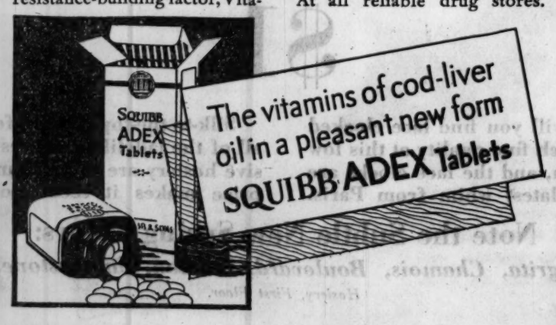
They contain the important resistance-building factor, Vitamin A. This vitamin helps to maintain resistance against infections of the nose and throat, it has been found.

Squibb Adex Tablets also supply Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin which tones the system.

In fact, you obtain the same benefits from Adex Tablets as from Squibb Cod-Liver Oil. And most people know the value of good cod-liver oil as a health-builder!

Each Adex tablet contains as much resistance-building Vitamin A and Vitamin D as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil.

Help to protect yourself against common ills by taking Squibb Adex Tablets regularly every day! Small, sugar-coated and easy to take. At all reliable drug stores.



ROCKFORD JUDGE ASSAILS 'DOUBLE JEOPARDY' DRYS

Raps Prohibition Threats to State Courts.

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—A broadside against the attempts of dry agents to coerce state courts into imposing fines and sentences to their liking was delivered here today by County Judge George T. Liddell. Judge Liddell is a former minister and a dry.

Judge Liddell's criticism was embodied in a letter to Amos W. Woodcock, director of enforcement at Washington. The jurist charged that when a decision in a prohibition case did not suit the federal agents, it was their practice to prosecute the defendant in the federal court.

Hard to Satisfy.

After the coöperation of local officers had been obtained by the dry agents for their raids, Judge Liddell said, the cases are filed in the state courts. "But the undercover agents still continue to urge forward the prosecutions," he asserted, "and make known to the court through the medium of local officers or attorneys the amount of fine or the term of imprisonment which will be 'satisfactory' to them. Their threat is that, unless the court satisfies the federal agent's idea of an adequate penalty, a second prosecution in federal courts will follow.

"I raise the question specifically as to whether or not the policy of the federal government is to encourage on the part of federal employés such an attitude toward local or state courts. If so, I am convinced that it is a policy which is in flagrant violation of the fundamental principles of American government."

Cites Agent's Duty.

Judge Liddell declared that it was the duty of a federal undercover agent, in the rôle of a complaining witness, to abide by the court's judgment and stand in the same relation to the court as any other witness.

"If he does not choose to do so," continued the judge's letter, "he should go direct to a federal court. He is not required to bring his cases before state tribunals. But if the federal man does elect to apply to a state court, he should not do so with an open threat of 'further action' unless he is permitted to usurp the powers of the court and dictate 'an adequate penalty.'

"Even though this attitude may not be an open and direct contempt, it certainly is a reflection upon the integrity of the court, which ill becomes a representative of the federal government."

May Refuse to Hear Cases.

If this condition of things is permitted to endure, according to Judge Liddell, the only course open is for the state court to refuse to hear cases which are the fruits of a federal agent's work, for the preservation of the independence of the state courts against any invasion of their authority leaves no alternative.

"As one judge of a state court, I do not propose to seek the advice of any federal undercover investigator and ask him what penalty I must impose in any liquor prosecution," the judge's letter read in its conclusion.

Judge Liddell was elected to the bench in 1930. He attended the theological seminary at Princeton university in 1915, became an ordained minister and served from 1915 to 1919 as pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church in Rockford. He also was a lawyer and engaged in law practice in Rockford after resigning his pulpit. He was city attorney several times prior to his election as county judge.

Victor Needs Carpenter, Not Doctor, for His Leg

Policeman Joe Casey saw a man fall and clutch at his leg yesterday on the sidewalk at 43d street and Ashland avenue. "My leg's broken," the man said. He was taken to the New City police station where he identified himself as Victor Gregory, 1521 West 17th street. "Are you in much pain?" asked Casey, as he pulled up a trouser leg to look at the fractured limb. It was wooden. "What you need is a carpenter and not a doctor," remarked Casey as he took Gregory home in the patrol wagon.

Chicagoan Gets Post

JAMES H. DOUGLAS JR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—President Hoover today transmitted to the senate the nomination of James H. Douglas Jr. of Chicago to be first assistant secretary of the treasury, a post left vacant when Arthur A. Ballantine was promoted to undersecretary.

Mr. Douglas is a partner in Field, Glore & Co., investment bankers. His father, who died in 1930, was chairman of the executive committee of the Quaker Oats company. He was graduated from Princeton in 1920, and from Harvard law school in 1924. He practiced law with Winston, Strawn & Shaw for five years, and in 1929 joined Field, Glore & Co. He is 33 years old.

Mr. Douglas was married in 1927 to Miss Grace McGann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGann of Lake Forest, and a great-granddaughter of the late Senator Charles B. Farwell. They have a son, James H. Douglas III., 2 years old.

His appointment to the treasury post was recommended by Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], Silas Strawn, and other prominent Chicagoans. He has never held political office before.

Walter Ross of Ross & Browne, Chicago real estate firm, yesterday was appointed Chicago and Cook county chairman of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization which was formed at the request of President Hoover to conduct a campaign against hoarding. A chairman to act for downstate Illinois will be named shortly.

THREE BANDITS SEIZE $9,000 IN STORE PAY ROLL

Three bandits whipped out revolvers at the Monroe street entrance of the Wieboldt department store at Monroe street and Ogden boulevard and robbed two employés of a $9,000 pay roll yesterday afternoon. The trio escaped on foot.

The victims, Alex Kozlowski, 2822 [illegible]th Fairfield avenue, a messenger for the store, and Gustav Grabowski, 1312 Blackhawk street, employed in the maintenance department, had just alighted from a taxicab after a trip to the bank.

Kozlowski was carrying the money in an envelope. "Hand over that pay roll," demanded one bandit. No revolvers had been displayed. "Is this a joke," said Kozlowski. "This is a holdup," said the leader as the bandits pulled out their revolvers.

An hour later Sergt. Walter Kelly and his squad pursued three men, who answered the description of the bandits, in their large car, but lost them in traffic.

TINKHAM DARES CANNON TO PRESS SUIT FOR LIBEL

Calls Bishop a "Spurious Moral Leader."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Representative Gorge H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.], whom Bishop James Cannon Jr. has called a "blustering, cowardly congressman," got up on the floor of the house this afternoon and called the bishop a "spurious, self-designated moral leader," and "an ecclesiastical whitened sepulchre."

GEO. H. TINKHAM. [A. P. Photo.]

Then the congressman, who hunts lions for a pastime, dared the bishop who fought Al Smith in the last campaign, to try his $500,000 libel suit against the representative, growing out of Mr. Tinkham's charges on and off the floor of the house that the bishop was "a shameless violator of the federal corrupt practices act."

Representative Tinkham told his colleagues he had waived all congressional immunity, and would continue to waive all congressional immunity. He is "rarin'" to go to the witness stand in a court of justice, he intimated, and tell what he knows of Bishop Cannon's activities in the anti-Smith campaign down south; and he is equally eager to have the bishop on the witness stand.

Referring to Bishop Cannon's recent escape from a federal trial, on the grounds of a faulty indictment due to the omission of the allegation that Miss Ada Burroughs, his former secretary, knew of the transfer of the funds alleged to have violated the federal corrupt practices act, Representative Tinkham had this to say:

"Bishop Cannon apparently will escape confinement at the federal penitentiary at Atlanta by employing the same methods invoked by notorious gunmen and professional criminals, namely, by making a technical objection to the criminal indictment. But it is unusual even for gunmen and professional criminals to seek shelter behind a woman."

When the laughter had subsided Mr. Tinkham proceeded to outline the Cannon case.

KICK AND BEAT WOMAN, 74; THEN STEAL HER PURSE

Citizens early this morning arrested one of two thieves who kicked and beat a 74 year old woman when she resisted their efforts to seize her purse. He is Noble W. Jahnke, 21 years old, of 1518 Mohawk street, who recently served nine months in the Bridewell.

The victim of the beating was Miss Cecelia Rosendahl, 1626 Wright street, a maid. She was returning home from the Moody Bible institute when Jahnke, another man and a woman accosted her.

They informed her that her niece, Mrs. Ida Benson, was ill in the county hospital and wished to see her. When she turned to accompany them they seized her purse after beating her. Alex and Harry Seiple, 1638 McHenry street, brothers, saw the attack and caught Jahnke. He said his companions were Frank Peterson, 35, and Lucille Hannon, 32, both of 4004 Clarendon avenue. They were arrested. Miss Hannon knew Miss Rosendahl.

THE PACIFIC TREATIES ARE NULL.

What has happened in China since September makes it apparent that the United States should reconsider the treaties signed at the Washington conference. They were proposed and accepted in illusions of good faith which have been dissipated. The trust which the United States put in them has been proved entirely unreliable.

Article XIX. of Chapter I. of the naval treaty, limiting the tonnage of capital ships, stipulates that the United States shall not change the status quo in its possessions west of the Hawaiian and Aleutian islands. There are, of course, similar restrictions applied to certain possessions of Great Britain and Japan, but the prohibition against additional fortifications leaves the Philippine islands without even an approximation of adequate defense.

Such a condition might have been tolerable if the treaties had been scrupulously upheld, but the very important one, the one protecting China from further seizures of territory, has been shattered in such a fashion as to make all the others totally undependable. Sophistries cannot put an honest face upon this situation. It is unnecessary to bring a moral indictment against the Japanese military party responsible for the disregard of solemn engagements. Criticism of Japanese good faith has not mended any of the broken eggs, but further reliance upon the scheme of protections dependent upon good faith would be foolish. It might prove to be criminal.

If one treaty can be torn up another can be. No part of the international structure in the far east is stronger than another. The United States is relying upon the same sort of an agreement for the protection of the Philippines that it relied upon for the protection of Chinese administrative and territorial integrity. Japan, without an attempt to use the nine power treaty, put its army divisions in Manchuria and Shanghai. Its statesmen frankly say that the United States is visionary and that Chinese government is a nullity. Consequently China deserves no consideration. Whatever else may be said of this realism, it at least defines the value of the far east treaties.

The prohibition which keeps the United States from putting its house in order in the Philippines is entangled in the limitation of navies, although further touched upon in other treaties. The naval treaty has a specified duration until 1936 with a provision for termination upon two years' notice. Two years from now the United States, under the agreement itself, can notify the other signatories that it will not renew the agreement. A point might be made that inasmuch as the various treaties are in fact each conditional upon another the abrogation of one invalidates them all. In truth, such is the case, and Japan has abrogated by violent disregard one of its agreements. The treaty structure in the far east was a whole composed of harmonious parts. Take away one part and the structure falls.

Article XIX. of the naval treaty, divested of good faith, is a threat to American security so long as this country remains responsible for the Philippines. Good faith does not protect them and they have no other defense. America is apparently unwilling or unready to withdraw from the far east and make Hawaii its outpost. Consequently it has hostages in Japanese hands. It should clear its mind of vain ideas and accept the lesson which Japan has given it. It should put its islands in a defensible condition or get out of them. To do the former it must abrogate a treaty. To do the latter it must retreat. To do neither is insane.

MR. HOOVER ON FEDERAL ECONOMY.

Mr. Hoover, having discovered that there is a widespread popular demand for a reduction of government expenditures, has sent a message to congress recommending the reorganization of the executive departments and the independent bureaus and commissions.

All that Mr. Hoover has said is true. It was true in 1921 when he referred to reorganization as a "sweeping and fundamental necessity." It was true in 1924 when he testified to the same effect before a congressional committee, in 1925 when he made an address on the subject before the United States Chamber of Commerce, and in 1928 when he accepted the nomination for the presidency and intimated he would do something toward reorganizing the government if he were elected. Mr. Hoover recommended executive reorganization to congress at the opening of the present session, but unfortunately he has never found it possible to make a fight for his scheme or any other.

He has been content to talk about it rather than battle for its adoption. In consequence the initiative has been taken from him. It now belongs to Mr. Garner and other Democrats who appear determined to achieve where Mr. Hoover was content to muse.

As a matter of fact, the Democratic proposals go farther in the direction of economy than the President has recommended. He wishes merely to bring about such savings and such added efficiency as will come from the consolidation of existing departments and bureaus. The Democratic scheme recognizes the need for such consolidations, but also recognizes that the savings to be achieved will be negligible in comparison with the amount of the deficit, to say nothing of the amount of the annual expenditures. If real savings are to be brought about there must be an end to paternalism in the federal government. It is not enough to combine two bureaus each spending $10,000,000 in order to save the few thousand dollars paid in salaries to one bureau chief, his chief clerk, and secretary. Both bureaus should be suppressed if it is possible to get along without them.

One illustration will suffice: To gain greater efficiency the whole business of federal prohibition enforcement was handed over to the department of justice. Formerly the treasury department hired the dry agents, while the justice department took care of prosecutions. What the gain in efficiency may have been is a matter for debate. But the costs of prohibition enforcement are higher now than ever before, and the budget calls for a still larger expenditure next year. Obviously a mere reorganization of the departments and bureaus can be no more than a beginning. Abolition and deflation are of far more importance if real savings are to be recorded.

HOMEMADE RELIEF.

The legislature adjourned for sixty days without completing a program for revenue relief for Chicago. This is a matter for regret, but not for despair.

In a sense, the adjournment is salutary. It has returned the initiative to Chicago and specifically to the officials of its local governments. If they are worth their salt they will not fold their hands. Fortunately, Mayor Cermak has shown no disposition to surrender.

An inventory of the situation discloses empty treasuries and unpaid employés. They cannot be paid with laws. There is no money in the treasuries for a number of reasons, but most important of all of them is the simple and often overlooked fact that the bills for taxes which should have been paid last April are not yet in the hands of the taxpayers. And until those bills for 1930 taxes go out there isn't going to be any money in the treasuries, regardless of what the legislature does or does not do. This fact seems, at last, to have been recognized in the determination to send out the bills.

It is too bad, it is inexcusable, that the legislature has not taken action which would have encouraged taxpayers to meet their 1930 bills when received. But the legislature's failure does not excuse the county officials for not having sent out the bills. Obviously, that was the first thing to be done. The returns from the taxpayers may prove disappointing, but it is not to be doubted that some revenue will be received and, to that extent, the present acute difficulties will be relieved.

And that is not all that the officials of the local governments can do. They will find that the amounts paid on 1930 taxes will increase directly in proportion to the willingness displayed by the tax spenders to reduce governmental costs to the absolute minimum required for the maintenance of essential services. The taxpayers are enraged over the amount of their taxes; the unequal distribution of the tax burden is the legal basis for their formal complaints, but their real complaint is against the crushing amounts charged against them. If any assurance is given that waste and graft are to be eliminated, the taxpayers will be encouraged to do their part.

As long as the county board laughs at the notion of cutting its expenditures to fit its probable income, taxpayers may be expected to laugh at the county collector. And, needless to say, the bankers will laugh at the officials who come around with tax warrants for sale. The credit of the local governments will improve when the tax eaters restrain their appetites and not before.

The notion has gained ground that not a single property owner intends to pay another cent in taxes until the legislature approves this or that scheme for issuing bonds. That is nonsense. Every property owner knows that taxes are a first lien on his property and hundreds of taxpayers have reserved the money to pay their bills when presented. They know that the sheriff cannot be stalled off indefinitely. Sooner or later he will collect the tax bills which are not paid voluntarily. When government officials show moderation in spending, the taxpayers will do their part.

SEND WILEY TO CONGRESS.

Charles L. Wiley has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to congress in the 7th district. He should get it, for he represents a great issue. Mr. Wiley last fall was held to the federal grand jury. His offense was asking leniency for the janitor of the building in which he lives, who had made some home brew for a gathering of Legion members at Mr. Wiley's request. Prohibition agents had entered the janitor's apartment without warrant and found a quantity of beer. Mr. Wiley defended him and, held to the grand jury, he seeks vindication by his fellow citizens. His platform expresses his cause. It advocates repeal of the 18th amendment, no appropriations for enforcement, investigation of dry law enforcement and investigation to determine what influences are exerted upon government to bring about appointment of judges and prosecutors committed to prohibition.

Mr. Wiley is a good citizen, with the best of causes. He should make a representative the good citizenship of the 7th district deserves.

MINERS WANT "GOOD BEER."

[The Peoria Transcript.]

Delegates to the biennial convention of the United Mine Workers, meeting at Indianapolis, have adopted a resolution supporting the American Federation of Labor in urging modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and distribution of "good beer."

The ingenious wording of the resolution is its most interesting feature. The miners may be suspected by ultra-conservatives of radical tendencies. They may be denounced by ultra-radicals for repudiating the Kentucky strikers in Harlan county a year ago. They may be lightly dismissed by coal operators as obstructionists. But none can charge that they do not know what they want—convivially speaking. They want "good beer."

The phrase implies much. It suggests that home brew is not good beer, and it implies that beer can be "good"—a contention which will be denied by the drys.

There have been various proposals for modification of the Volstead act, but none has been as explicit as this one.

"STIMSON DRAFTS NEW NOTE Holding Japan Responsible for All Damage to U. S. Property in Shanghai."—The Trib. The Japs probably will tell Mr. Stimson that their reading of the Kellogg peace pact does not hold them responsible for acts of God, and plead contributory negligence, statute of limitation, nonsupport, habeas corpus, lack of jurisdiction, arrest of judgment, quo warranto, non culpabilis, and ex post facto. And, besides that, they didn't know it was loaded.

AND NOW GERMANY has got trouble that IS trouble. The saloonkeepers are talking of starting a beer strike. We were talking to a German in Paris two years ago and telling him that under the Sacred Eighteenth we had no beer in America. "Ach!" he gasped, "no beer? Then how do you leeve?" And now a prospect of no beer in Germany. It's a tough world.

A SCARLET SADDLE FOR PEGASUS.

(S. L.)

IV.

The shadows are nodding in Falldon Hall
(And magnolias . . . wet . . . near the garden wall);
The live-oaks rustle their mossy festoons
As the winds have swayed them a thousand moons.
She pauses a moment
To stop and pray . . .
(While under the old oaks
A horse's neigh
Shrills past the caution of tall John's glove) . . .
And then she hurries to meet her love.
When their hoofbeats pound
In the lowland South
(Like a poinsettia bud
Her soft young mouth . . .)
Tarleton rides in the scented dawn,
Hunting for Marion, come and gone
As a swamp fox leaps
Upon its prey . . .
(His broad sword flashing
Within the fray!)
And Tarleton's men, in a scarlet wave,
Are searching for some one to fill a grave!
(The little blue herons will fly forlorn
While Marion's waiting for John this morn . . .)

The shadows are weeping in Falldon Hall . . .
(And magnolias . . . white . . near the garden wall.
Brushing the winds—like her face, so pale,
And legended to carry to us this tale:
Of a scarlet tunic
Among the trees . . .
Of a pistol shot
And a horse's knees
Bending to earth in the bayou grass . . .)
Vireos flit, and the tanagers pass,
And the waters ruffle
Before the wind,
To leave but an empty
Silence behind.
Love . . . and war . . . in the low-country pines,
Marion raiding the British lines . . .
The house still stands
And the grasses bend;
The tale ends here,
For it has no end.
(No more will silver and candle's flame
Flicker and wonder and wait her name.
Like a poinsettia bud was her scarlet mouth . . .
Marion hunts them . . . down South . . . deep South.)

AH, THE SUN SHONE so brightly yesterday we rushed out into the garden to see if the sweet corn was up yet, and there cunning things were poking their cute little heads out of the ground. And the tomatoes are as big as walnuts and the watermelon vines are all over the place. Ah, Chicago should be indeed happy—what a climate! What a climate! And no matter how hot it is in the daytime, we always have to have two blankets over us at night. Sing colloo, collay.

THE NEW FOOTBALL RULES are expected to take a lot of roughness out of the game. Whereupon the eager crowd will remark: "Oh, shoot! we might as well go to a pingpong game or watch some guys play backgammon." Then the big gate receipts will melt away and, my dear, how are we going to build a stadium bigger than the Coliseum at Rome if we don't get a big gate?

THE DEPARTMENT of physiology is engaged in a terrible battle over the question as to whether snoring happens when the sleeper exhales or inhales. FULFILLMENT.

Tonight I know that all the days I've lived
And all the things that I have ever done
Have only been preparing for this hour

In learning love's beatitudes with you

MONOXIDE POISONING IN INDUSTRY.

THERE are many industries essential to community life which expose their employés to chronic carbon monoxide poisoning. One way or another, certainly more than 1 per cent of the total population is exposed to this hazard. There is greater interest in acute poisoning by this gas because the circumstances of the reported cases are usually dramatic, but far the greater welfare and efficiency interest relates to the chronic form of the disorder.

Among the industries with which there is greater danger of chronic poisoning are the operation and repair of automobiles, rolling mills, blast furnaces, all other furnaces, the gas industry, traffic policemen, and the heating industries. Of course, cooks, housewives, school teachers, and school children are also in danger at times, though they are not usually considered as parts of any industry.

The symptoms which should cause an exposed person to suspect chronic monoxide poisoning are headaches, dizziness, irritability, mental depression, faintness, insomnia, and cough. If several of these are present and chronic monoxide poisoning is suspected, a thorough examination should be made. This examination may show anemia, rapid pulse and breathing rate, nervous and emotional instability, and irritable heart or organic heart disease.

Dr. May Mayers, who is devoting her time to the hazards of gas poisoning in industry, has some very definite advice for employers and employés in these industries. First, all parties should recognize the hazards and govern themselves accordingly. The most important point for the plant physician to watch when a person exposed to carbon monoxide is under observation is the richness of the blood.

If this is falling steadily and is nearing the danger line the worker should be shifted to a job where there is no exposure. After a while he can be returned to his old job often with permanent safety. By watching the blood regularly and shifting the work as a measure of prevention, it is often possible to build up a considerable degree of immunity. If the employer and his superintendent and employés are informed and interested, they can carry out such precautions as ventilation procedures, permitting no leaks in apparatus, not allowing fumes to discharge as will serve to convert a dangerous place into a safe one.

An unusual point made by Dr. Mayers is that workers be trained to remain calm, cool, and quiet and not to indulge in lost motion. A nervous worker might be hard to train, she says, but it can be done. The placid, quiet worker is in much less danger of gas poisoning.

All employés should know the symptoms of chronic monoxide poisoning and their significance and all plant physicians should be trained in testing the blood. There should always be periodic physical examinations.

NO HARM AND NO GOOD.

R. G. writes: If I boiled beet roots two hours, strained the water from them, and drank three cups each day, would this help me to dissolve and pass gall stones? Will it do any harm?

REPLY.

I don't think it will do you any harm. Neither will it do you any good. You make a strained beet soup, and that has no more value than other strained vegetable soup.

PROUD FLESH.

S. H. writes: Can proud flesh be cured? What is the cure?

REPLY.

Yes. The unhealthy granulations can be removed by applying caustic, alum, or something of that kind.

Then comes the important part of the cure. That consists in giving proper attention to whatever caused the wound to go wrong in the first place. Among such causes are: Dead bone, foreign bodies, ingrowing nails, chronic infections.

BURSITIS.

W. H. N. writes: What is subacromial bursitis and the treatment?

REPLY.

Inflammation of a pad or bursa located near the shoulder. This pad is there to protect some structures that pass over bone and also to protect the bone. Some cases of neuralgia, rheumatism, and neuritis are cases of bursitis. As a rule, bursitis is cured by use of light, heat, and some forms of electricity.

PROBABLY ATHLETE'S FOOT.

Mrs. B. C. M. writes: What is the cause for skin to peel off between the toes and also to crack?

REPLY.

Probably ringworm, commonly called athlete's foot. However, the cause is a mold, and not a worm or a ringworm. And most of those who have it are not athletes. Otherwise, the name is all right.

SIDEWALK REPAIRS.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like to know when the city water department intends to repair the sidewalks on Temple street. They have repaired two on the street and let the rest go. Some of them have sunken down and in some places walking is dangerous. F. L.

WAGE CLAIMS.

Park Ridge, Ill., Feb. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Three weeks ago the concern where I work went bankrupt owing me money for wages. I filed a claim. This claim was filed two weeks ago and I have heard nothing of it. 1. How long does it usually take to receive money due on a claim like this? 2. Is the money owed as wages paid first or do the receiver, courts, etc., get first claim? 3. Is it advisable to hire a lawyer to look after my claim? 4. If a lawyer is not needed, to whom does one apply for attention? C. P. G.

1. We cannot say that there is any uniform rule.
2. The wages are paid ahead of ordinary creditors, but after cost of administration.
3. Depends upon whether there will be any contest upon it. Take this up with the receiver.

DISTRIBUTING HANDBILLS.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am in charge of advertising for a local movie theater and have cause for handbills to be distributed. Occasionally boys distribute these handbills to school children as they come from school. There are three schools close by and at one a policeman always stops them and orders them to either go at least two blocks from the school or stop the distribution. 1. Is there an ordinance to this effect? 2. Is there a law, city, state, or national, which forbids the placing of movie "programs" in mail boxes? 3. Is there an ordinance forbidding distribution of handbills at railroad stations provided the railroad does not object? A. G.

1. Section 2718 of the city code is as follows: "No person or persons shall distribute, cast, throw or place in, upon or along any of the streets, alleys or public places of the city, any handbills, pamphlets, circulars, books or advertisements, for the purpose or with the intent of advertising or making known in a general or promiscuous manner, any business, occupation, profession, medical treatment or medicine, under a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than fifteen dollars for each offense." Sec. 366 also prohibits distribution of handbills, but because it was not limited to littering of the streets it was held invalid in 341 Ill. 208.
2. We find no such prohibition.
3. See No. 1.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

SHANGHAI, July 31.—A desperate battle has been fought between the fleets of China and Japan in which the Chinese were defeated and the Chen-Yuen, the largest battleship except one in the Chinese service, was sunk and two other large Chinese vessels, said to be first class cruisers, were captured and destroyed. The battle which took place yesterday was hotly contested, but the Japanese appear to have handled their guns, ships, and torpedoes with more skill than the Chinese. The Chinese fleet carried nearly 1,000 men and few, if any, of them which engaged in the battle escaped. Two German officers in command of the Chen-Yuen are reported to have met death with the crew of that vessel. The Chen-Yuen was a battleship of 7,400 tons, carrying 14½ inches of compound armor at the water line. Its battery included four twelve inch guns and two smaller Krupps. It was also furnished with eleven Hotchkiss cannon and tubes for Whitehead torpedoes. It was built for China at the Steppin works. The cruisers supposed to have been captured are the Chen-Yuen, 2,300 tons, and the Foo-Ching, 2,500 tons. The news of the battle came here by private telegrams from Tientsin.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The Japanese attack on Port Arthur on Feb. 16 was a feint to cover a landing at Talienwan bay. The landing from Japanese transports was repulsed, owing to the heavy fire from the Russian guns on the hillside commanding the bay. An unconfirmed report has it that 200 Japanese soldiers succeeded in landing at Talienwan, but that two-thirds of their number were killed. The rest retreated to their boats.

LONDON.—The Washington correspondent of the Morning Post says a communication of the utmost importance which may add fresh complications to the far eastern situation has been made by the Chinese minister to Secretary of State Hay and similar representations have been made in European capitals. The Chinese government has addressed both Russia and Japan reiterating her intention to maintain strict neutrality but declaring the sanctity of the tombs of the ancestors of the Chinese dynasty at Mukden and elsewhere must be respected by the belligerents. The communication takes a bold tone and says that if either Russia or Japan desecrates the tombs or in other ways injures China orders have been given to troops to vindicate the honor of China and meet force with force.

TOKIO.—Extraordinary success attending the war loan of $63,000,000 was attained. The sum, which it was arranged should be raised by March 10, was subscribed twice over today.

CLEVELAND.—The remains of Senator Marcus A. Hanna were received by the city of Cleveland today and thousands braved the cold and snow to pay the last tribute to him at the chamber of commerce, where the body lay in state.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 19, 1916.

NEW YORK.—While detectives watched for him at all of the postoffice buildings and ran down every clew which was supplied, Jean Crones, the chef who poisoned soup served at a dinner given for Archbishop George W. Mundelein at the University club in Chicago on Feb. 10, remained at large in New York, and a third letter from him was received at the Times office tonight. In his latest letter Crones announced that he would remain in New York 48 hours longer, "but after that I have to disappoint the good police and leave the city." He did not say where he intended to go. More details of the poison plot are given by Crones. He wrote that he did not put poison into the soup served at the banquet, but put it into the "stock" in the cold meat room, where he was employed. He denied that there were explosives in his room and that he knew about plots to destroy buildings or other acts of violence.

WASHINGTON.—The United States government dispatched a formal protest to Turkey against a continuation of atrocities against the Armenians. Acting on information that approximately 1,000,000 Armenians have been massacred or starved to death, Secretary Lansing, at the direction of President Wilson, cabled instruction to the American embassy in Constantinople to present a protest which is in effect a warning to the Ottoman government.

WAR NEWS.—Berlin reports that efforts by British to retake positions southwest of Ypres failed, with heavy loss. French attacks south of the Somme also failed. Austro-Hungarian forces have captured Kavaya, Albania, eight miles southwest of Durazzo. The Essad Pasha gendarmes have fled. Semi-official advices from Petrograd say Kurds massacred thousands of Armenians before the evacuation of Erzerum.

JUSTICE.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Pursuant to the article in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE this morning regarding the release of Carl Parker and Stanley Wilson, drug store bandits, from the penitentiary, I wish to voice a protest through your paper of this action by public officials sworn to protect the interest of the law abiding citizens.

I am the druggist, located at 2338 East 71st street, who was held up at the point of a gun in May, 1931, by these criminals. Parker fired six shots at me, endangering not only my life, but six other persons in my store at that time.

If there is any way by which I, as a complaining witness, can assist in compelling these criminals to serve the sentence that was justly imposed upon them by the court, I would do all in my power to help.

W. G. TRAUTVETTER.

ANOTHER VICTIM.

High Lake, Ill., Jan. 16.—To say that I was dumfounded when I read of the miscarriage of justice in the morning TRIBUNE is stating things lightly. I am one of the victims who was held up and robbed at the point of a gun in my former drug store, located at 75th and Paxton avenue. To think that I would behold this travesty on justice of a judge freeing two desperate criminals Parker and Wilson, from the penitentiary, after having served but a few days of their sentence from one year to life! May I not ask what will this injustice on the part of our judiciary lead to? Does any sane man think that this sort of thing will be countenanced and be permitted to go on indefinitely? No. The time has come for all red blooded Americans with sufficient moral courage to write and demand a complete housecleaning in all departments and branches of our city, county, state, and national government; legislative and judicial in particular. C. P. GIRTEN.

WOULD SUPPLY WORK.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Thousands of men are accepting charity in Chicago who would much prefer a chance to earn it. Including the expected appropriation from the state, something like 30 millions will be given out this winter. Along the right of way of nearly every railroad entering Chicago and in other localities are countless abandoned houses and others that should be abandoned. They constitute a lot of undesirable scenery for World's Fair visitors to see and they are a menace to health and a fire hazard. With some of the 30 millions Chicago could be vastly benefited by the cleaning out of these dismal wrecks and many honest men would be saved from accepting charity.

GEORGE C. HUNT.

LOWER GAS BILLS.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—I have read so many articles in the Voice of the People in regard to the new gas rate I would like to have you print my experience. My bills for October, November and December, 1930, and January, 1931, totaled $146.08 and for October, November and December, 1931, and January, 1932, totaled $73.67, a saving of almost 50 per cent.

The people who are knocking the gas company should go down to the main office, where they no doubt can be told the reason for their higher bills. If they are keeping the room temperature at the same level as last year they will save the 31 per cent or more that the company advertises, providing their equipment is in as good condition as it was last year. G. E. M.

HIGH STEPS.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—I think many surface cars should be abolished. The steps are so high on some of them that a lady cannot with propriety get aboard, and if the conductors are not polite enough to assist the passengers with no longer the agility of youth, I would suggest that the company furnish a small step ladder, making the ascent easy. The man who constructed many of these cars evidently intended them for acrobats.

SENYA WINBALD.

THE LAMBS.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Many thousands of small investors hold stocks in our corporations. They are holding on to them in spite of, or because of, current low security prices, and in many cases are undergoing severe hardships rather than sacrifice their holdings.

Those buzzards down in New York who control the security markets through manipulation and otherwise have so far been unable to dislodge these enormous aggregate stockholdings by the deliberate destruction of values and vicious propaganda designed for the inculcation of fear for the present and lack of confidence in the future in the hearts of the little people. And until they can thus force the small investors to relinquish their holdings to them at ridiculous distress prices they will continue to keep the brakes on industry and force security values still lower by means of short sales—which are nothing in the wide world but wash sales—and other subversive measures. W. C.

GOVERNMENTAL WASTE.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—THE TRIBUNE'S fight for a wholesale reduction in governmental expenditures is the most vital issue before us today. With deflation run its course, and credit being reestablished, we can expect an upturn in business, but the good times of old are impossible without a very material reduction in overhead and this can only be accomplished by the abolition of all unnecessary bureaus, and God knows many of them are worse than unnecessary.

Some job, and one that hitherto has successfully defied accomplishment. Only the united, determined support of the movement by all the people will make it possible. Possibly the experience of the last two years will cause people to take a little interest in their governmental affairs instead of leaving it all to "George" as in the past. Let us all get back of this move so ably begun by our leaders. HENRY L. BAKER.

SPORTSMANSHIP.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—At a swimming meet recently I witnessed a demonstration that impressed me as being a perfect definition of true sportsmanship. In one of the races there were four contestants, two lads representing each of the two high schools. One was a full length of the tank ahead of the others; his teammate was second; the other two lagged behind. Instead of continuing his pace, the leader slowed down and let his teammate take first place, he, of course, taking second. Lads with consideration for others as demonstrated in an act such as this undoubtedly are the kind with which our future can be trusted.

It is just too bad that some high school coaches do not have more of the stuff in them that some players possess. For instance, at a basketball game recently the score, with less than one minute to play, was a tie. The coach stood on the side line. The spectators were on their toes. It was a tense moment. When the player with the ball passed the coach he signaled and instructed him to shoot. The player took a long chance as instructed, shot, and made the basket as the gun closed the game. As I understand it, this unsportsmanship on the part of the coach was a technical error and the basket should not have been allowed. The offending team should have been penalized a free throw. But, fortunately, the referee did not see the incident. To me this act was as contemptible as the incident related above was honorable. Therefore, I say again, it is just too bad that some coaches do not have the stuff in them that some players possess. FAIRPLAY.

NO PLACE TO PLAY.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—I am 14 years old, my protest doesn't count much, but our park has only been locked up for one week and us kids are about crazy with no place to play, can't take a real bath, no place to hang out. Ma chases me out of the house, says I get on her nerves. What's a fellow to do? Can't somebody do something?

THE ICEBOX! AH, A HAPPY HUNTING GROUND FOR MEN!

A Midnight Raid While Mother Sleeps.

BY ROE FOWLER.

Women have a peculiar idea about ice boxes, or refrigerators. They think the ice box is a place where food should be kept from one meal to the next. Any male will tell you that this idea is all wrong. An ice box is a happy hunting ground—no more, no less.

The notion that food placed in the ice box should be left there until the next meal is typical of woman psychology and just goes to show why the entrance of women into politics is no good sign. They're altogether too orderly, and not at all practical about human emergencies such as getting an awful pain in your stomach in the middle of the night and having to feed it something to keep it from gnawing.

The old family ice box has often been a source of inspiration to me. When my childish feet used to patter over the linoleum, it was the ice box that marked their destination and the ultimate delight of their owner.

A Trip to the Ice Box.

And now, when I am home, my feet take the same path over the linoleum, to the ice box. The family ice box of my recent visits home is a gaudy thing that purrs and makes ice cubes—but for all that it holds, I hold it dear, both in memory and in food.

Let us take a trip to the ice box. The linoleum on the kitchen floor is terribly cold and we should have worn our bedroom slippers, only we never do. Putting our feet down gingerly, and picking them up with alacrity, we negotiate the arctic expanse of slick floor covering. Probably we step on the cat before we reach the light switch. We hurriedly pull down the kitchen window shades, for fear the neighbors will see us in our pajamas, now that the light is on.

Now for the Feast!

Mother would scold us for letting the warm air in, but she's upstairs asleep. Ah, there's that drumstick which was left over from dinner and a whole pan of gelatin dessert with whipped cream. There's some lemonade, too, left over from the afternoon refreshments. A few ice cubes in it, and it's as fresh as though it were made this instant [or so we say]. Sometimes, too, there's grape juice.

Here's a real find! A pan of ice cream that mother has freezing for tomorrow. It's still soft. We swipe some, and smooth the rest of the soft mixture in, so she won't see any hole when it's frozen hard. Me, I like my ice cream soft, anyway.

But This Is Not All.

By now our gnawing pain is satiated, but the hunter's instinct has been aroused in us. With a fiendish, ice boxish gleam in our eyes, we pursue our quest—not forgetting to taste here and there. There's butter, eggs, lard, milk, lettuce, some pie dough, a dish of apricots, a fried pie, some butter milk, a bottle of sour cream, cottage cheese, and a half can of pineapple. So we run the gamut, and at last the huntsman returns to bed, his prey inside him. The rest of the night he will be the haunted, fleeing from dream to dream.

Seriously, if any restaurateur wants to make a lot of money out of his male customers, he ought to equip his establishment as a cafeteria in which the customers would fill their trays from long lines of ice boxes instead of from counters and steam tables. And each customer would be required to walk barefoot.

BY MARY MEADE.

We haven't had any candy talks in our column for a long time, have we? And candy is a nutritious food, particularly when milk, fruit and n. are the basis of its construction. A well known home economist who specializes in the candy field of cookery tells us that the time of day makes a difference in the reactions of people to different candies! She says that chocolate coated and other rich candies are enjoyed most in the afternoon and evening, nut candies just before meals, and hard or old fashioned candies in the morning.

However, before I turn weak and give you any additional candy recipes, promise you won't indulge in the sweets too much and spoil your normal mealtime appetites.

PANOCHA.

2½ cups of brown sugar.
Few grains of salt.
1 tablespoon of corn sirup.
1 tablespoon of butter.
¾ cup of unsweetened canned milk.
2-3 cup of chopped nuts.
1 teaspoon of vanilla.

Boil the first five ingredients to the soft ball stage [237 degrees Fahrenheit], stirring constantly. Soft balls form at a higher temperature in brown sugar sirups. Remove from the fire, add the vanilla and nuts, set the pan in cold water, and start the beating at once. When the mixture turns creamy and light, turn into a buttered pan. Cut in squares. If it hardens too soon, knead it soft again and put in the pan.

We have had a number of requests for marshmallows. A simple way to make chocolate marshmallows is to remove the sugar from the prepared variety, dip them in melted chocolate and then lay them on wax paper until the mixture hardens. This may also be done with the recipe below if you wish.

MARSHMALLOWS.

1½ cups of water.
2 cups of fine granulated sugar.
Few grains of salt.

Soak the gelatin in one-half cup of cold water for five minutes. Put three-fourths cup of water and sugar in a saucepan, bring to the boiling point, and let boil until the sirup will spin a thread when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Add the soaked gelatin and let stand until partially cooled; then add the salt and flavoring. Beat until mixture becomes white and thick. Pour into granite pans, thickly dusted with powdered sugar, having the mixture one inch in depth. Stand in cool place until thoroughly chilled. Turn on a board, cut in cubes, and roll in powdered sugar.

HERE'S MYSTERY: WHO WAS FIRST TO TASTE FOOD?

Let Prof. Acme Explain His Theory.

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

Judging by the modern menu, it is also a fairly stable custom. It is easy to see that it isn't something that has sprung up within our own lifetimes, or for that matter, something that was brought over on the Mayflower, although the Mayflower did bring over many fine things. [We have abundant proof that the Indians had not just been scraping along on any old means of keeping alive, such as sleeping in the open, and inhaling deep breaths of primeval air, before the Pilgrims docked at Plymouth Rock, in case there should be any dispute over this point].

How then did eating develop? Who was the first man ever to taste food? How did he happen on to this method of keeping fit, and what was his first reaction to a really good meal? Did he want to make a speech or just lie down and sleep it off? In short, why do we have after-dinner speakers, and what are we going to do about it?

Professor Hunts Answer.

Again judging by the modern menu, eating is complicated enough to have started back about the neocene period, which ought to be pretty far back. We have no evidence to prove or disprove this, however, although we might refer to the findings of one Prof. Acme, who did quite a little research on this subject after listening to several after-dinner speeches.

The professor went back several million years [he forgot his notebook the first time and had to make two trips] in his explorations into the source of eating. And while the professor did not accomplish much in this respect he did develop a questionnaire to be filled out by after-dinner speakers. When did you first notice a tendency to make speeches after eating? Is there anything you can do about it or haven't you tried? Your favorite pose is as: [a] Mussolini: [b] Napoleon at St. Helena; [c] Hunchback of Notre Dame. If the prospective after-dinner speaker could answer these questions satisfactorily, and could play "Turkey in the Straw" on a left-handed zither he was given the choice of either shooting himself or being made to listen to one of his own speeches. The mortality rate was so high that Prof. Acme's questionnaire had to be withdrawn.

First Sat on Rocks.

The professor's other great contribution to our knowledge of the origin of eating was his discovery that early man first sat on the ground to eat his food, and then had taken to eating off of rocks. The professor found that the next big cycle in the development of eating, covering a period of several million years, was devoted to a search for more comfortable rocks. The professor, being a sensitive soul, was never able to live down his discovery, and died shortly thereafter.

We have more recent evidence, however, which indicates that eating may at one time have been looked upon as an affectation. This is the fact that many sovereigns today dine privately and will not allow their subjects to see them eating. The king of Abyssinia always eats in secret, as do the rulers of such places as Loango, Tonga, and the like, at least none of their subjects have ever been able to catch them red handed.

Kings as a rule are a sensitive lot, anyway, and would naturally resent having some smartalecks from the bush stand around yelling, "The king is eating, long eat the king!" Some wag might playfully suggest, "Let's eat the king," and then where would the king be?

Such customs as these, of course, are holdovers from the time when food was comparatively scarce and man had to forage for it, and then go off somewhere by himself and eat it. But we can't deny that many of these idiosyncrasies resulted from the fact that eating was something new. We think nothing of it today.

Another thing that mitigated against eating in its early stages, making it hard for it to gain a foothold, was the belief commonly held by early man that the pains of indigestion were evil spirits that had entered the body by way of food. It is easy to see how a savage with a mild case of ptomaine poisoning might have been induced to swear off eating. If you had told him that he had simply got his vitamins crossed, he probably would have died then and there.

The history of eating is filled with many instances of courage and valor on the part of these pioneers of this method of keeping alive. Eating, though, is something that we take so much for granted that we can go into a restaurant, skim a menu, and order sauerkraut juice and a lettuce sandwich with the calm assurance that every vitamin is in its place and all's right with the world.

"Things which in hungry mortals eyes find favor"—Byron

HOW WASHINGTON WINED AND DINED HIS MANY GUESTS

His Virginia Hospitality Offered Simple Bounty.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Washington has come down to us as a general and a statesman and the world has almost forgotten to think of him as he preferred to think of himself, a Virginia squire, fond of good hunting, good living, and good company, but with a keen eye to the management of his broad estates.

Yes, in a day when every true son of the old dominion prided himself on being a genial guest and a generous host, Gen. Washington of Mount Vernon was famed for his hospitality, not only in Virginia but throughout the length and breadth of the Atlantic seaboard. Morrises from Philadelphia and New York met Adamses from Boston, Carrolls from Carrolton and Byrds and Carters from the James, at his table, and often a visiting Frenchman or two.

Humbler visitors, too, were always assured a welcome at Mount Vernon. The rule was that none was allowed to go away hungry. Washington himself once described his home as "a well resorted tavern," and in a letter from Mount Vernon after his second term as President he wrote: "Mrs. Washington and myself will do what I believe has not been done within the last 20 years by us—that is, sit down to dinner by ourselves."

Never Extravagant.

Yet Washington in keeping open house for his friends never was extravagant in his hospitality. This, in fact, was what he had to say about it:

"My manner of living is plain and I do not mean to be put out by it. A glass of wine and a bit of mutton are always ready and such as will be content to partake of them are always welcome. Those who expect more will be disappointed." Which hardly did justice to bountiful, if simple, fare provided by that most excellent of housekeepers, Martha Washington.

Nor did Washington allow hospitality to interfere with his duties as a careful landowner. Every morning he rose at dawn, lighting his own fire, and often rode 10 miles about Mount Vernon and his neighboring farms before sitting down to breakfast. Then he went out on his estates again, supervising the cultivation, talking with his overseers. No wonder Mount Vernon literally flowed with milk and honey!

But at the dinner hour Washington put all business aside and became the delightful host. Three o'clock was the dinner hour at Mount Vernon, sufficiently late for the company to change to formal attire. If there was to be only a small group, dinner was served in the intimate little family dining room. But if the gathering was a large one, there was the "banquet room," with its high arched window and handsome mantel, built by Washington after the war.

Can You Picture Them?

Picture them here for a moment, plump, diminutive brown eyed Martha in her imported silk gown at the head of the table; Washington, tall and distinguished, at her side. Only on formal occasions does he take his place at the other end of the table. About them sit bewigged and beruffled gentlemen in knee breeches, and ladies with panniered skirts and hair powdered and piled high. Further down the table is vivacious Nelly Custis, Washington's stepdaughter, and across from her, her brother Jack.

Dinner always proceeded leisurely, with much conversation and drinking of toasts. As one of his guests tells us, "Washington loved to make a procrastinated dinner. He made it a rule to drink a glass of wine with every one at table." And when the dinner was over and the cloth removed in the good old-fashioned way, Washington usually lingered at the table, chatting and eating his favorite almonds.

Only one thing could mar the tranquillity of this repast. That was for some one to be late to it. Washington always allowed his guests five minutes' grace, then the company went in to dinner. The late arrivals were greeted with the remark, "My cook prepares dinner for the hour, not the company, sir!"

And what did this gay company actually feast upon? While Washington and his men guests sample port and Madeira in the banquet room and their ladies exchange gossip and recipes on the white-pillared verandah overlooking the deer park and the Potomac, let us slip around to the entrance court yard. There on one side linked to the house by a colonnade is the kitchen building. On its open hearth or in the brick oven are prepared the famous delicacies of the Mount Vernon table.

Had an Ample Garden.

Going down the drive, we pass the stables, the smoke house, the dairy, the greenhouses, the gardens. To the south is the kitchen garden, where lettuce, cabbage, asparagus, mint, carrots, potatoes, herbs and simples grow. Beyond are the farm lands, wheat, rye, and corn growing in the fields, and Washington's stock grazing.

Here is aplenty to feast a dozen households, you may say, but not such a one as Washington's. With 100 cows, Washington still must purchase butter, for besides his family and his guests he must feed the house servants and several hundred field hands. But he has flour, and to spare, and is proud of the fact that when he exports it the customs let through the barrels under his name without inspection.

And now for a peep at Washington's dinner table. Soup comes first; then fowl, turkey or pullet, cooked on a spit, garnished with vegetables, and served with beaten biscuits and hot corn bread; then the pièce de résistance of the meal, a ham cured and baked at Mount Vernon, carved by Washington himself at the table; and the syllabub, the trifle, cakes and coffee following.

Washington had a story which he liked to tell about one of Martha's famous hams. Lafayette was visiting them and had brought with him several pairs of hounds for the hunting. But the dogs proved more successful in the kitchen than in the field. Martha had prepared for her guests an especially succulent ham, and while the cook was garnishing it Lafayette's hounds sneaked into the kitchen and stole it. Washington used to end the story with the sly comment, "Mrs. Washington called that dog something stronger than Vulcan."

Often the Mount Vernon table was graced with venison or other game shot by Washington on his numerous hunting expeditions. Often, too, there was fish from the Potomac, caught by Washington himself. Potomac shad, for which Washington had especial fondness, is the source of an anecdote which again illustrates Washington's dislike of extravangance.

And One About Fish.

During the first years of his presidency while he was in New York his steward, Fraunce, one day placed before him a dish of shad. Washington was delighted at first, then he turned abruptly to Fraunce and said: "Isn't it rather early for shad? How much did you pay for this?" "Three dollars," Fraunce replied reluctantly. "Take it away, take it away, sir," Washington exclaimed. "It shall never be said that my table sets such an example of luxury and extravagance."

A description of one of Washington's state dinners while he was President has been left us. In the center of the table was a large tray, 6 feet long and 2 feet wide, raised about an inch from the table and rimmed in silver. Statuettes were placed in the center and at either end. Around this tray were placed dishes of roast beef, veal, turkeys, ducks, hams, puddings, jellies, oranges, apples, nuts, figs, and raisins.

A bountiful repast in the true Mount Vernon tradition, even if simple from the standpoint of foreign chefs' official dinners. And the reception following this repast was usually terminated with Martha's most famous phrase: "Gen. Washington always retires at 9 o'clock and I usually precede him."

TIME RIPE FOR CHERRY PIES; IT IS CHERRY WEEK

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

George Washington's birthday anniversary, his 200th birthday anniversary, together with National Cherry week, makes this Friday the most appropriate day of the year for a story on cherries. There is no reason, either, why cherry pie—pie being our favorite dessert—should not be considered the national dish on Washington's birthday and during the month of February for that matter, just as turkey is on Thanksgiving day and through the holiday season. Make it of fresh or canned sweet or sour cherries—it makes no difference.

National Cherry week is being celebrated this week as we have said, from Feb. 15 to Feb. 22, inclusive. On the last day, Washington's birthday, a cherry pie baking contest will take place among Junior and Senior Home Economics High school students to select the best juvenile pie maker. She will be presented with a prize of $500 by the national cherry queen who reigned last summer during the harvest time.

The More Practical Fruit.

Though no one can ever accuse me of having tried to discourage him from buying those grand fresh black cherries, unless we live right in the growing region—Michigan and Wisconsin are the principal states—canned cherries will probably be more practical than the fresh for cooking purposes, especially.

The canning, of course, is done during the ripening and harvest season and as close to the centers of production as possible. All members of the family and every one in the vicinity is recruited to pick the cherries so that all the harvesting can be accomplished during the short period when the cherries are perfectly matured and before they become overripe. They are immediately transported to the canning factories in clean "lug boxes," where within six hours the fruit is sent through the many preparatory processes and finally sealed in the sterilized tins.

Every phase of the cherry canning industry is given the most excellent care, particularly in regard to cleanliness. The factories themselves are well lighted and well ventilated. The fruit, when it arrives, is placed in containers with plenty of clear fresh water to cover, to wash, to keep clean, and to keep at a low temperature. They are sorted, pitted, etc., canned, sealed, and labeled under ideal conditions. Only once or twice during the entire procedure are the cherries so much as touched by the hands of the workers. Even then the hands are gloved.

How to Make a Pie.

This perfect tree ripened, carefully canned fruit is shipped to the various markets for your use. All you have to do is to open the can. We recommend this recipe for cherry pie for your dinner—for your Washington's birthday dinner in particular. According to legend, cherries and cherry trees were quite important in the life of the young George Washington.

CHERRY PIE.

This amount of filling is sufficient for a 9 inch pie tin 1¾ inches deep:

3 cups drained, unsweetened cherries.
1 cup sugar.
3 tablespoons flour.
2 tablespoons butter.

Method I.—Heat cherries and juice. Mix sugar and flour and stir into cherries. Boil one to two minutes. Add butter and pour into unbaked pie crust. Moisten edges and put on top crust, which has been pricked to allow steam to escape. Press down edges to prevent leakage. Bake 25 minutes in a hot oven [425 degrees Fahrenheit]. This method has the advantage that the pie may be baked quickly, since the filling is already cooked. The hot filling also helps the crust to cook from the inside.

Method II.—Blend flour and sugar, add to cherries and juice, and mix well. Pour into the pie crust, dot with butter, and put on top crust as directed in Method I. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees Fahrenheit] 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate [350 degrees Fahrenheit] and bake for 35 minutes. This is somewhat easier than Method I, and some prefer the flavor. It requires longer cooking because the filling is cold and the flour for thickening is uncooked.

20 YEARS OF ILL HEALTH

Then Mrs. Duke Discovered Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Of her own accord, Mrs. Duke sat down and wrote us a glowing tribute to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN:

"I have been constipated all my life, which has been about 20 years, up until last year when I started eating your ALL-BRAN. Since I have been eating it, people tell me I am looking better, and I am sure that I feel a great deal better."—Mrs. L. W. Duke, 210 Hardin Ave., College Park, Ga.

Constipation is usually caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help give them tone. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides both of these dietary necessities, as well as iron for the blood.

Within the body, the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

How much more natural it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—serious cases with every meal—for most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The Charming Cheat

By Clara Sharpe Hough

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of an aged aunt he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who had been out of work for weeks and was in a sad state financially. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home, who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed, and before he leaves tells him so. Ricardo learns that Web was right when Filomena is called home due to the illness of her father. After another search Ricardo finds his real aunt. She is acting in a Broadway play. Ricardo takes Filomena to the city hall, where they obtain a marriage license. His plan is to have her prepare for the wedding and leave her waiting at the church, but before he can carry it out Rachel arrives in New York with her father, who has been called there on business. Ricardo takes Rachel to call on his real aunt. She doesn't fit in with the stories Rachel has heard. That evening Ricardo leaves Rachel and her father at the theater and calls on his aunt to tell her of his difficulties. Rachel's father wants her to marry Ricardo in New York and sail on a honeymoon cruise.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

DISTURBING REVELATIONS.

"Maybe you aren't interested in a cruise," said Mr. Beatty. "Well, I shan't make your plans for you, of course. But it seems to me a chance that you ought to think over, Ray, before you turn it down. I daresay you can get anything on earth for clothes in these Fifth Avenue shops. And things are going so well I'm ready to put up for quite a swell trousseau, honey. I don't have a girl married every day."

"Better say yes, Ray," said Ricardo, conscious that he was appearing a reluctant bridegroom.

"Helen," said Rachel, with an obvious effort, "you know, she's always planned—— "

"Yes, yes, I understand all that. But Helen would never hold it against you. There's no one else to worry about. Here Dick's got his aunt handy. She could give him away."

"Yes, she could," agreed Rachel, glancing his way for just the instant that gave him her double meaning.

She could, thought Ricardo, but you can bet your last dollar she won't.

"You two children talk it over tomorrow," urged Mr. Beatty, "you'll give me credit in the end for having one good idea for you. This Bermuda trip is a good one this time of the year, they say. Christmas at sea, and all that. Great stuff for honeymoons, they say."

"Hey, there!" remarked the young man in gay accents.

"Daddy, I would not leave you all alone for Christmas," Rachel protested.

"Now, baby, I can't stay in New York all winter just to——"

"To see me married. You could, daddy. You know you could. You won't need to hurry home when you'll be all alone there, daddy."

Rachel and her father entered a spirited discussion over the date on which he must return home. They ended it in a compromise that he could stay until she and Dick were married. Naturally, this scored one for Mr. Beatty's original suggestion that a honeymoon cruise from New York was too good a chance to lose.

Ricardo, giving his attention to his sandwich, was thinking furiously, but his thoughts were swinging around in the same dizzy circle. It was all being settled for him. Rachel and her father were deciding everything for him. He and Rachel were to be married the week before Christmas—next week—and embark on a honeymoon cruise for some damned southern island where pineapples flourished and countless other bridal couples strolled beneath the palms. He and Rachel were to sail off side by side on the ship of romance while Filomena stayed all alone in New York.

"I tell you what," he cried desperately, "let's go on to Chez Jeannette now. I want to dance, don't you, Ray?"

"O, yes, let's," agreed Rachel.

Ricardo, with the air of a lifelong habitué [indeed he felt like a lifelong habitué of this particular noisy and overheated bit of New York's nightlife] led Rachel onto the crowded dance floor.

Rachel was enough taller than Filomena so that they really danced better together. Not that anyone could dance well in such a crowd. The last time he was here—ah, yes, the last time he was here. It was less than a week ago. It seemed months. He had been completely drunk with the presence of Filomena long before Jeannette's powerful stimulants had gone to his head. And he had been thinking thoughts that would have galvanized Rachel into stark horror.

"Dick," said Rachel, in a low tone as they sat down again, "you've never said a word."

He was startled.

"It isn't bad whisky, really," said Mr. Beatty, "you don't mind if I run out and get myself another, do you?"

Dick and Rachel looked at each other and did not answer him.

He knew what she meant. It was too late now to go back and start where he should have, to say eagerly, "Darling Ray, let's be married as soon as ever we can and start for Bermuda or some place together." It was too late for the words she had expected of him as soon as they were alone.

He took out his handkerchief.

"Hot as hell in here," he said, wiping his forehead.

Rachel sat looking at him.

They glanced up.

A young man in evening clothes, and two girls with painted faces and fuzzy hair and very revealing frocks of bright green and gold stuff, exactly alike, stood expectantly beside them.

"Hey, there," remarked the young man, in gay accents, "what sorta whoopee going on tonight?"

"Hullo," said Ricardo, without enthusiasm, "Hullo—er—— "

"Fleming," supplied the young man readily, "Mind if we sit down? How do you like the girls? They're being the Best Twins tonight."

"O—Miss Beatty," murmured Ricardo, "Mr. Fleming, and—— "

"Annette," said the rather more blond of the two, "and this is Pink, in case you've forgotten. And where on earth is Fil?"

"O, she—she—— "

"Get me something to eat quick," commanded the girl called Pink.

"Dance with me, Dick," Pink seized him by the hand, forgetting her hunger, "I'm simply panting for some excitement." She dragged him to his feet.

"D'you mind, Ray?" he asked across Pink's fluff of hair. "Because if you do—— "

Pink chattered while they danced. The music was too noisy for him to hear what she said, and it probably did not matter in the least. When they returned, food was being placed upon the table and she fell upon it with exclamations of delight.

In this pleasant pandemonium Mr. Beatty arrived with a satisfied expression. Rachel smiled at him and quite happily mentioned the several names that had been given to her a few moments before. The party went right on.

Its somewhat boisterous content was shattered when Fleming said suddenly, "The last time I saw you here, Dick, you were being shoved out by the neck. O, say, you'd have loved that, Mrs. Beatty," he confided to Rachel, "you'd certainly have loved that. Poor old Dick here was stewed to the ears, and he broke a bottle on some gent that was trying to kiss Fil. I'll bet it was a large evening. Took two dancers to throw him out."

"Do I remember?" cried Pink joyously, "and how! We thought first the place was being raided. And this poor guy with the gin running down his face!" They all laughed hilariously at memory of the large evening.

"Say, does Dick remember, though?" demanded Annette. "Maybe he doesn't want to remember?"

"Sure I remember," mumbled Ricardo unhappily, "sure I remember. You got it all wrong, though. It was an accident."

"Accident!" They all whooped with mirth.

"Accident!" repeated Fleming, "you might've told the poor bloke it was an accident. He certainly thought you had it in for him. He said Fil was flirting with him."

"And I'll bet she was, too," said Annette, eyeing him naughtily, "trust Fil. He was a perfectly good-looking man. I don't blame her."

"And who is Fil?" asked Mr. Beatty, politely.

"Excuse me, Mr. Beal," said Fleming then, with the extreme courtesy of the almost entirely spifflicated, "Excuse us all for discussing something of which you are in ignorance." This speech so pleased him that he made it again.

Pink glowered at him. "You're drunk at last, Happy," she remarked. Then she turned toward Mr. Beatty. "Don't you know Filomena? Dick's girl. Don't pay any attention to Happy," she urged. "He's drunk as a lord. He gets that way. He drank all evening and stayed cold sober. Now as soon as we get out here where some people are, he's lit. I don't understand him at all," she added, a little sadly.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Frances had often heard her mother use the expression, "The radio bug has your daddy." One day while she was sitting in front of the radio listening to the children's program a bug came crawling out of the sounder. Frances saw it and came screaming to her mother, "Run, quickly, mother, the radio bug is after us now, too."

Joan, aged 2, had a new crying doll. As she put it to bed the first night, she remarked, "Well, you've just about driven me crazy; you've cried and cried this whole livelong day."

Dress Designers of Paris Predict Summer Wave of Linen and Cotton

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—According to those in high places in the Paris fashion dynasty there is going to be a mighty wave of cotton and linen dresses next summer, a wave that is going to inundate the whole style conscious world.

The clothes I have already seen in these two materials lead me to believe that the Paris prophets say words which are going to come true. I've even see pajamas for next summer's bathing season made of linen and cotton thread crocheted into fascinating patterns.

Evening dresses of cotton jersey are in the making, and sports frocks of new weaves of cotton and linen are on tap. The tennis frock of white linen is already being worn in the south. It serves without the slightest error for this strenuous game.

Lyolene has created a white linen tennis dress shown here. This dress is made of a very lustrous linen, with a shine as mirrorlike as that of a celluloid collar, but it is supple and has no starch in it.

The blouse of this frock has short kimono sleeves and is trimmed with bias bands of linen. White porcelain buttons extend from the neckline to the bottom of the shoulder yoke in front. The skirt has an inverted box plait at the front and back and is slightly flared at the sides. The belt is made of sapphire blue patent leather stitched with white and lined with white linen. It is attached by twisting at the back.

Gives Advice on Conquering Tyrant Sister

Find Weakness, Is Plan of Doris Blake.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What is the best way to manage a sister who objects strenuously to a girl marrying her brother? The girl has been engaged to the man for over a year. The man is 10 years her senior. His sister is married, but inordinately devoted to her brother and socially ambitious both for herself and for him.

She gives many parties for the socially élite and includes her brother, but ignores the fiancée. On one occasion, an early one when sister and fiancée met, the sister so humiliated and insulted the fiancée she swore she would never appear in her home again. The other members of the man's family are friendly and admit their sister is unreasonable, but nothing can be done with her. She wants to manage her brother's heart affairs and no outside girl is going to conflict with her plans for him.

The man is anxious to arrange a second visit in an attempt to put his fiancée on a friendlier basis with his sister. The girl feels she would be debasing herself to go back into that home. She sympathizes with her intended because she knows he is torn between his devotion to his sister and his love for her.

"Is it fair," she asks, "to expect me to give her another chance to humiliate me?"

It isn't a question now of fairness or unfairness. It's a question of meeting a situation that must be handled, somehow. It's a question of holding on to the man's love.

Why should one woman let another woman humiliate her? One is humiliated only when she gives away to a feeling of inferiority and permits another to wound her. The thing to do with a woman like that is to measure her for her weakness and either flatter her to death, or laugh at her attempts at disconcetring you. Don't give her the upper hand.

You can ignore her bursts just as if they were never issued. If you're fighting for a man you love, you can put on a coat of callous for his sake and let nothing that is said or done to you sink in for a moment. Incidentally, that's the way to win the respect of any bully.

Clever Pattern Model May Be Used to Make Dress of Soft Woolens

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This clever model with interesting bodice treatment lends itself perfectly to the soft, flattering woolens. The skirt shows the new wide box plait effect, with closely fitted hips. Ribbed materials are favored, especially boucle jersey and knitted woolens. The printed and plain silk crêpes will also make up beautifully in this design.

The pattern, 2672, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Bruce Barton Places Paul in Modern Scene

New Book Deals with Bible Character.

By Fanny Butcher.

TOMORROW a waiting world will be rewarded for its patient devotion to the author by receiving Bruce Barton's latest. Mr. Barton, who is an advertising man, has applied, in the offerings of the past and in tomorrow's offering, the pep and vigor of his profession to the business of acquainting the world with the workable truths and the business blessings to be gained from a study of the Bible and the life of Christ.

BRUCE BARTON.

With the spectacular title, "The Man Nobody Knows," he made Christ, to thousands of readers, a partner in business as well as in the more spiritual activities of mankind. He did the same thing with the Bible in "The Book Nobody Knows." The success of those two volumes was amazing. They brought religion right into the business man's private office. Some one made a quip about Bruce Barton's changing that "Nobody" to "Everybody." Mr. Barton then gave his followers a volume which discussed "What Can a Man Believe?" Tomorrow he may well be starting a shelf of biographical pep volumes about leading characters in the Bible.

"He Upset the World" is a cursory life of Saul of Tarsus, known more familiarly as Paul, who organized the Christian church, and gave it its early doctrine. By being born in Tarsus he was responsible for one of the only two historical reasons why that town remains on historical maps. The other event that Tarsus lives by was the arrival, in a practically gold and silver plated barge, of Cleopatra, "the most beautiful bit of bad news that ever happened in the life of Antony," Mr. Barton calls her. "She had come to get him and she got him with what result the whole world knows," he concludes.

Places Story in Modern Setting.

Mr. Barton tells the events of the life of Paul, trying to make them more comprehensible and familiar to modern readers by suggesting that they think of him as being born in Boston, "a city of cultural tradition, adorned with a university. At the age of 12 he is sent to Washington for his education—only that city has become a sort of combination of New York and Washington—the center not only of official and religious life, but of business and finance as well. . . . As he walks the streets, he frequently meets the justices of the Supreme court and leaders of the clergy, Cardinal Farley and Bishop Manning and Dr. Fosdick, as well as men of character and ideals in business, such men as John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Owen D. Young."

In that manner does Mr. Barton tell the life story of Paul. From that story he draws conclusions which are to be applicable to modern man's struggle with his own problems. According to Bruce Barton, Paul had six outstanding qualities.

1. He liked people and they liked him. They gave him the unstinted devotion that only great leadership evokes.

2. He never confused the essential with the nonessential. He put first things first.

3. To an extraordinary degree he combined idealism with capacity for practical results. A great word with him was "profitable." . . . Unless idealism resulted in achievement he was not interested in it.

4. He "forgot the past." Neither transition nor introspection hampered his forward progress. His eyes and thoughts looked always to the front.

5. He had a supreme unfaltering faith.

6. He had a spirit never satisfied, forever reaching out toward even larger victories.

Spengler Predicts End of Civilization.

Today is the publication date of a little book as opposed to Bruce Barton's in concept as is possible. Oswald Spengler wrote a few years ago a devastating volume, "The Decline of the West," which was to many readers obscure as it was to many others an unparalelled statement of an imminent menace. In "Man and Technics" [Knopf], a little volume of scarcely more than a hundred pages, Herr Spengler gives a simple summary of his philosophy. The volume is based on the address which he delivered last May which was so widely reported in the press.

It is Herr Spengler's conviction that technical culture, the culture of the machine age, which man has created, has already reached its peak and that the future holds only catastrophe. He believes that the mechanical era in which we live has no progressive cultural life, but only a lust for power and possession. Western civilization is doomed he declares succinctly in "Man and Technics," as he declared it at length in "The Decline of the West."

Many Adults in Classes on Homemaking

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

About fathers again. In the classes for parents established by the state department of education in Oklahoma, fathers were admitted from the beginning.

"It was they," the report states, "who persuaded the mothers to overcome their timidity and discuss their problems in groups." Whenever problems in child development and family life were to be discussed in class, women asked to be permitted to bring their husbands, until in some instances fathers as well as mothers were enrolled.

"Again," says the report, "fathers of their own initiative have sought the organization of separate classes in parent education." In 1918 there were over 22,000 adults enrolled in home making classes throughout the states. At present the number has grown to more than 105,000.

All over the United States, north, south, east, and west, fathers are looking at the job of father from a new angle, that of human relationships. Here are some of the things they may be doing: They may be giving one of their evenings to a class in parenthood, or they may be listening to radio programs with helpful hints to parents. They may attend motion pictures of the activities of nursery school children illustrating lessons in child development and behavior, or they may be studying the job by correspondence with weekly lessons from the university extension division.

They may take part in a parent-teacher program showing how the school and home can work together to help the children develop into good citizens. And as they watch with a new interest and understanding the activities and character traits and personalities of their sons and daughters they may even seek the adventure and stimulus of leading a group of fathers in their discussion of this job of being a father.

Several universities and state education departments are now preparing leaders for such groups, but more men are needed, men who have been successful fathers. This is all pretty interesting news of what is going on among American fathers.

In response to the request of a young father we arranged a special reading list, which will be sent out on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A Clean Skin Best Treatment for Complexion

Antoinette Gives Views on Beauty.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you'd earn a prize for a really bright saying, let some one ask you what is the most beneficial thing you can do for your skin. Then you answer, "Keep it clean!" Not all the beauticians and advertising geniuses combined can offer you a better skin slogan than: "Keep it clean!"

There'd be comparatively little sale of acne lotions, for one thing, were this slogan religiously observed. Little blackhead irritation would be experienced. Fewer cases of pimply skin would be seen. And there would be more real facial beauty just because the skin looks clean and is clean.

I wonder if there aren't a number of women who are actually more familiar with the virtues of a cleansing cream than with the virtue of getting the face clean with its use. And that's no slam at cleansing creams, either. But the concentration is rather upon the cream than upon the thorough cleansing job it is supposed to do.

You know that clean skin business has a surprising way of removing age from the face. If you've been downtown for a day, let's say, and you haven't done any brushing up since you left home, you get a glimpse of a tired, worn, and kind of oldish looking person in your mirror. But clean up thoroughly right after you get in—and, presto! Unquestionably there's a younger looking face smiling back at you. So much effect has grime on the looks.

We all, to a woman, would be grossly insulted if some one else accused us of owning a dirty face. I don't mean on the occasions when we are quite willing to admit ourselves that it's dirty. I mean if some one stepped up and accused us of having a dirty face after we were prepared to go out for the day.

Yet, there are faces that look dirty though the have been recently swabbed with cream and lotion. Maybe with soap and water. They look dirty around the nose corners, mouth corners, inside the nostrils, and other places. Faces are something like houses. Some always shine with cleanliness. Others register an easier going housekeeper; one who scrubs up thoroughly once a week, perhaps. Anyway, that's the appearance. Others look as if it had been a long time since they had a thorough cleaning.

Anyway, don't overlook that meticulously clean look as a handsome asset.

John A. Carpenter Writes Choral Ode for Washington Fete

A choral ode to George Washington called "Song of Faith" has been composed by John Alden Carpenter of Chicago, it was announced yesterday from the United States George Washington bicentennial commission in Washington. Washington's own words are used as a basis for part of the poem to be delivered as a recitative by one of the singers.

Mr. Carpenter explained that the music, composed for male choruses in bicentennial celebrations, was written simply, to be readily grasped by the average American audience, readily playable and singable by the average high school orchestra and choral organization, yet presentable for more sophisticated groups.

Two U. of I. Architecture Students Awarded Medals

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Two students of the school of architecture of the University of Illinois were awarded second medals for their designs of a hospital in the competition of the Beaux Arts Institute of Design, New York, it was announced today. They are G. Erenberg, 3215 Douglas boulevard, Chicago, and F. D. Kay, Champaign. W. F. McVaugh of Pendleton, Ind., won first medal in the competition. Twenty-five other students enrolled in the university were awarded mentions.

Printed Silks Will Brighten Spring Styles

Fascinating Frocks Are Low in Price.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

LOTS of artists and designers must have lost a lot of sleep when they were thinking up all the new designs for printed silk dresses this spring. And a lot of us will spend sleepless hours trying to decide just how many of these fascinating frocks we can squeeze out of our budgets—the best news of all is that these colorful dresses are amazingly low priced—you can easily have two or three for the same price that you formerly paid for one.

Perfectly stunning imported printed fabrics—and how they do differ in color and design from last year's rather obvious and trite patterns—are plentiful. The color combinations are distractingly different—and the patterns or designs are planned with a masterly disregard of any precedent.

Choose them without any inhibitions—even though you are keeping it a deep secret that you no longer wear size fourteen, you can wear prints this season with large figures because the designs are only in two colors and nice big splashy sizes are not prohibitive when that color stunt was thought of.

On Going Barbaric with Strong Stripes.

If your complex is stripes you can go barbaric with good strong stripes in every color—you can be electric with charming zigzags, especially when they are in one color combined with white, or in two or three tones of the same color. Hesitant souls can still find a comforting array of smart, small and precise prints for street wear—this year as before, you'll be quite dissatisfied unless your wardrobe contains at least two prints and this year everybody can surely find just what they need to get into print about.

Some gentlewoman with an artistic sense of beauty used her great-grandmother's paisley shawl for inspiration—and the charming result is a dress that makes you think of quaint New England villages with clipper ships riding at anchor in the bay—for the silk has been printed in a soft blue and tan paisley design—not as an all-over pattern, however, but in a striped effect. Then the dress designer fashioned it in a most skillful manner with the stripes meeting in V formation front and back. The neckline is draped and accented with a twisted fold of old blue ribbon. This costume is as picturesque as a flowered bonnet with strings, but as crisply modern and new as the newest lipstick.

Dotted Dresses Have Very Real Appeal.

Even though you mind legal advice and read twice before signing on the dotted line, you will look, just once, heed fashion, and buy dotted dresses. Dots are good, better, and the best they have ever been in new spring clothes—you can find diminutive dots, middle size circles and dollar dots all closely gathered around on materials for street, afternoon, as well as on the very smartest new evening gowns.

One particularly attractive street suit is made of black and white polka dotted silk—the dots being about the size of a dime—the blouse is of heavy white silk crêpe with black dots—which is the reverse of the skirt and jacket—and for those who must have a third color for contrast—scarfs of either jade green, Chinese vermilion, or brilliant blue are supplied.

Don't let your new prints and dots shine—insist upon wearing the dull-sheen silks whether plain or printed if you would impress the fashion world. Choose your fabrics carefully, ask to see the new printed georgettes, romain crêpes, surah silks and canton crêpes, for all of these can be worn now, and what a joy they are for that tired out feeling in your winter wardrobes.

Attractive Young Matron

Mrs. d'Orsay Palmer who came to Chicago last fall with her husband, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Honore Palmer, is a distinct addition to the smart young married set and she and Mr. Palmer are seen everywhere, not only at social functions but at theaters, night clubs, and everywhere that cosmopolites gather for entertainment. Mrs. Palmer was the former Martinez de Hoz of Paris.

Events on the Stage

The Theater Guild's latest production, called "The Moon in the Yellow River," had its first acting in Washington last Monday night. It comes from Ireland, in spite of the Chinese suggestion of its title, and was written by Dennis Johnston. The cast includes Claude Rains, Henry Hull, and Alma Kruger.

A Philadelphia reviewer describes this piece as "an Irish play with all the complex mental fermentation of the Russian school of dramatists." It will be offered to the Guild's New York audience Feb. 29.

Florenz Ziegfeld's new musical show, which bears the burlesque house title of "Hot-Cha," was another Washington première of the week. The company includes Bert Lahr, Buddy Rogers, Marjorie White, Lynne Overman, June Knight, Revva Reyes, Robert Gleckler, and Miriam Battista. The production will reach Broadway March 1.

"Marching By" will end its run at the Great Northern theater tomorrow night. The operetta will depart with the season's record, to date, in its keeping—a sojourn of twelve weeks. The company will not go on tour.

The Group theater, an offshoot of the Theater Guild, announces that it has grown up and become independent of its parent's financial backing. It had a Broadway success this season with Paul Green's "The House of Connelly" and is now rehearsing a new play by Maxwell Anderson called "City Forgotten," which will be staged in New York on or about March 7. Miss Cheryl Crawford, recently an executive of the Theater Guild, has resigned to devote her entire attention to the activities of the Group.

The Adelphi theater sends word that "As Husbands Go" will stay there indefinitely and that "The Sandy Hook Lighter," scheduled to open Feb. 29 with Edna Hibbard in the leading rôle, has been canceled.

"The Criminal Code," a drama of prison life by Martin Flavin, will be acted by the Institute Players in their theater at 3500 Douglas boulevard tomorrow and Sunday nights. A group of Chicago judges will be guests of honor.

"Counselor at Law," at the Selwyn, and "Rhapsody in Black," at the Garrick, announce special matinées for Washington's birthday—next Monday.

A. Mackay Stoddard to Wed in Surprise Marriage Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANOTHER of Chicago's popular bachelors has succumbed to matrimony, A. Mackay Stoddard. His sister, Mrs. Lyell Ritchie, telephoned me yesterday and told the surprising news that "Mac," as he is known to his many friends, is being married today in Swampscott, Mass., to Mrs. Katharine Campbell Godard of Swampscott. This will be a surprise to all but a few of the bridegroom's best friends, for no announcement of the engagement had been made and practically no one knew that he was contemplating marriage. Mrs. Godard is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Campbell of Swampscott and the marriage is being announced by her brother, Robert MacArthur Campbell of Los Angeles.

Mr. Stoddard and his bride will go to Florida on their wedding trip and will come to Chicago about the 10th of next month. Mr. Stoddard has been living at 63 East Division street with some other bachelors, but he and Mrs. Stoddard will be at a hotel while they are house-hunting.

Anthroposophy Stirs Interest.

"Anthroposophy," a philosophy of life expounded by the learned Baroness von Militz of Germany yesterday afternoon in Mrs. Waller Borden's library, is too large and deep a subject to be absorbed in one hour's discussion. I'm sure, however, that every woman in the small group that heard the baroness went home to dinner instilled with the idea of following at least one of the baroness' preachments — the development of thinking. Whether or not any of her listeners will attain the sublime heights of broadened consciousness of which she spoke so stirringly, is, of course, beyond any one's power to foretell. Anyhow, the subject provoked a lot of animated conversation around the tea table following the lecture.

Among the interested listeners were Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, wearing a black caracul coat and a chic little black straw hat that was more beret than turban; Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. E. Harris Brewer, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. Stuart Logan, and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, at whose house the baroness visited last week.

About 400 members of the Woman's Athletic club crowded into the ballroom yesterday morning to hear Rupert Hughes discourse in a witty, informal and reminiscent manner on the subtle difference between sentiment and sentimentality. Most of the guests remained for luncheon afterwards in the club dining room, where Mr. Hughes lunched with the president, Mrs. Raymond Dudley, and several members of the board of directors.

Among those I observed at the tables were Mrs. Sanger Brown, Mrs. George Nichols, Mrs. Frank Barbour, Mrs. John Porter, Mrs. George Cragg, Mrs. George Mason, Mrs. Frank Johnston, Mrs. Henry K. Chapin, Mrs. W. J. Sinclair, Mrs. John Powell, Mrs. Robert Scott, Mrs. Henry Babson, Mrs. Charles G. Stevens, and Mrs. William C. Pullman.

Mrs. Henry Hoyt to Be 84 Today.

While Mrs. Henry Hoyt isn't officially giving any party today to celebrate her eighty-fourth birthday, I imagine that lots of her friends will be dropping in at her Lake Forest residence this afternoon to congratulate her. There will be a birthday dinner this evening, but I understand it is to be a small one. Mrs. Hoyt and her daughter, Miss Edith Hoyt, will leave in April for their summer residence at Rye Beach, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Osborne Jr. [Elsa Armour], who have been at the Lake Shore Drive hotel since returning from their honeymoon, have taken the Henry K. Turnbull residence at 349 King-Muir road in Lake Forest and will move out sometime in April. The house is most attractive, an adaptation of an English house standing on the famous Muirfield Links, the home of the "Honorable Company of Edinburgh Golfers," which was instituted even earlier than the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews. The Osbornes are going to make a few structural changes and redecorate the entire house. They are joining Lake Forest's year around colony and not just going out to the country for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy and Mrs. Robert H. McElwee of Lake Forest were hostesses at a Valentine dinner-dance at the Huntington hotel in Pasadena last Friday night. Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart, Mrs. E. Reginald Williams, and Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt are among the other Chicagoans sojourning at the Huntington. Mr. and Mrs. William Roy Carney of Lake Forest and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cox are at the Maryland in Pasadena.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair departed on Tuesday for Tucson, Ariz. Her mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, will leave next week to join her there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Howard, who learned to like Chicago's winter climate last year when they remained at home from late fall until spring for the first time in many seasons, are staying in town again this winter, and won't close their Astor street apartment until they leave in the late spring for their summer estate at Bar Harbor.

More News of Visitors and Travel

Mrs. James Fentress has been in New York and Philadelphia to spend the Washington birthday holiday with her son, Wendel Fentress.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley [Hortense Henry] are at the Roney Plaza at Miami Beach, according to a note from there. The Warren Wrights are among other Chicagoans there.

Mrs. Gorton Fauntleroy and Mrs. H. Cameron Forster, both of Geneva, have returned from a Caribbean cruise.

Miss Lura Schreiner, newly elected vice chairman of the Chicago committee of Arden Shore, is spending this week-end in Charottesville, Va., attending the midwinter dances at the University of Virginia.

U. of C. Students to Hold Washington Prom Tonight

Society to Ride at Onwentsia Club Tomorrow

Obstacle Race to Thrill the Spectators.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

There will be some merry paper chases and pony drags this spring in the blithe little town of Lake Forest if February indications are any criteria! Not a day rolls away that at least a score of fashionable equestrians [and equestriennes] do not practice their posting and "jumps" in the handsome indoor arena at Onwentsia.

It's almost like a forerunner of those bonny 18th century days in England when the good squires raced their nags from the chapel of Buttevaut to the spire of St. Leger church. "And some of my pupils are about as apt," remarked Instructor Edward F. Sexton yesterday, with plenty of emphasis on the "apt."

Hold Gymkhana Tomorrow.

Although there is plenty of strenuous work in an hour's lesson, any one of the pretty equestriennes will agree that it's more fun than practicing scales or playing contract. Then compensation comes every once in a while in the form of a gymkhana like the one to be held tomorrow afternoon.

The event is in celebration of Washington's 200th anniversary, and there are to be blue, red and yellow ribbons for the winners in the various events. One of the features that will hold amusement for the spectators will be the obstacle race with riding through an open gate, powdering the nose, writing in a book, and putting on a coat—each while mounted—among the problems to be solved.

Last year, you may recall, the riding classes at Onwentsia were interrupted by the caving in of the fine Lamella roof under the weight of a "spring" snow. There's not been a mention among the pupils of the possibility of a recurrence of the accident this year, however, for club officials say the cover is "back to stay."

Fascinating as it is to watch the "finished" riders, there is the most interest, perhaps, in the children's classes Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons and every Saturday morning. Many of the youngsters the first time "up" seem to have all of the confidence of their seniors and are quite upset when they can't have the rein on the second or third lesson. Little Adelaide Taylor and the Hixon children, Barbara and Joan, are past masters now at keeping "heels down" and curving their sturdy legs around the big mounts.

Chief, who by the way is owned by Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county, is one of the children's favorites. You'd never guess when you see a little novice on his back that he can jump four feet and keep up with any good pony in a polo game. "His looks wouldn't bring much," commented Mr. Sexton, "but his head is priceless."

Many Women in Jumping Class.

Many of Onwentsia's best horsewomen who are enrolled in the army classes that meet Monday and Wednesday afternoons prefer Prudence and Spot, both good jumpers. An army officer from Fort Sheridan comes down to instruct these groups in the finest points of body, arm, and leg coördination in horsemanship and put the members through a strenuous hour of "jumps" and drills.

There is always a tea party at the home of one of the students after the army classes. Mrs. Stuart J. Templeton, Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Mrs. Edward K. Welles, Mrs. John Kellogg, Mrs. J. A. King, Mrs. Albert B. Dick, or any one of a number of other prominent Lake Forest matrons may be the hostess. Two of Onwentsia's best "jumpers," Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah and Miss Libby Chase, are vacationing now in England.

According to Mr. Sexton's reports, there will soon be some new pupils in the army classes—graduates from the beginners' groups that meet Tuesday and Friday mornings. Mrs. J. Sterling Davis and Mrs. Hammond Sturgis are among those learning the routine of walking, trotting, cantering, and galloping in these classes.

Baron and His Bride Visit Chicago on Honeymoon

Interested and interesting visitors to The Tribune Tower yesterday were the Baron and Baroness van Goffman of London, who are visiting Chicago on their wedding trip. Paul du Pont, their Chicago host, wanted them to see Chicago from The Tribune Tower, and they paid their first visit to a newspaper office at the same time. The baroness, who was Miss Elizabeth Richards of London, thinks Chicago shops are far superior to those of London in appearance.

Proper Pruning Is Big Factor in Grape Crop

Vines Should Be Cut for Early Production.

The pruning of grape vines is one of the best tests of the skill of a gardener. Attention devoted to keeping the vines in a healthy and productive state yields big returns. Pruning is a job that can be done at any time the plants are dormant and the arms, spurs, canes, and shoots unfrozen.

For small grape vines started the previous year the pruning is simple and consists in removing all but the strongest cane. If this one cane is still too small to permit branching out, then it, too, should be cut back to two eyes, otherwise it can be cut at the height to which the gardener intends to head the vine.

After the vine has been topped and laterals have started to grow out from the trunk the second pruning should leave only those shoots needed for shaping the vine the following season. By the third year the head or crown should be well established by this shaping and forcing of growth, and from then on the pruning is a process of leaving certain renewal growth and of stimulating producition.

The four cane or Kniffin system is one of the most common pruning methods. In this process two arms are developed at the top height and two others at a point halfway up the trunk, so that a full spread of canes and shoots is permitted from these four arms.

Portions to be removed consist of all diseased or damaged parts and all suckers. Extended side shoots, shoots and laterals should be shortened. The head of a plant is renewed by cutting off the branches above it. Earlier and richer fruit is gained by shortening the lead shoots.

Society Clings to Noted Dishes Rector Served

Sea Food Holds High Place It Won at Cafe.

CHICAGO society may not remember Bryan's "cross of gold" speech or Bathhouse John's First ward ball, but where is a representative, dating back of the turn of the century, who hasn't memories of an oyster cocktail, a crabmeat souffle, or a bowl of turtle soup at Rector's restaurant "one flight down?"

When George Rector, son of "Charles E.," who parlayed the 15 cent oyster into a million dollars, stopped here recently he talked of "the good old days" in his father's eating house before the prohibitionists "had taken life so seriously."

"Many is the time I saw Marshall Field with other prominent men of the day top off a noble meal with a tidbit of cheese, a plate of crackers, and a glass of still Burgundy," he said with a reminiscent twinkle in his gray eyes. "My father was particularly fond of Mr. Field and Henry M. Flagler, for they had all been playmates in Lockport, N. Y.—three boys, you see, who came to the big city and made good.

"And the cheese they always ordered," he went on. "It was part of a ten or twelve pound Stilton ripened with port and sherry."

Seafood First Big Attraction

Of course the big attraction at Rector's was seafood, for prior to the opening of the restaurant at Clark and Monroe in 1883 no Chicagoan had seen an oyster reposing in state on its own mother of pearl throne, at least in this town. The first oysters to arrive were Rockaways and Elbert Hubbard, James Keeley, Eugene Field, and George Ade were the first epicures to rush to the eating house and lay siege on the little bivalves.

"Every one came sooner or later," said Mr. Rector, "for society was interested in the fads and fancies then just as much as it is today. The Palmers, the Chatfield-Taylors, the Arthur Caton, and Samuel Insull, I remember seeing on many occasions. My father provided them with more than 'oyster under cover,' too, for as soon as the patrons had recovered from this innovation, he showed them their first live lobster and then a 300 pound green sea turtle from the West Indies. For three days Chicagoans ate turtle in the form of chowder, soup, and mignon. Then some disappointed theatrical stars carved their initials in the shell.

"Maurice Barrymore was one of them," he continued. "The restaurant was a great rendezvous for all the theatrical folk. I was just a kid when Nat Goodwin, Lillian Russell, William H. Crane, Eddie Foy [he was really a Kelly, you remember], Flo Ziegfeld, and Anna Held used to run in. Sarah Bernhardt was so fond of a certain Virginia ham she ordered five or six every time she went to Europe."

A World's Fair Sensation.

One of the stories George Rector enjoys telling most had its setting in the Café de la Marine, which his father obtained a permit to operate within the World's Fair grounds in 1893. Many of the "400," including the first Mrs. Potter Palmer, had been invited to a luncheon honoring the Infanta Eulalie of Spain.

"All was running off smoothly," Mr. Rector relates, "when the Infanta brought forth a gold cigaret case, removed a cigaret, and puffed away. For months the incident was a sensation. If ever a lady had been known to smoke, it was strictly in the privacy of her boudoir.

"Tea parties were popular at the café," he continued, "but I doubt if Sir Thomas Lipton ever grew the tea on his plantations in the far east, for the Scotch aroma was more thistle than heather. After two or three cups the ladies would walk away clinging to their flimsy parasols like parachute jumpers to the crossbars of their trapezes. It may have been tea or it may not, but it was in teacups."

Today there is many a Chicago hostess who has Charles Rector to thank for bringing the oyster, the lobster, and the turtle to town. Think of the favorite mock turtle soup recipe of Miss Marie Rozet, the creole crab gumbo that is prepared in Mrs. George Lytton's kitchen, the lobster "en coquille" of Mrs. Andrew R. Sherriff, and the oysters Rockefeller that are a favorite dish in the George Halleck Taylor household. Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. has a special recipe for crabmeat sauce and Mrs. Bernard J. Sunny serves a delicious salmon souffle at both her town and country homes.

Find Poor Relief Warrants Bring Out Hidden Cash

Hoarded money is coming from every source for purchase of the 6 per cent state tax warrants offered for poor relief, according to Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago. He said yesterday that investors are inquiring daily as to the security of the warrants, and, learning of their safety, are paying for them in cash.

"The sale is beginning to extract hoarded dollars from their hiding places," President Hutchins said. "The purchase of these warrants has the same beneficial effect for the relief of unemployment as an outright gift. The only difference is that if a person purchases the warrants the money will be returned to him at 6 per cent interest."

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

There are times in the game of contract bridge when one can hold too many trumps. In this position there is but one thing to do; i. e., get rid of the surplus trumps. This is known as a grand coup. If you do it once it is simply a coup; if you do it twice it is a double coup, and if you do it three times it is called by the impressive name of a triple grand coup. The latter type, however, is found more in fancy than fact. Yesterday's play-a-problem was of the simple sort—a very simple sort, indeed.

West dealt and bid a heart. North passed. East bid two spades and South decided discretion was a bit better than valor and passed. West bid three clubs. North passed. East bid three hearts. South passed. West now knows that East's refusal to help his hearts on the first bid showed that East did not hold adequate support; i. e., four small hearts. East's assistance of hearts after West's club bid showed that East held normal support; i. e., three small hearts, and three small are not enough to satisfactorily play the suit since he holds a singleton diamond and might have his four card heart suit forced in diamonds to his great disadvantage. So West bid four spades which ended the bidding.

South opened the ♦ A and then led the singleton ♣ K. West played the 4, and North was in a quandry. He thought his partner's lead a singleton and did not know whether or not to overtake with the Ace and lead a club back. He finally decided to do so. To the third trick then North led the ♣ 3 and South trumped with the ♠ 3. South led back the ♠ 4, dummy played the J, North ducked playing the ♠ 2, East playing the 5. Dummy took the next trick with the ♠ K. It is now apparent to East that North holds both the ♠ Q and ♠ 8. He knows that unless something is done about it he will be compelled to lead spades up to North's Q, 8. The sixth trick dummy takes with the ♥ Q. Dummy then led the good ♣ 8, North played the ♣ 6 and East discarded the ♦ J. West led the ♣ 9, North played the 7, East discarded the ♦ K, Dummy led the ♣ 10, and North discarded the ♥ 7. If North trumped in, East would of course trump over him and take out North's last trump. Since North did not trump, East does trump [here is your coup play] with the 9 of trumps. To the tenth trick East leads his ♥ 4 to dummy's K. Dummy then leads the ♣ Q. North again refuses to trump and discards his ♦ Q. East discarding the ♥ 5. Dummy now leads his ♥ A. North is compelled to come in with a trump. East trumps over him and takes the last trick with his remaining trump, East and West making four odd and their game. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

Bach Concerto Is High Point of Stock Program

Symphony Performance Is Excellent.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There was an episode of extraordinary charm during the performance of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall last night. It was the composition that came just before the intermission, the fifth in the series of Bach concertos that go under the name of Brandenburg.

Bach wrote it for piano, violin, flute, and string orchestra. Harold Bauer came on to play the piano part, and Mr. Mischakoff, the first violin, and Mr. Loegl, the first flute of the orchestra, stepped up from their desks to become joint and several soloists with Mr. Bauer. Here, then, was assembled a trio that showed expert versatility in team play. But the trio was really a quartet, for Mr. Stock was handling the baton.

Mr. Bauer came on the stage later to play the solo part in the Schumann Concerto and this, too, was an occasion of great joy to those who like seemly and winsome piano playing. But not even the Schumann performance, excellent as it was, could hope to rival the sheer beauty of the Bach number. Mr. Bauer is a learned and a highly polished but not an altogether sensational pianist. It is these qualities that make him so remarkably fine as an ensemble player. It may be, too, that they have a slightly negative effect on him as a soloist.

But speculative reasoning apart, one fact stands out strongly. It is that there was a Bach performance last night of a quality such as one seldom hears.

Mr. Stock began the program with Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" overture, one of the orchestra's best known display pieces, and then passed to the consideration of a new work. Described as a "symphonic fresco," its name is "Helvetia, the Land of Mountains and Its People," and its composer is Ernest Bloch.

The piece was a prize winner in a composers' contest two years ago, and the composer states that it was begun twenty-nine years ago. One likes to think of extreme pains being put upon a work of art before it is offered to the public, but this would seem to have gone a bit too far. Possibly Mr. Bloch lost the theme of his discourse during the years. At any rate, while there is much pleasant melodic material here and there, the work as a whole sounded uncommonly scrappy and disconnected.

A new series of recitals started in the Blackstone hotel ballroom last night with a joint appearance by Ruth Wilson, violinist, and William Russell, baritone. Both were young, both were talented, both showed the good results of intelligent study. Miss Wilson played with excellent tone and accurate intonation, and showed good understanding to the Corelli "La Folia." Mr. Russell, heard in a Schubert group, sang feelingly and with good effect.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Music Instruments.

"We are a couple of musicians out of work. We lost our instruments when the show we were with closed and now we haven't money to secure others. We have a chance of going into a band in one of the suburbs, but we will have to pass it up if we don't get hold of a saxophone and drums. Do you think one of your readers would help us to get these? D. E."

Stranded, out of work, but with a job within their reach if only they can secure the instruments they need! Surely, this is a tantalizing position for any one to be in. Can you remedy the situation by helping these young musicians get a saxophone and drums?

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Bit Too Officious.

My husband rarely wears a hat. One evening, as we were about to leave a friend's home I noticed a hat which looked like my husband's on the stand by the door. As he was already in the bus, I picked up the hat and rushed out the door, saying: "Here! You forgot your hat." And he said: "That isn't my hat. That's Mr. M's."

The bus driver had to wait for our hostess to come out and get her husband's hat, while I was so embarrassed that we got off at the next corner and waited for another bus.

Racket Satire with Football Setting May Be Made Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 18.—"Rackety Rax," a satirical yarn which portrays a cleaning and dyeing muscle man wondering at the magnitude of college football gate receipts, as a result of which he establishes his own college and recruits his own football team, is under consideration to be filmed at Fox's.

The grand climax when the Capone collegians play the Rackety Rax collegians and a Capone back field man shoots and deflates the ball an inch from the goal line is heralded to be as fetching a piece of burlesque as the serious college sport of football has ever known. It's not definite yet whether the studio will chance $100,000 or so in picturizing it.

A claim of priority of $150,000 from assets of the collapsed Guaranty Building and Loan association, advanced in favor of John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, has had attorneys wrangling before Federal Judge George Cosgrave of Los Angeles for several days, and the judge now has it under advisement. The Barrymores claim the money on contention it was a special loan they made to the company just before it failed.

The building and loan association collapsed when Gilbert H. Bessemyer, its founder, confessed to embezzling $8,000,000 last year. Bessemyer is now in San Quentin penitentiary.

William Hazlett, special master in chancery, ruled that the Barrymores' claim was no more valid than $2,000,000 in other claims advanced for priority repayment, and Attorney Zach Cobb then went before the court in behalf of the movie couple.

After almost eighteen months off the screen, during which he drew a weekly salary without working, Nils Asther, husband of Vivian Duncan, is returning in the part of the European prince, Robert Montgomery's rival, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Truth Game," and will follow it once with Joan Crawford in "Letty Lynton." In "The Truth Game" he and Montgomery make love to Eleanor Gregor. Other folks, but not the Swedish actor, might think it fun to have nothing to do for a year and a half other than make an occasional screen test and show up weekly at the pay window.

Tala Bierell, Universal's European find, has asked and secured permission of Carl Laemmle Jr., head of the studio, to let her goldened hair revert to its natural brown.

Marlene Dietrich's pictures are going over too well right now for her employers to agree that she visit Germany, and as her Paramount contract is quite binding, Marlene has had to stifle her homesickness and unpack her trunks and await the completion of two more films in Hollywood. She had intended to sail for Berlin in March.

By Mae Tinée

Good morning!

Don't let that title fool you. The "past" isn't what you think it is.

An unfamiliar Constance Bennett greets you in this photoplay. A gentle, hesitant, soft speaking Constance who still wears gorgeous gowns—gorgeously!—but who, though lovely to gaze upon, can attract a man but for a moment and hold him not at all.

In other words, Miss Bennett as Venice Muir [named thus because her parents spent their honeymoon in Venice] is a social flop.

It takes gay Pagee plus a lot of attention of one kind and another from Mr. Ben Lyon to do for Constance what needs to be done.

The cast indicates correctly that there are many males in the offing of the lady's life, but the picture is well under way before they begin to flit and hover and scorch their wings at the flame so zealously tended by young Mr. Lyon.

Though the story of "Lady with a Past" carries few surprises and is not particularly believable, the film as a whole is pleasing. It is clean, well dressed and acted and wears its air of sophistication with a grace fostered by able direction.

See you tomorrow.

Make Honesty Part of Proposed Marriage Law

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Feb. 18.—Not only is child marriage wiped out, but man and woman will have to be pretty perfect specimens before they are permitted to wed in this country, if a new law submitted to parliament is passed.

At present children of 14 may marry in Czecho-Slovakia. The new law limits marriage to young men over 18 and young women over 16.

But that is not all. The law provides that no marriage union is really legal if either the husband or wife deceive the other about certain "important qualities." The law is not so vague, however. It goes on to specify.

If one spouse, for example, has a contagious disease at the time of marriage and does not inform the other, the marriage is illegal if the latter wishes it to be declared so. Likewise, if one partner in marriage informs the other that he or she is rich and he or she is not rich, but poor, then in this case, too, the marriage is null and void.

Another paragraph of the law deals with spouses whose partners disappear. It rules that if a woman, for instance, whose first husband has disappeared and has been declared legally "dead" by a court of justice, marries again and her first husband turns up, the second marriage is declared binding and the first dissolved. This clears up the cases of hundreds of Czech women who married after the husbands, lost in Siberia during the war, were declared officially dead, but later turned up. Obligatory civil services are prescribed for all marriages and clergymen will not be permitted to perform a civil service.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The northern division of the 1932 Golden Gloves army, which will converge on the Chicago Stadium the latter part of this month for the Tournament of Champions, opened hostilities last night at Loyola university. One hundreds and two boys from the city and country towns engaged in 48 bouts, the first step in determining the team of 16 qualifiers. The trials will be concluded tonight.

Two thousand five hundred, the largest crowd of this year's sectional campaigns, saw the fights. And if any crowd ever saw action in the ring, last night's crowd did. There were 27 knockouts and technical knockouts.

The regular fans from uptown Chicago and Rogers Park were present last night to follow their favorites, most of whom came through the early rounds safely. But here and there were groups who had come to see a neighborhood hero step into the glare of the lights and try his fists.

Give Green Boxers Hand.

This north shore crowd was kindly. It booed a bit at those youngsters who might have done better and didn't, but there never has been any boxing crowd which extended a more cordial welcoming hand to the kids from down the street who didn't know what it was all about, but did know they wanted a chance to see if they could win a diamond studded Golden Glove.

The battle for Golden Gloves and the right to meet New York's best boxers in Madison Square Garden are between amateurs who have entered the sport because of the desire any normal youth has to prove his physical superiority over another of his own weight. This is the magnet which has brought a record entry in Chicago's sectionals this year.

A pair of hardy lads from the Catholic Youth Organization helped supply some of the action which had the crowd on edge last night. One was Albert Soukop of St. Leonard's parish, a nifty flyweight who may go far in the tourney, and the other was George Haberski of Holy Rosary, who stopped Walter Pierce in the first round. The bout was in the 126 pound class.

Soukop Flashes Speedy Finish.

Haberski, who won the 118 pound C. Y. O. championship and defeated his opponent in his bout at Los Angeles, should win a place on the north side qualifying team. And, if he does, the featherweights in the Tournament of Champions will hear about him. Soukop whipped a Belle Plaine boy, William Glasgow, in three rounds, and did it by a rally in the last two minutes in which he just couldn't be stopped.

Johnny's Back to Earn Those Golden Gloves

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Those who saw the north section preliminaries last year remembered Johnny as the kid who fought a great fight in the first round, only to lose. It developed after that battle that it was the first time Johnny had ever appeared in a ring.

That was a year ago, and Johnny was still trying to find out what this boxing was. He had never thought much about it seriously until his next door neighbor, A. J. Behning, found him around the Gray's Lake Athletic club, located above the town hall. Behning persuaded him to put on the gloves and Johnny picked up a thing here and there shortly before last year's north section trials. He came up to Chicago with Behning, who is a golf course greenskeeper by trade.

Comes Back in Second Round.

Johnny lost that first bout, but he made such a hit with the throng that those who saw him cheered him at his entrance last night. In the opposite corner was Tom Giachetti, a Catholic Youth organization boxer who appeared as though he might know a thing or two and proceeded to prove it in the first round by giving Johnny something of a going over.

Tom earned a few cheers for himself, but Behning must have told Johnny a couple of new ones in his corner at the end of the round, for the Gray's Lake kid came back in the second round and, at the finish of the fight, had the game Tom tired. Those who cheered the green Johnny Edwards of a year ago sent up a roar when they saw a more confident and capable Johnny who had discovered the power in his left arm and how to use it.

Johnny's on His Way.

When Johnny was asked afterwards how far he was going in this year's tournament, what with one victory already, he said, without any cockiness, "to New York." And if his work last night is any sample of what Johnny Edwards can do, he's already on his way.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: A recent Wake article mentioning W. H. Lake of the Board of Trade, my employer from 1906 to 1910, suggested that I, too, remembered some things not familiar to the "youngsters" of today.

For instance, William Roche, now manager of the Selwyn and Harris theaters in the loop, was manager 30 years ago of the Bijou and Academy of Music in Halsted street. He did his strutting when gallery followers crowded the streets in front of his playhouses for the doors to open for Willie Live in "Across the Pacific," produced by Harry Clay Blaney.

Shows such as "The Man Who Dared," with Howard Hall, its good looking hero, appeared at the Bijou and Academy and drew packed houses. Others such as "The Ragged Hero," "Human Hearts," "The Queen of the Highway," "The Bells," "The Two Orphans," "The Biddle Brothers Case," "Eight Bells," "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," "Children of the Ghetto," filled these houses on Saturdays and Sundays, especially the gallery, where I usually saw the shows for 10 cents.

If one went early before the 2 o'clock matinée on Sunday he could see the bloodhounds used in "Queen of the Highway" on display in boxes before the theater as an advertisement.

The Kohl & Middleton dime museum in Clark street near Madison housed all the funniest and oddest people to be looked upon by paying 10 cents admission. One in particular was a dwarf dressed to look like a Chinese, although his parents were Jewish and lived at Jefferson and Liberty. I knew them well.

I saw James J. Jeffries in "Davy Crockett" after he won the championship from Bob Fitzsimmons, and previously had seen Fitzsimmons in "The Honest Blacksmith," and James J. Corbett in "Gentleman Jim."

Shamrocks Tie Series with Pla-Mors, 2-1

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Chicago's Shamrocks evened the season's series with the Kansas City Pla Mors tonight in sixty minutes of furious hockey which ended 2 to 1.

The triumph, made possible by Pudge Mackenzie's goal on a pass from Ade Johnson, came in the last four minutes of play. O'Neill and Gorman were off the ice for fighting at the time.

Kansas City made the first goal 16 minutes after the start, McKinnon driving in Dunfield's rebound. Wiseman tied the count on a spectacular solo almost two-thirds of the way through the second period.

The victory gave the Shamrocks the tying game in eight played between the teams this season and trimmed Kansas City's lead to four points. They meet here for the last time this season next week.

TIME TAKES ALL BUT HEART FROM DEMPSEY OF '19

Remnants of Old Attack Only Asset.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Compare the Jack Dempsey who fought King Levinsky with the Jack Dempsey who won the championship from Jess Willard in 1919, and also with the Jack Dempsey who twice met Gene Tunney. That was this writer's assignment at the Stadium last night. If that were all, it would be an easy task. There was no comparison. It was all contrast.

Of course, a boxer of 36 years cannot be compared in speed or stamina with one of 24 years. I saw Dempsey upset Willard with one left hook traveling not more than eight inches, and that Dempsey was the best conditioned boxer I ever saw or ever expect to see. When one says that, it disposes of the comparison or contrast of the present Dempsey with the once Manassa Mauler who won the title.

Skipping those intervening battles in which Dempsey rocked over opponents, and in none of which I thought he was the perfect physical specimen of Toledo, we come to the Philadelphia affair in which Jack lost his title to Tunney.

There's a World of Difference.

Compare that bout with the Levinsky four-rounder. At Philadelphia Jack took more punishment and looked far worse than he did last night. He scarcely laid a glove on Tunney, while he was punished and cut up about the face and eyes more than I ever had seen him. One must remember, however, that Levinsky is not a Tunney in finesse and ring skill.

Yet one year later it was a different Dempsey who met the same careful, cautious Tunney. That Dempsey was in pretty good condition; not as good as at Toledo, but better than at Philadelphia the year before, and better than last night, of course, for four and one-half years have intervened since the Soldiers' field affair. The Dempsey who received a shower of Tunney gloves in their first encounter upset the champion and possibly would have won except for the famous long count.

He Boxes Flat Footed.

This reiteration of the two Tunney battles is about the only encouragement that Jack's still devoted legion of admirers could derive from his four rounds last night. Boxing flat footed as in his later appearances, a striking departure from those of his early career, Jack was slow, both with his weapons of offense and afoot. At times, he seemed to hardly know which hand to use against the onrushing Kingfish, who soon disdained caution and wanted to exchange swaps.

Jack always was easy to hit, but in his early days he had a habit of smacking the other fellow sooner or later and when he did, the other fellow was through for the day.

Of course the mittens last night were of the ten ounce variety. Only once did I think he hurt Levinsky. That was a left to the body in the third round. Once Levinsky rocked Jack enough to make an impression, although perhaps it did not show from afar. That was a chin crack in the first round.

That Dempsey could be outpointed was no surprise. That King Levinsky could do it was at least a mild surprise. Neither were seriously hurt at any time.

He Still Has Heart.

Well, ask if you will, just what did Dempsey have, if anything?

Jack had that old fighting aggressiveness, the lion heart, which made him the aggressor against Tunney, although losing in both those battles. He kept pressing forward against the Kingfish, whether receiving or landing blows. It was this quality which made Dempsey such a pugilistic idol and which would draw spectators to his appearances even if Dempsey had to be carried in on an invalid's chair. Dempsey was a great fighter in his prime. He still is a fighter according to his ability, even if force of his punches and stamina have waned.

Those friends who have admired Jack Dempsey when he was the Jack Dempsey, hope he will not in his present form essay to meet Max Schmeling or Jack Sharkey. Yet if Jack elects to reverse this unofficial decision over him by King Levinsky there will be many who will want to see it.

They have the precedent of the two Tunney bouts to suggest that Jack will do better next time. Dempsey still can collect money from the fans. As time passes, he will take more and more blows in collecting it. Eventually, if he continues, some rank palooka will send this game old warrior to the canvas. I hope he never goes that far.

Who's Victor, Father Time or Levinsky?

BY ARCH WARD.

An old man going down the hill met a young man coming up the hill at Chicago Stadium last night and it was funny. At least it would have been funny if it had not been so pathetic. Jack Dempsey, the old man of 36, tried to prove to 22,000 spectators that he still was the champion of champions.

But King Levinsky, the other man in the case, and a pair of aging legs prevented Dempsey from achieving his ambition.

After nearly six months of campaigning in the hinterlands, they put the one time Manassa Mauler on the spot last night, and about the best you could say for him was that he wasn't as bad as some of the fans had suspected. He showed courage to the extent that he could take punishment and he still was able to count the house at the end of the last round.

While the consensus of newspaper men at the ringside showed 18 votes for Levinsky, two for Dempsey [probably for old time's sake] and four for a draw, the bout was not so one sided as to be uninteresting. No fight could be uninteresting when Dempsey is in there blazing away. Even though his punches have lost some of their old dynamite, they still carry enough explosive force to stop anybody if they land squarely.

Dempsey fought a brave, hard, trying fight. Always he was carrying the trouble to the bigger fellow. He seldom clinched, although Levinsky clinched often. Technically, it may not have been clinching. The experts call it tying a man up in close. There was evidence at the end of the first round that Dempsey had little chance of disposing of the most important foe he has faced in his comeback tour. He found considerable difficulty trying to walk in a straight line to his corner. His legs, always the first weakness to show in a fighter, were unsteady.

Jack looked better in the second and held his own in the third and whipped across several hard blows. His most effective punch was a short left to the stomach. He frequently followed with a left hook to the head, but at no time did Dempsey's wallops have Levinsky in distress.

Levinsky, 15 years Dempsey's junior, began to reap the reward of youth in a big way in the fourth and last round. He would spear Dempsey with his left, and come in close to bang him with a swishing right, and crack him a one-two. When you consider that the King is no whirring phantom you probably can gather that Dempsey was not hard to hit. Levinsky would have had no more business in the same ring with the Dempsey of five year ago than Fred the Barber, and probably not as much. But the Dempsey of five years ago is no more.

Jack was in as good condition as you could expect of a man 36 years old, who hasn't had a real fight in nearly five years. He looked better last night than when I saw him box two well known strangers at Moline three months ago. But I hope they never put him in the ring with Max Schmeling.

KING'S PUNCHES DIM COMEBACK OF RING IDOL

The 22,000 spectators who packed the Chicago Stadium last night and spent $74,199.95 for their entertainment are most uncertain this morning that Jack Dempsey ever will reach the end of the comeback trail and win back the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

They had watched the old mauler of the million dollar gate era box King Levinsky, a former fish vender, four rounds with ten ounce gloves. And they witnessed things they didn't want to see.

They saw the most magnetic fellow in the history of the prize ring beaten. Not whipped so badly that he was disgraced, but shaded just enough by a young fellow with electricity in his legs and zip in his punches to remind everybody once more that "They don't come back."

Majority Vote for Levinsky.

There was no decision. But there were 24 working newspapermen sitting in at the ringside. Most of these newspapermen were pulling for Dempsey, for who wouldn't root for Dempsey?

The newspapermen were asked to cast their vote on the outcome. Eighteen gave the decision to Levinsky. Two gave the decision to Dempsey. Four called it a draw. It was the unanimous decision of THE TRIBUNE'S staff of writers that Levinsky had won.

Only the old tiger with a heart of gold, who doesn't know now, nor ever will know, when he is whipped, could have taken the thrashing Levinsky handed out last night and still be standing smiling back at Levinsky when the Kingfish swung and landed on his chin after the bell had ended the encounter.

Dempsey Gets Walloping.

Dempsey took more than that "after the bell" punch. He took so many of the Kingfish's wallops in the first round that he came back to his corner wabbling on his ancient legs. He fought back in the second round and won that session. He fought back but was taking it on the chin, in the midsection, and in other parts for the last two rounds.

Only his heart, his courage, his determination not to go down, not to get whipped by any man living, kept Dempsey going in the last few furious minutes of fighting. And the crowd—Dempsey's public, which hadn't forgotten him during an absence of five years, the Dempsey public that will ever live—from the dollar customer near the roof down to the ringside, cheered him as he left the ring. They cheered him as they would have cheered him if he had beaten the Kingfish, or had shellacked a champion and had won back the crown he wore for so many years.

Still There Physically.

Physically Dempsey looked like the champion who won a place in the hearts of millions of persons in all parts of the world some six, eight, or ten years ago. He weighed the same. He was the same perfect physical specimen. His black whiskers covered his face. He scowled out at Levinsky as he scowled out at Jess Willard in Toledo, at Georges Carpentier in Jersey City, at Luis Firpo in New York, at Billy Miske, and Tommy Gibbons and as he scowled at Gene Tunney when old age and a "fourteen count" began to overtake him.

He came in low, his head weaving and bobbing, aiming at the left side of Levinsky's body, just as he aimed at the hearts of the gladiators he crushed and knocked into oblivion when he was the champion. His blows landed.

And there was the difference. The old power was gone. The dynamite was no longer in Dempsey's fists. His legs rippled with muscles, but there was something about them that could not give any assurance that the old man killer could remain upright on them much longer.

"They Don't Come Back."

The spectators realized it. Dempsey must have known it before the spectators did. Distress wasn't on Dempsey's face. Distress doesn't come over the countenance of a game fellow such as Dempsey. But there was something about Dempsey, when he discovered that his blows to the vital points were not even lifting the fish peddler off his shoe leather, that carried out into the crowd the old message, "They don't come back."

After he walked wearily back to his corner at the end of the first round, during which the Kingfish had knocked into the resin two plasters he was wearing over his eyes, Dempsey came out for the second round like the Dempsey of old. His right reached the vicinity of Levinsky's heart. His left came up in the same old way and clipped the Kingfish on the chin.

Smiles Through His Scowl.

Dempsey repeated the blows. But when the Kingfish didn't go down Dempsey again hit Levinsky over the heart and on the chin a few seconds before the round ended. But in the meantime the Kingfish, who had called Dempsey a mark for a "right," was hitting with the right.

He kept on hitting with the right in

Malone, Hartnett Catch Rookies' Enthusiasm.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Catalina Island, Feb. 18.—The Cubs early birds are still wallowing around in their spring camp and trying to figure out just what has happened to the sunshine that made Catalina Island famous. It was cloudy, and a bit rainy again today, but, without regard for the inclement weather, Manager Hornsby sent his charges through routine work.

For more than three hours the lads who hope to make reputations and those who already have them skidded around the green turf while engaging in throwing, batting, and fielding practice, and a few rounds with the 12 pound medicine ball, which is great for the reduction of portly abdomens. In the latter feature of the day's labors, Pat Malone's stomach was an inviting target and his grunts when the missile hit him drowned out the gurgling of perspiration inside his rubber shirt. Pat has declared he wants to get himself in shape and his co-workers are determined to do their best to help him.

Hartnett Also Eager for Work.

That Pat is sincere about his work was indicated when Hornsby asked for pitchers in the batting practice. The big speedballer was the first to respond. Not to be outdone by this display of enthusiasm, Gabby Hartnett put on his tools and went behind the bat. They performed for about fifteen minutes.

Of course, it is possible that some of the eagerness of Malone and Hartnett may have been due to the fact that the sound movies men had their machines whirring. Gabby, as usual, poured plenty of conversation into the nearby mike. Some of it may have to be deleted before being put out for public consumption. After Malone and Hartnett had done their turn, the battery candidates were permitted to act frisky.

Young Players Enthusiastic.

After everything else had been gone over the usual infield fielding practice was put on, with Harry Taylor at first base, Billy Herman at second, Bill Jurges at short, and Stanley Hack, the smiller, at third. The mud on the skinned portion of the diamond handicapped the mechanical laborers, but not the enthusiasm of the youngsters. Of this quartet Hornsby is going to center his attention on Taylor and Hack, both fresh to Cub uniforms. He has a fairly good idea of the capabilities of the two others.

Although training is in its infancy, it is beginning to look as if Hornsby regards Taylor as something more than a rookie who must be looked over and then passed along to lower company. Aside from hitting strength, the Cubs need speed and it is already established that the kid had the latter. What he'll do with a bat is something that nobody can judge until he gets under heavy fire.

Taylor from Chicagoland.

Everybody who watched Taylor operate in the Coast league last season seems quite certain that he is at least a major leaguer in the making. But out here they get overenthusiastic about everything, including their climate, which occasionally flops on the job.

Many people don't know it, but Taylor is a product of greater Chicago athletics. He was a first baseman at East Chicago, Ind., High school, from which he graduated in 1927. He then indulged for one month as a student at Michigan, but abandoned higher education for professional ball. He played with Ottumwa, Ia., of the Mississippi Valley league in 1928 and did well enough to attract a purchase by the Seattle, Wash., club. He remained there for three seasons, being picked up by the Cubs last December. His fielding is much after the nonchalant manner of Jim Bottomley of the Cardinals.

The rookies weren't enthusiastic this afternoon about the arrival of the officials of the Los Angeles club, which is another Phil Wrigley holding. The Cubs are going to slip about a half dozen youths to the coast organization, so you can easily appreciate the cause of the mental irritation.

The Chicago White Sox are negotiating a working agreement with the Waterloo club of the Mississippi Valley league, it was learned last night. Reports that the Chicago club had purchased the Waterloo club were denied by Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox.

LAKE VIEW AND MARSHALL REACH PREP SEMI-FINAL

Marshall and Lake View won their way into the semi-finals of the heavyweight basketball championship of the Chicago Public High School league by scoring victories in their final sectional contests yesterday.

Marshall captured the west section title by triumphing over Crane, heavyweight league champion, 21 to 20, at Marshall's gymnasium, while Lake View clinched a tie in the north division by winning from Roosevelt, 35 to 25.

Crane Eligible to Play.

Rosen, Feingold, and Horwitz were the leaders in Marshall's victory over Crane. Rosen sank three field goals, while Feingold and Horwitz each scored five points. Crane led at the end of the first quarter, 5 to 0, but at half time Marshall held a 7 to 5 advantage. Despite the defeat, Crane will be eligible to compete in the semi-finals.

Two other games ended the west section race yesterday, Austin handing McKinley a 31 to 18 defeat and Harrison scoring a 33 to 31 triumph over Tuley in an overtime game at Harrison's gymnasium. Gordon sank the winning basket in the final minute of the extra period.

Two Games Today.

Two games today will decide two more qualifiers. Lane will meet Schurz heavyweights on the latter's court, while Tuley and Austin will battle for the lightweight runnerup position in the west section. SOCK! BANG! 27 KNOCKOUTS MARK GOLDEN GLOVES

North Siders Cheer First Trial Round.

Athletic club, stepped out with a precision to his driving fists which stopped William Niemeyer in two rounds. Verri is a veteran Golden Glover, who still wants to win a championship and believes that this is the year.

While the subject of boys from previous years is at hand, there was Johnny Phagan. Johnny won his first and only bout of the night and advanced to tonight's bracket. Those who saw Chicago defeat New York at the Stadium last winter will remember Phagan, for this colored welterweight star won his intercity match.

Just a Couple of Battlers.

It is all right to think of the lads who have the skill, but those who have courage deserve as much notice, if not more. For example, we'll cite Phil Heinz of St. Andrews C. Y. O. He and a lad by the name of Egan [what more does a fighter need] hammered at each other for two rounds with both ready to fall into the ropes. Then in the last round this Heinz boy nailed a right to Egan's jaw and that was the end of that fight.

The finals tonight at Loyola will complete the north section bouts. Sixteen boys, the survivors, will be eligible for the Tournament of Champions. The Golden Gloves preliminaries then shift to White City, where on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday 467 entrants will strive for the remaining 16 positions among Chicago's representatives.

All boxers in tonight's finals must report between 4 and 6 o'clock for physical examinations. The pairings will be made by lot at 6 o'clock, the same hour that the doors are opened to the public. The first match starts at 7 o'clock.

Death of Borden Heir Not Caused by Fight Injury

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—The death of Gail Christian Ulrich, 20 year old great grandson of Gail Borden, millionaire dairy products manufacturers, was not caused by his participation in a boxing bout last week, but by meningitis of the spotted fever type. This was disclosed today as a result of the autopsy performed at the New Haven hospital and reported to Coroner James J. Corrigan.

The disease, it was announced, was diagnosed as soon as the boy reached the hospital, but treatment was unsuccessful and he survived only two days.

The autopsy failed to disclose effects of any bruise or blow aimed at the head. There was no concussion of the brain nor a fracture of the skull. Ulrich was hurt in one of the rounds of a bout in which he won the lightweight championship of the city in the New Haven arena last Thursday night.

Levinsky Beats Jack Dempsey Before 22,000

the last round. Dempsey bobbed up and down and dodged a lot of them. He took some of them. But Dempsey was smiling out of his scowl when it ended, smiling as if he was glad it was over. He listened to the cheers, as he made his way down the aisle toward his dressing room, as if he enjoyed it but would not get much pleasure out of many more such encounters.

What about the Kingfish? He didn't do the dive which a lot of folks thought he might do. He fought gallantly against an old champion who is game. So the Kingfish is just about where he was before he met Dempsey.

Dempsey earned about $35,000 for his night's work. The Kingfish got a little more than $11,000, which was 15 per cent of the gross receipts.

Nichols Beats Jones.

The greatest fight of the night came after Levinsky had halted Dempsey in the middle of the comeback trail. George Nichols of Buffalo whipped the top heavy favorite, Billy Jones, a Negro from Philadelphia, in a semi-final battle leading up to the world's light heavyweight championship. Jones was down for a nine count in the second and fourth rounds and Nichols was knocked down in the fifth.

Other results:

Charlie Young stopped Marian Matusek [2].
Frank Battoglia beat Jack Moran [3].
Barney Ross beat Billy Gladstone [3].
Franta Nekolny beat Millio Millitti [6].

Distance Stars Give Badgers Edge on Meet

Four Big Ten track teams, Chicago, Northwestern, Ohio State, and Wisconsin, will compete at Patten gymnasium tomorrow night in the ninth annual quadrangular track and field meet.

Wisconsin, winner of last year's meet, will present a well balanced team with most of its strength centered in the distance runs in which George Wright, conference two mile record holder, and Larry Kirk, star miler, appear to have the upper hand. The Cardinals also should score heavily in the shot put and high jump. Shaw and Murphy, who can clear 6 feet, are favorites in the high jump, while Gnabah, Kabat, and Simmons seem to have an edge on the shot put field.

Jack Keller, who set a world indoor record for the 60 yard hurdles last week, will lead Ohio State's contingent. In last year's quadrangular Keller won both hurdle events and placed in the sprint. Fazekas, in the sprints, and Balck, in the hurdles, are the other leading Buckeye entries.

Northwestern has several strong entries in the high jump including Read, Olson, Mandelbaum, and Duggins, all of whom are capable of leaping 6 feet. The Purple also hopes to make a strong showing in the mile relay, which will replace the quarter-mile run.

John Brooks, sophomore sprinter, will be Chicago's strongest bidder for a first place. Roy Black and Ed Haydon are expected to pick up points for the Maroons in the hurdles.

ANGLERS SET UP RADIO, TUNE IN ON STATION B-A-S-S

Hear Berne, Bogota While Waiting for a Bite.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Shell Creek, Fla. Feb. 18.—Radio just about stole the show from the Florida black bass this afternoon when we were cruising on this beautiful stream trying to connect with a few fish.

We hauled out the bait casting rods and the tackle box and, in company with Paul H. Davis of Chicago, we put in well up Shell creek, which joins the Peace river, not far from Punta Gorda. Davis, a licensed low wave radio operator, who goes on the ether from his Kenilworth home, brought along a small portable receiving set

How to Enjoy Fishing.

To a mere fisherman unacquainted with the intricacies and mysteries of radio what happened today on Shell creek was an eye opener. Along about 11:20 a. m., at a time when, because of a high tide in Shell creek, the bass fishing was very much off normal, Davis hauled out the receiving set and proceeded to set it up in our flat bottomed boat.

Then with his ear phones around his head, Davis began to log stations as I continued to shoot small lures around the palm tree snags and other spots for bass. In forty minutes this moving fish boat receiving station picked up Berne, Switzerland; Bogota, South America, and several points in Tennessee, New Jersey, California, Illinois, North Carolina, and Florida.

Eat Lunch in Tango Time.

During the noon hour when we were eating lunch we listened to a South American band playing tangoes and other Spanish music. The only station that we didn't really pick up clearly until later afternoon was the BASS low wave station, because for several hours the large mouth bass apparently had no power to tune in on our lures.

OLD MAN RIVER LEFT GROGGY BY DRAINAGE ORGY

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Old man Mississippi, racketeered for decades by the drainage "orgy" staged by governmental easy spenders, had a cold towel tied around his head today.

The 45 technical engineers present at the national drainage, conservation, and flood congress—the machinery and concrete men, the steam shovel and pump makers who used to run the attendance up to 500 being kept at home by the depression—came out for conservation of wild life. The congress turned some of the old theory upside down. Its resolutions in part seek to undo some of the things which have been done in the flood and reclamation racket.

So much reclaimed land along the watercourses has been abandoned for tax delinquencies and so much of it, once the water was pumped off, was found no good for farming purposes anyhow, that the congress now urges the governors and legislatures of states within the Mississippi drainage area to create state forests from suitable parts of this land. It's worth more for black bass lakes and wild fowls sanctuaries than for cornfields, and the discovery was made after it cost $35 to $100 an acre to get the water off.

Uncle Sam Asked to Pay.

The modernist technique of putting the water back on land from which it was pumped off to the profit of promoters and machinery men, however, retains one fundamental aspect of the old practice: Uncle Sam, of course, is to be given a chance to call for the check and fork out. The congress, thumbing over a stack of bills now pending in congress, placed its official O. K. on four. One of them is for the creation of a separate department of public works, meaning an addition to the bureaucracy at Washington, and maybe the erection of another marble palace on Pennsylvania avenue.

Glenn-Smith Bill Indorsed.

The Glenn-Smith bill for a revolving fund of $100,000,000 for refinancing the indebtedness of distressed drainage and irrigation districts, was indorsed, after some of the engineers had declared in the corridors outside that they opposed it as a "chiseling bill."

One typical summary lists eight million acres in drainage districts, about half of it in cultivation. The assessed valuation is $309,000,000, and the number of land owners is 122,000. The taxes this year are $18,000,000, and there are about $120,000,000 bonds outstanding and $44,000,000 of mortgages. The proposed revolving fund is to help the owners by refinancing at a lower interest charge.

It is to apply only to districts where the land is good enough to pay off its bond burden.

Skeptics Still Skeptical.

Taking in drainage enterprises not along the water courses of the Mississippi valley, the 1930 census shows 84 million acres in these projects with an invested capital of $682,500,000.

A theory that the crops grown on the 24 federal irrigation projects have no appreciable effect on crop overproduction, was advanced by one of the three lecturers sent out at government expense from Washington. He was Porter W. Dent, who is assistant commissioner of the bureau of reclamation. Skeptics, however, renewed their skepticism when Mr. Dent said in one year projects shipped out 112,000 carloads of crops valued at $158,000,000.

Attention was called by Tom Wallace, Louisville editor, to areas which are vastly more valuable in their wild state than if reclaimed for farm land. Some of the talent dwelt upon the drainage and levee racket along the Illinois river, which was going at its crest from 1904 to 1914.

It spoiled the bass fishing and spoiled vast areas of wild fowl marshes, and helped to make floods by reducing the back water areas. After the 1927 flood, the state appropriated a million and a half dollars to repair the levees on the reclaimed land, and two years later appropriated another million. The federal government is now paying two dollars to one and the engineers estimate $4,500,000 has been appropriated as state and federal aid for the levee relief.

New Law Bars Short Wave Radio Sets in Private Cars

Owners of private automobiles in Illinois can no longer have short wave radio sets in their cars to enable them to receive police calls, State Representative Richard J. Lyons of Mundelein announced yesterday. Lyons is the author of the law passed at the last regular session of the legislature to set up a state-wide police broadcasting system. He said that although it is not generally known the law provides that motorists who use the short wave sets in their cars are liable to a fine of $1,000 or six months in jail or both.

STROKE FATAL TO FRIEDRICH, ONCE KING OF SAXONY

Deposed in Bloodless Revolution, 1918.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Friedrich August III., former king of Saxony, lies dead in his Sybillenort castle in Silesia. He was 66 years old, being born May 25, 1865, at Dresden. Death came at 10:15 p. m.

This morning a man servant found him unconscious in bed. Prof. Ercklentz was summoned from Breslau, disclosed a brain hemorrhage, and established that an apoplectic stroke had affected both sides. Members of the family were informed at once, including the former Saxon crown prince, who entered the church and now is known as Father George.

Accepted Downfall Lightly.

The former king always was a popular figure in Saxony, even with his political opponents. When called upon to resign the crown, he responded, "Very well. Carry on your dirty work yourselves." Saxons delight in recalling how cheering crowds surrounded the ex-king's motor car in the streets of Dresden after his dethronement. The king stood up, gazed calmly around, and exclaimed, "You're a darned fine lot of republicans."

Dethronement occurred in the bloodless November revolution of 1918, and afterward he retired to Sybillenort castle, one of the finest in all Germany, a castle with 400 rooms and 30,000 acres of parklands.

At the bedside when the former king died were the former Crown Prince George, the third eldest, Prince Ernst Heinrich, and his sister, Princess Mathilde. He was father of six children, the second eldest son being Frederick Christian. Two daughters were married to scions of the house of Hohenzollern and a third to an Austrian archduke. A sister, Maria Josepha, was mother of the last Austrian emperor, Charles.

Popular with Subjects.

King Friedrich was a popular ruler and was little active or in sympathy with the world war. His life at Sybillenort and at Moritzburg castle on the outskirts of Dresden was chiefly concerned with hunting. He had huge collections of hunting trophies at both estates.

His single marital venture ended unhappily. At the age of 26 he was wed to Archduchess Louise of Austria Tuscany at Vienna. After bearing three sons and two daughters, she eloped with the French tutor of her children. A third daughter was born only a few months after the elopement. The dynasty of Saxony has been Roman Catholic since 1697.

$2,000 LEFT BY LAWLER, FORMER CANAL TRUSTEE

The late John K. Lawler, former sanitary district trustee, who was indicted with other members of the board on charges of conspiracy during the "whoopee" days, had only $2,000 when he died on Jan. 17. This was disclosed yesterday when the will disposing of his estate was admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. All the property was left to the widow, Mrs. Addie Billings Lawlor, 303 South Irving avenue. Lawlor was 57 years old when he died, during the progress of the sanitary district graft conspiracy trial.

STATE PAYS FOR FARM GROUP'S WIT AND WISDOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mount Vernon, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—Eight hundred southern Illinois farmers who still find time in winter to enjoy an old time chatauqua meeting, especially if it is free, will end a three day annual convention of the Illinois Farmers Institute here tomorrow by adopting a set of resolutions which it has no power to support beyond their being printed and broadcast by state funds.

First farm organization of its kind ever started in the state, a coterie of its supporters still refuse to admit that it has been displaced by voluntary farm groups or by the University of Illinois farm extension work, also using state funds to teach farmers better practices. Each year the farmers' institute continues to use up the price of four good Illinois farms to send the same group of speakers into the byways of the state to entertain and instruct farm families.

The present biennial appropriation for this work provides $74,260 for officers, office help, expense money and speaking talent, and an additional $30,000 for printing the complete record of the Institute's annual meeting, and by complete record is meant every word uttered in the three day meeting.

Today's program took place in the Methodist church at Mount Vernon, where Prof. Sleeter Bull of the State university carved up half a hog carcass in the church pulpit to show modern methods of home butchering, his remarks being taken verbatum for the next printed record at state expense.

TWO JUGO-SLAV WARTIME LEADERS DIE ON SAME DAY

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Two commanders of army divisions for what is now Jugo-Slavia in the world war died today.

Gen. Michailo Rachitch, former Serbian minister of war, died in Belgrade at the age of 74. Gen Civanovic, who was 63 years old, died from a heart attack on a train while on the way to Yagotina.

Gen. Rachitch, at one time director of the Serbian Military academy, also saw service in the Turko-Serbian war and was a member of the Serbian diplomatic mission to the United States in 1917. Gen. Civanovic successfully commanded a division of Jugo-Slav legionary troops on the Saloniki front during the world war.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 18.—[Special.]—America is hungry to buy things—neckties, houses, shoes, automobiles, rugs, radios. America has the money, more reserve funds than ever before, as shown by statistics on savings accounts.

But, according to Alvin Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the "fear of displaying newness" prevents the public from buying. Once this fear is overcome the public will return to the markets, he believes, with the avid appetite of a drinker falling off the water wagon. He was interviewed this afternoon in his office as president of the Packard Motor Car company.

"There is a general reluctance to appear in a new overcoat or a new suit or a new automobile," he said. "The employer who has had to reduce salaries or cut his office staff is afraid he might be flaunting his comparative wealth."

World Afraid of Affluence.

"The employé, possibly apprehensive of a wage reduction, is afraid he might be displaying an affluence out of keeping with popular parsimony. The employer wants to buy a new car. So does the employé. Their three or five year old machines are uneconomical, unsafe, unsightly and unsatisfactory as compared with the vastly improved 1932 cars.

"The only encouragement they need is an assurance that their purchase of new automobiles will not be misunderstood by their business and social associates.

"The public must be educated to the fact that normal buying is patriotic, that skimping contributes to the longevity of the depression, that the spending of a dollar is as charitable an act as a donation to an unemployment relief fund."

$235 Spent Means Year's Work.

A man driving down the street in a new automobile, he said, with research data in his hands, has made a material contribution to the relief of unemployment in America. A million more cars sold in 1932 would give jobs to 160,000 workmen. It has been found by taking as little as $235 out of a sock or safety deposit box and putting this money in circulation you are furnishing steady employment to some man or woman for a year.

The money will change hands seventeen times during a year. With each transfer some one is receiving some material thing in return for labor. In buying a new car you are paying wages to mechanics, miners, cotton pickers, metal workers, painters, and so forth. They, in turn, are buying groceries, clothing, newspapers, tooth paste, and so forth. Men are taken out of bread lines and put back to work.

HONOLULU, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Princess Kalanianaole, last of the line of the greatest Hawaiian family and widow of a former delegate to congress, was so ill today that doctors held little hope for her recovery.

She is the last direct descendant of Kamehameha I., the chieftain whose brilliant reign in the eighteenth century marked the beginning of the transition from barbarism to civilization and drew the islands together as one kingdom.

The princess is known as Mrs. J. Frank Woods. Woods, a capitalist and rancher of the islands, is dead. The princess married him after the death of her first husband ten years ago.

With her husband, Prince Johan Kuhio Kalanianaole, she was well known in Washington, D. C., where he served as Hawaii's delegate to congress from 1902 until his death twenty years later.

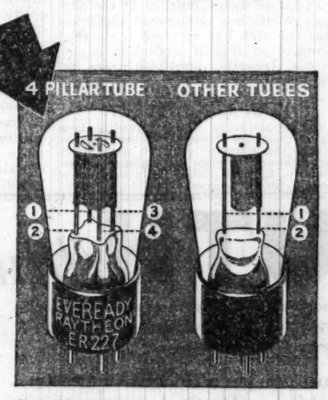
NATURALLY

YOU CAN'T GET GOOD RECEPTION WITHOUT

ACCURATE TUBES



Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation the fragile parts cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position. All other tubes have only a two-pillar foundation. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps and vibration often impair their vital accuracy.

WHEN radio tubes leave the factory, they are adjusted to give faithful reception. But they all receive jolts and bumps in shipment, they get knocked when they are handled and installed, and they are constantly shaken in usage by the heavy vibration from dynamic speakers. Unless a tube is strong, it may not stay accurate . . . then its power and tone are sure to suffer.

EVEREADY RAYTHEON 4-PILLAR TUBES have rigid, rugged strength to safeguard their vital accuracy. They have four sturdy pillars to anchor the sensitive elements in place . . . one at each corner of a square. Ordinary tubes have only two supports, and can be jolted out of alignment.

Your dealer can demonstrate the superiority of 4-pillar tubes resulting from this exclusive feature. Compare them tube for tube with others, and the difference is amazing. But to realize what an enormous improvement they can make in a radio, install a complete set of 4-pillar tubes . . . then listen!

Eveready Raytheon Tubes are Quick Heaters. Don't be fooled by tubes of the old, slow-heater type with which the market is flooded. A modern tube should heat up in 10 seconds or less. Time it yourself!

BRITISH MONEY RATE REDUCED TO 5 PER CENT

Seen Forerunner of World Cuts.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The Bank of England yesterday reduced its rediscount rate from 6 to 5 per cent. It was the most extreme change made in 18 years, or since just before England declared war on Germany. It also was the first change in rates since Sept. 20, which coincided with suspension of the gold standard by England.

Entirely aside from the effect of this action on English finance and trade, the move was hailed in American securities markets, finance and business as indicating easing money rates throughout the world. It served to revive the rumor, prevalent in this country for several weeks, that the New York federal reserve bank soon will reduce its rediscount rate and that other reserve banks will follow. However, the New York institution yesterday made no change in its 3½ per cent rate.

England in Difficulty.

It is no secret that in times past the Bank of England and the federal reserve board, particularly when the dominance of the New York Reserve bank's officers was strong, have worked together in establishing money rates and shifting gold and credits. At the present time, England is in greater financial straits and a more severe depression than the United States. It is not illogical to suppose that the desire of English financiers and industrialists to take measures to revive trade is as keen as that of our own leaders. Therefore, the English move may have been arranged to coincide with the various efforts being tried out by President Hoover and congress to make credit easier and in greater volume as a stimulus.

Whenever the Bank of England heretofore has changed its rate it has been customary to move it up or down by one-half of 1 per cent. Therefore, the present relatively sharp reduction came as a surprise. However, it was hailed with enthusiasm in the London securities market, according to THE TRIBUNE staff correspondent in London.

Cheered in London.

"Brokers, messengers, and dealers knocked each other about in the scramble around the offices as a cheer went up greeting reception of the news," his dispatch says. "The move was taken in financial quarters as a gesture of the confidence that banks and directors have in the financial situation and there was a quick response by government securities jumping up from one to one and a half points.

"The rate was boosted from 4½ to 6 per cent last September, after climbing by two increases from 2½ per cent, where it stood last May.

"Rates also were reduced by Sweden and Norway, which followed the pound sterling off the gold standard. Their change, however, is only from 6 to 5½ per cent, effective tomorrow."

Hoarding on Decline.

Additional cheer was afforded when the weekly statement of the federal reserves system was made public last night. While it showed little expansion in credit, it did hold indication that the campaign against hoarding is making progress.

Total money in circulation in the United States receded $17,000,000 in the last week, and as only about a third of the recession was in federal reserve notes, the rest of the decrease was in other forms of money backed more largely by gold. Money now totals $5,609,000,000. The monetary gold stock of the country declined $34,000,000 as the result of foreign withdrawals by foreign banks, chiefly the Bank of France, but it still aggregates $4,369,000,000.

Federal reserve note circulation declined $5,013,000, while the reserve banks' gold reserves receded $23,632,000. But these gold reserves still total $2,943,586,000, where note circulation is $2,656,941,000. As to the volume of federal reserve credit, borrowings of the member banks expanded $26,346,000 to a total of $845,781,000, but this expansion was largely offset by the reserve banks selling $23,009,000 of bankers' acceptances. Total reserves declined $17,951,000 and the ratio of reserves to liabilities eased to 67.4 per cent, compared with 67.6 per cent last week.

Brokers' Loans Increase.

As the result of the upturn in the securities markets, brokers' loans have increased for the first time in many weeks. According to the reserve board, such loans on Wednesday totaled $499,000,000, an increase of $13,000,000 in the last week. However, this small increase in comparison with the sharp advance in securities price indicates that much of the market appreciation was the result of short covering.

Compared with a year ago, however, brokers' loans are still small. The total a year ago was $1,772,000,000 and so the decline has been $1,273,000,000. In the last week the New York banks increased their own loans by $17,000,000, but interior banks withdrew $4,000,000.

Harvester Co. Pays Dividend of 45 Cents

Directors of the International Harvester company yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share on the common stock, placing the issue on a $1.80 a share annual basis, compared with $2.50 paid previously.

Alexander Legge, president, said: "The board has adopted a rate of dividend which it expects to maintain during the year 1932 unless contingencies occur which cannot be anticipated."

Laclede Gas and Light company declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the common, placing the stock on a $6 annual basis, against $8 previously.

Pays Special Dividend.

M. H. Fishman, Inc., 5 cents to $1 stores, declared a special dividend of 20 cents on the common, on which no dividends had been paid heretofore. M. H. Fishman, president, stated that unsettled conditions did not justify directors in placing the common on a regular dividend basis, but the special dividend was justified by the satisfactory results of operations during 1931.

Directors of the Quebec Power company decided to defer action on the common dividend usually payable on April 15. On Jan. 15 last, quarterly dividend of 50 cents was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $2.50 annual basis.

Directors of Maine Central railroad omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share due on the preferred stock at this time. The last dividend on the common stock was 75 cents a share in July oflast year. The preferred dividends are cumulative.

Pays Usual Extra.

Engineers Public Service company declared a dividend of 35 cents on the common. In the two previous quarters the company paid dividends of 40 cents each.

The Chesebrough Manufacturing company declared the usual extra dividend of 50 cents a share and the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share.

The Texas Gulf Sulphur company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents, placing the stock on a $2 annual basis, against $3 previously.

ELLIOTT FISHER QUARTER INCOME IN SHARP GAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 18.—A sharp increase in fourth quarter net earnings, which were $405,349, equivalent to 53 cents a common share outstanding after preferred dividends, was reported today by Underwood-Elliott-Fisher company. Coincidentally, this statement accompanied the annual report which showed net earnings for the year of $1,401,061 after all charges and federal tax, equivalent, after deduction of preferred dividends, to $1.79 a share on 674,648 no par common shares outstanding in the hands of the public.

This compares with net earnings of $4,011,578 for the previous year, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $5.56 a share on 685,648 common shares then outstanding. Earnings in the fourth quarter of 1931 compare with net loss of $103,753 in the third quarter and net income of $1,205,789, or $1.69 a share in the fourth quarter of 1930.

Cash amounted on Dec. 31 to $4,414,754, after payment of $3,183,060 in dividends during 1931, and compared with cash of $5,944,681 a year previous. The company has no bank loans or bonds outstanding. Inventory of $6,616,057 showed a decrease of $562,110 during the year despite the introduction of ten new models in that period. Net current assets were $12,921,980, the ratio of current assets to current liabilities exceeding 15 to 1.

Print Cloth Mills Seek to Stabilize Employment

New York, Feb. 18.—(AP)—More than 90 per cent of the print cloth mills have notified their selling agents that they will carry out recommendations designed to avoid overproduction and to promote better stabilization of employment. This was announced here today by George Walcott, chairman of an agents' committee. The recommendations resulted from a recent meeting at Spartansburg, S. C., of selling agents and mill executives.

Effective March 1, production will not exceed a rate of 90 per cent on 50 hours a week for day running mills. Rates of 80 per cent for mills on a 55 hour day and 50 hour night schedule weekly, and 75 per cent for mills running more than 105 hours a week have been agreed on.

U. S. PROTESTS RUMANIAN TAX ON YANKEE AUTOS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Feb. 18.—Protests are being made by the American legation in Bucharest against the preferential treatment granted French automobiles in the new Franco-Rumanian trade convention. By virtue of this agreement a French automobile will pay in Rumanian import duty of 26,750 lei [$167], while an American car of the same class will pay 35,500 lei [$222].

In order to realize the adverse effect which the present preferential import tax will have on American automobile sales in Rumania, it must be pointed out that of a total of 1,300 passenger cars sold in Rumania during 1931, 1,100 were of American origin.

Since the United States and Rumania have recently renewed their "most favored nation trade" agreement, the preferential clause introduced in the new Franco-Rumanian convention violates the above agreement. It is practically certain that the protests of the American legation in Bucharest will result in the application of the reduced import duty to automobiles originating not only in France but also in such countries as have "most favored nation" agreements with Rumania.

On the other hand, there are certain nonpreferential import tax reductions in the Franco-Rumania trade agreement which are also applicable to American products and which will facilitate their sale in Rumania. Tanned leathers, woolen yarns, all types of silk yarns and silk goods, automobile tires and tubes, certain types of machinery, including refrigerating machinery, and cosmetics, will benefit from the new import tax reductions.

HOLDS CONSOLIDATION WOULD SAVE ROADS $500,000,000 A YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 18.—Dr. Edward S. Mead, professor of corporation finance at the Wharton school of the University of Pennsylvania, speaking at the Wharton Alumni Institute of Business today, asserted that consolidation of American railroads would effect a saving of not less than $500,000,000 a year.

Dr. Mead asserted that the railroad structure had been built on the assumption it was a transportation monopoly. But in the face of the automobile truck, waterway, airline, and pipe line competition the railroads are not a monopoly, he said.

He held that fostering of railroad competition has probably been made obsolete by other transportation industries.

Among savings listed in Dr. Grodinsky's research with some degree of accuracy, which would total $284,000,000, were: $50,000,000 through abandonment of small roads with light traffic volume, $170,000,000 through abandonment of 23,000 miles of road maintained by large system branches for competitive reasons, $5,000,000 through elimination of leases on 40,000 miles, passing the title of the leased roads directly to a regionally consolidated system: $14,000,000 through assignment of 55,000 miles of small roads to large roads, eliminating separate corporate structures.

Westvaco Chlorine Products.

Please give me a line on Westvaco Chlorine Products corporation. Thank you in advance for this information. —M. B.

The principal products of Westvaco Chlorine Products corporation, a subsidiary of United Chemicals, Inc., are chlorine and caustic soda, most of which is sold under contract to a subsidiary of Union Carbide and Carbon corporation. Under the terms of this contract, which expires in 1937, Union Carbide and Carbon corporation pays an amount at least equal to the interest and sinking fund requirements of Westvaco's funded debt. Sinking fund requirements are sufficient to retire the issue at maturity in 1937.

The company also makes chemicals used in the manufacture of drugs, rayons and fire extinguishing products.

Both sales and net income increased steadily from 1925, reaching their peak in 1929, but declined in the last two years. Sales for 1931 were $4,017,000, against $5,117,000 for 1930, $5,944,000 for 1929, $5,216,000 for 1928 and $3,598,000 for 1927.

Net income for 1931 was $665,000, which was 4.33 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to $1.76 per common share, against $720,000 which was 4.69 times preferred dividend requirements and equal to $2.52 per common share on a smaller number of shares, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $1,127,000, or $4.32 per common share. Net income for 1928 was $846,000, against $328,000 for 1927.

On Jan. 2, 1932, current assets were $1,341,000 and current liabilities were $137,000. Cash alone was $177,000. There were no notes payable. Working capital was $1,204,000, against $1,110,000 the year before.

Bonded debt was $1,615,500. There were outstanding 21,946 shares of preferred [par $100] and 284,962 shares of no par common. The common is on an annual $1.60 dividend basis.

Carolina Power and Light.

I would very much appreciate some information on Carolina Power and Light company 5 per cent bonds due in 1956.—H. C.

Carolina Power and Light company is controlled by National Power and Light company. It supplies electricity to 231 communities in North Carolina and South Carolina. It also supplies Raleigh and Asheville, N. C., with transportation.

Gross revenues for the twelve months to Nov. 30, 1931, were $9,666,000, and fixed charges were earned 1.60 times. For the preceding twelve months gross revenues were $8,985,000, and fixed charges were earned 2.00 times.

Fixed charges were earned 1.84 times in 1930, 2.07 times in 1929, 2.17 times in 1928 and 2.64 times in 1927.

The $38,000,000 first 5s, due 1956, are secured by a first mortgage on substantially all assets of the company, subject to a $7,500,000 divisional lien.

Earnings of Atchison Road Are Smallest Since 1920

The net earnings of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railway last year were the smallest since 1920, according to the preliminary statement issued yesterday, which indicated that surplus was drawn on to the extent of approximately $7,337,000 to continue payment of the $10 common dividend, which was reduced to $6 early this year.

Net profit of the road for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, amounted to $23,101,691 after all charges, including taxes. This is equal, after dividends on the 1,241,728 shares of $5 preferred stock, to $6.96 a share on the 2,427,060 shares of common. This is a decrease of 38 per cent from the net profit in the preceding year of $37,348,800, equal, after preferred dividends, to $12.86 a share on the common stock.

North Western Has Deficit.

This is the first time Atchison's earnings have been below dividend requirements in many years. In the period from 1921 to 1930, inclusive, net available for the common stock ranged from $12.42 to $23.42 a share, the latter a record when the net income amounted to $60,631,495 in 1926.

Chicago and North Western had a net deficit of $6,034,125 for 1931 after charges, against earnings of $4.27 a common share in 1930.

Net earnings of the Pennsylvania railroad in 1931 declined to the lowest level since 1920, according to the preliminary figures announced yesterday.

The net profit amounted to $19,941,499 after all charges, equal to $1.51 a share on the capital stock, as compared with $68,809,818 or $5.28 a share earned in the preceding year.

Dividends totaling $3.25 a share were paid last year, indicating a deficit after dividend payments of approximately $23,000,000.

Net Showe Big Decline.

For the year 1931 the net income is equal, after allowing for only the regular annual dividend requirements on the 6 per cent perferred, par $50, to 57c a share on 156,000 shares, par $50, of the ordinary stock. This compares with $12.01 a share on 224,207 combined shares of ordinary and preferred stocks. Both issues share alike after 6 per cent has been paid on both stocks.

Mobile and Ohio for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, announced a net loss of $2,002,504 after taxes and charges, against a net loss of $930,554 in 1930.

Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, reported a net loss of $587,549 after taxes and charges. This compares with a net income of $365,776 in 1930.

STEEL OUTPUT DECLINES; MILL CAPACITY 27 PCT.

Steel production has declined slightly this week, following several weeks of moderate expansion. Output of mills throughout the country now averages 27 per cent of capacity, compared with 28 per cent last week.

"Remedial measures now being taken at Washington have improved business sentiment," the Iron Age says, "but the steel industry has become reconciled to the probability that a sizable gain in orders and plant operations will be slow to materialize and may be deferred until the second quarter.

"No broadening of demands for steel has come from any of the important consuming channels beyond some rail tonnage. On the contrary, curtailment of purchasing by the automobile trade has thrown into bold relief the fact that most of the recent mild improvement came about mainly through the January stepping up of motor car manufacturing schedules."

It also is evident that slack conditions continue in other lines. Electric power output for the week ended Feb. 13 was 1,573,817,000 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 6.2 per cent from the corresponding week last year. In the preceding week output showed a decrease of 5.4 per cent from last year. The central industrial region registered a decrease of 9.7 per cent, Chicago district 8.5 per cent, and Atlantic seaboard 4.2 per cent.

INCOME OF 528 CONCERNS IN '31 IS 707 MILLION

Additional 1931 earnings statements received during the last week have raised the total of companies already having reported to 528, on which comparable 1930 data are available, says a current survey of the Standard Statistics company of New York, which follows in part:

"Aggregate net income of these companies in 1931 amounted to $707,433,000, a decline of 44.4 per cent from the $1,270,971,000 reported in the preceding year. Earnings of 444 industrial concerns totaled $400,508,000, a drop of 52.2 per cent; 53 utilities, earning an aggregate of $236,905,000, showed a decline of only 5 per cent, while the unfavorable position of the 31 reporting railroads was emphasized by the decrease of 62.2 per cent to $70,020,000.

"While it is noteworthy that a few relatively favorable returns, recently received, prevented a larger decline than the 45.3 per cent shown in the aggregate report up to two weeks ago, a number of units still to submit their statements are expected to show an unusually unsatisfactory earnings record. We anticipate, therefore, that final 1931 returns will reflect a decrease of close to 50 per cent."

Pacific Western Oil Co. Has Loss After Reserves

Pacific Western Oil company reports a net loss of $96,876 for 1931 after fixed charges and reserves of $2,183,637. Before reserves but after fixed charges earnings were $1,280,613 as compared with $4,308,392 in the preceding year.

Bright Spots in Business

The 1932 improvement budget of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad will involve expenditures of $5,500,000.

January shipments of the Chrysler corporation, it is reported, were between 11,000 and 12,000 cars and trucks, or approximately the same as in January last year.

The New York Central railroad is considering an application to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of about $7,000,000 to provide for the completion of certain projects in its west side improvement plan. Application may be made within a few days.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES GAIN ON LIGHT TRADING

Trading turned extremely dull yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange as prices moved within a narrow range. Final quotations were slightly above Wednesday's last prices. The volume of trading was reduced sharply to 41,000 shares as traders restricted their commitments.

The utility stocks, led by Commonwealth Edison, made moderate gains. The trading in Edison amounted to 550 shares and the final price of 110½ represented a gain of 1¾ points. Middle West Utilities was fractionally higher but less active than earlier in the week. Other classes of stocks followed the trend of the utilities. Not much interest, however, was shown in the motor accessory shares. Bendix was quiet and unchanged from its previous price.

The improvement scored was attributed in part to the reports that the New York exchange would shortly take further drastic steps to curb short selling.

New York, Feb. 18.—Another display of optimism, due in part to rumors of the plan to curb short selling announced after the close of the market, was staged on the New York Stock exchange in the late dealings today. Pivotal issues were pegged up 1 to 5 points on what appeared to be a concerted buying movement backed by bullish professionals. That the public did not take any big hand in it was sufficiently evidenced not only by the indifference of so-called secondary stocks of the list but by the turnover, which was the smallest since Feb. 10. LEASE MALLERS BUILDING STORE FOR $155,000

Billy Stone Shops Close 7 Year Lease.

BY AL CHASE.

Negotiations were concluded yesterday whereby the Billy Stone Shops, Inc., now in the Tower building, have leased the double store, 32x40, at 63-65 East Madison street, in the Mallers building, for a seven year term at a reported aggregate rental of approximately $155,000. In addition to the main floor store, the lessee has rented 1,500 square feet of space on the second floor reached by a private elevator.

The lessee, according to J. L. Jahannesen of the Mallers building office, who negotiated the transaction, will spend approximately $20,000 in remodeling and erecting a new store front. Alterations are expected to be completed by March 1st when the new tenant will move to the new location. The space just rented formerly was occupied by the Betty Wales Dress shop, which moved to 172 North Michigan avenue. The Billy Stone Shops, Inc., have stores at 643 Diversey parkway, 3137 Logan square and 4113 West Madison street.

$375,000 Woolworth Lease.

The F. W. Woolworth company has renewed its lease on the 50x125 store at 4749-51 Lincoln avenue for thirty years at a total rental of $375,000, it was disclosed yesterday at the county recorder's office. The lease, which starts May 1, 1932, calls for $12,000 annually for the first twenty years. The rental will be $13,500 annually for the balance of the term. The owners of the property are Emma Glatter-Neuman and Mary Edelstein.

The Woolworth company also has leased the 30x120 store at 6572-74 Sheridan road for a twenty year term beginning May 1, 1932, from the Sheridan-Albion building corporation, of which Pauline Kirschbaum is president and Helen Bomash is secretary. Remodeling of the premises for the new tenant is to start at once.

Fred Wittenberg bought the store and garage building at 6906-16 North Clark street from Leo L. Brunhild for a reported $50,000. The property is 100x175 and contains four stores and a repair garage accommodating twenty-five cars.

Details on Evanston Lease.

Details of the ninety-nine year lease of the southeast corner of Prairie avenue and Central street, Evanston, by Peter and Mary Randler to the Central Prairie Building corporation, of which Arthur J. Radliff is president and G. A. Dobish is secretary, were disclosed yesterday at the county recorder's office.

The lease is dated June 1, 1929, and calls for $5,000 annually for the first five years; then $6,000 for the next five, $7,000 for five, $8,000 for ten, and $9,000 annually for the balance of the term, 74 years. The lease provided for the erection of a business building, which has been done.

FRESH DISPLAY OF OPTIMISM BOOSTS STOCKS

Prospects of an early passage of the Glass-Steagall banking bill by the senate was made the excuse for the demonstration. The street got the impression from early Washington dispatches that the measure would go through in the late afternoon and be ready for the President's signature tomorrow. Of course it has been a foregone conclusion for a week or more that the bill would become a law, but the street is making it a business just now to look on the bright side of the picture and is letting nothing get by that will serve as a "reason" for advertising its confidence that the end of the long depression is at hand.

Cut in British Rate.

The reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate to 5 per cent from 6 per cent, followed by a cut in the rates of the Central banks of Norway and Sweden to 5½ per cent may have played some part in the market's action also.

Another subject of "prosperity" gossip going the rounds was a rumor —unconfirmed and decidedly "unofficial"—that the administration in Washington had laid down a policy that no more national banks are to be allowed to fail. Nobody pretended to have this report from any authoritative source, but in view of the measures being taken by the government in behalf of the country's overstrained financial institutions it had an engaging sound, and no one seemed to discourage its circulation.

Rally Starts Late.

The rally was late in getting under way. Its promoters spent the entire morning trying to make up their minds whether conditions were auspicious enough for the undertaking. Over night news of the omission of the Southern Pacific dividend for the third successive time had a dampening effect on speculative enthusiasm in the earlier dealings, causing many issues to sag below their previous closing levels. Southern Pacific cracked 3 points on the opening sale to a point approximating the extreme bear market low, but later made up part of the loss.

Some of the other issues of the group, including Union Pacific, were inclined to seek lower ground. Others, however, including Atchison and New York Central, showed a disposition to do better from the outset. Atchison had an earnings statement revealing a drop of some $18,000,000 from 1930, but it managed to register a gain of nearly 2 points on the day in spite of the handicap.

American Telephone swiftly made up most of what it had lost yesterday, advancing 5½ net. Southern Pacific reduced its break to 5½. U. S. Steel struck out for 50 but got only to 49½ where it was 2½ higher. American Can, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Case, Westinghouse, and Beechnut advanced 2 to 3.

Tobacco Stocks Gain.

Tobacco stocks did their bit in turning the course of operations upward, being spurred by popular anticipations of a much more favorable showing by the figures on cigaret sales for January than had been generally expected a week or so back. Usually well informed sources were predicting a drop of only 5 per cent or less from the figures for the first month of last year, a showing which Wall street would be able to interprete bullishly in view of the pessimistic talk lately going the rounds on this score. American Tobacco B and Liggett & Myers each went ahead more than a point.

Some of the mining shares were prominent, Alaska Juneau for example. The stock shoved along for a point or so, but was not able to maintain all of its early gains. International Silver fell about 3 points on adverse dividend action, but recovered most of its loss before the close.

Declines of 1 to 3 points occurred n the preferred issues of United States Steel, Willys Overland, Virginia Carolina Chemical, Ward Baking, General Motors, Baltimore and Ohio, and Electric Power and Light.

Texas Gulf Sulphur dropped about a point on reduction of dividend. Utilities climbed 1 to 2 points in the afternoon recovery movement, and New York traction stocks were given another fling.

APPEALS JUDGE ASSAILS DEALS IN GRAIN FUTURES

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 18.—(AP)—A denunciation of dealings in grain futures is contained in a dissenting opinion of Judge William S. Kenyon of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals which today held that dealing in futures between a brokerage house and its customers is not gambling.

Judge Arch K. Gardner and Judge Arba S. Vanvalkenburgh, in a majority opinion reversing the finding of Judge Albert L. Reeves of Kansas City, point out that the United States Supreme court has held that such dealings are legitimate.

They held the case in litigation, a suit by the Uhlmann Grain company of Chicago against five Carrollton, Mo., customers to collect advances and commissions on future deals made in 1925, is no different from similar cases.

New York Exchange Votes Against Saturday Holiday

New York, Feb. 18.—Governors of the New York Stock exchange have decided that the exchange would not suspend business on Saturday, as requested in a petition submitted by some of the members who sought an extended Washington's birthday holiday.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed dull today with sales of only 3 contracts, or 450 barrels, all in the March position, which closed 2 points net lower. Other positions closed net unchanged to 1 point lower.

The easiness of lard was the principal factor, offsetting steadiness in other directions. Crude valley oil was 3¼ bid in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.75c, March 4.38c, May, 4.45c, July 4.57c, September 4.67c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract, with closing prices as follows: Spot, 3.75c; March, 4.30c; May and July, 4.40c.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 25,000; sheep, 10,000.

The slight increase in hog receipts yesterday encouraged the buying side to put in a little more pressure on top grades with the result that a saving of 5@10c was made in droves of 150@210 lb averages, the top going down 10c at $4.20. Light weights lost fully half of what it had taken three days to put on, but after the lower basis had been established all interests bought aggressively and closing trade was brisk and highest of the day.

Medium and weighty butchers were favored and bulk of 250@300 lb, averages went over the scales at fully steady to strong quotations. The general average of all classes was down 5c at $3.90, but is still 15c above the low daily average last week. While receipts at Chicago showed an increase, all other leading centers reported light supplies. The total at the eleven leading markets for the first four days of this week at 410,000 shows a decrease of 78,000 head compared with a week ago and is 51,000 smaller than a year ago.

May Hogs at $5.15.

Contracts for two carloads of May light hogs sold at $5.15 on the futures trade yesterday. Several other bids of $5.00 were made for similar contracts before the close of trading. July offers were lowered to $6.00 and bids were made at $5.00. March offers were made at $5.00 and bids at $4.25.

Strength in the cattle market yesterday was not altogether a surprise to the trade. The consensus the last few days has been that prices are on firmer ground and a mild reaction is not unlikely despite the undependable outlet for all but the high dressing classes of steers. Continued light supplies brought buyers on the market for numbers yesterday and in-between grades shared in the tull strength, some of these coming up as much as 25c in value before the end of the session.

Light steers averaging 1,096 lbs sold to Armour at $8.25, the top price. Few other loads reached $8.00, while the bulk, consisting of fair to good grades sold at $5.00@7.35. Poorer classes, carrying a fair "kill" were listed as low as $4.25 and only inferior thin steers were quoted down to $3.00@3.50. Butcher stock held Wednesday's gains and continued fairly active. Several sales of light yearling heifers ranged up to $5.50@6.25, while better grades of beef cows sold at $3.75@4.50 and occasionally as high as $4.75. Calves scored an uneven advance.

Lambs React Again.

Another reaction sent the lamb market down 25@35c, wiping out Wednesday's gains. The trade this week has been the most erratic in recent months. Each day saw prices headed in a different direction. Abnormally light receipts Monday resulted in a 25@50c advance which was erased Tuesday when supplies ran large.

Wednesday's bulge carried the market up 25@40c and yesterday's increased receipts enabled buyers to rub out the gain again. Most top grades of slaughter lambs averaging 80@95 lbs sold at $6.50@6.60, with city butchers taking a few lots as high as $6.75. Matured stock was unchanged.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 25,000 hogs and 15,000 sheep, against 1,450 cattle, 22,285 hogs and 5,836 sheep the previous Friday and 1,454 cattle, 24,891 hogs and 13,146 sheep a year ago.

LIMTED BUYING BRINGS UPTURN IN WHEAT PRICES

Beer Rumors Give Trade Some Excitement.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculative sentiment, rather than the cash situation appears to dominate the action of the wheat market, according to grain traders. Rumors that some favorable news would come out of Washington which would have more or less effect on wheat prices, and the introduction of a bill by the wet bloc before congress to legalize 3.2 per cent beer led to scattered buying of futures by locals and commission houses and caused a higher range.

There was a small dip in the market early on rumors from Liverpool that China had offered 2 cargoes of Australian wheat for resale. There was persistent buying under 61c for May which gradually absorbed the surplus in the pit, and toward the last local shorts covered and caused an advance to 61⅝c, or within ⅝c of the best figure of the previous day. The close was about the top, with net gains of ⅞@1c, with March, 58⅝c; May, 61⅝c to 61¾c, and July, 62⅞c to 63c.

Rumors Rule Wheat Market.

There were numerous rumors current last week of developments at Washington which might change the supply and demand situation in wheat materially, but so far they have lacked confirmation. Even the rumor concerning President Hoover's position on prohibition has proved to be untrue, although press messages yesterday said he would accept a proposition for a nation-wide referendum on the 18th amendment if the Republican convention to be held in June thought such a plan advisable.

A good part of the buying of wheat futures of late is credited in trade gossip to local professionals, while the charcter of the news is such as to result in very erratic fluctuations, and sharp breaks have followed bulges due to a weakening in the technical position. However, some observers of pit operations claim that the market acts tight, and that the market passes from an overbought to an oversold condition very rapidly.

Expect Better Foreign Demand.

A somewhat better demand was reported for North American cash wheat, with France and Germany both said to have taken moderate amounts of hard winters and Manitobas, and it was claimed in Winnipeg messages that business was passing in durums. Total sales in all positions for the day were placd at 300,000 to 400,000 bu.

Liverpool wheat futures failed to follow the sharp downturn in Chicago late Wednesday and closed unchanged to ⅛c per bu lower, cheaper Argentine offerings being offset by a reduction in the Bank of England rediscount rate and a good continental demand. It would not surprise the trade if there were a reduction in the import duties into Germany and other countries in the near future. Winnipeg reported less hedging pressure than of late and closed ⅝@¾c higher, with May at 66⅛c in Canadian funds. Buenos Aires was up ⅝@¾c at the last with March at 45⅜c.

Corn Rallies with Wheat.

Corn eased fractionally early with wheat only to rally later with that grain and on local short covering and the finish was at net gains of ⅜@⅝c. March finished at 37c; May at 40½c, and July at 42⅝@47⅛c. Country offerings to arrive were fair, with 28,000 bu booked to arrive, while shipping sales were only 2,000 bu. According to some reports from the east there is less disposition on the part of Ohio and Indiana to sell cash grain at the present time.

Seeding of oats is under way in southeastern Kanas and is expected to make rapid progress with favorable weather. Futures held within narrow limits and closed unchanged to ¼c higher, with May and July at 25⅝c. Trade was largely of a local character.

Germany has bought an additional 2,720,000 bu Russian rye of late, according to cables from abroad and is selling the grain to mills in an effort to prevent an advance in bread prices. Little interest was hown in futures yesterday with the close ⅛@⅜c higer in sympathy with wheat. May finished at 46⅜c to 46¼c, and July at 48¼c.

COTTON UP SHARPLY

Free selling of cotton futures, variously credited in trade gossip to the farm board or the co-operatives, failed to check an advancing tendency, and the market yesterday sold at a new high on the current movement. Firmness in stocks and grain were a factor in bringing about the upturn. The finish was at the top with net gains of 12@18 points in Chicago and 11@14 points in other markets.

It is estimated that the co-operatives have sold 500,000 bales of cotton futures in New York and New Orleans since Feb. 1, and are said to have replaced the sales by purchases of the actual cotton in the south in order to fill contracts with bills. Spot were 15 points higher with New York 7.05c, New Orleans 6.85c, Houston 6.85c and Galveston 6.90c. According to official announcement 95 per cent of the print cloth mills will curtail production 20 per cent. Prices follow:

BUTTER FUTURES DECLINE

Butter futures dropped on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, heavy selling sending prices off ⅝@½c. Egg futures moved up ¼c. Potato futures declined 3@4c. Production and storage information prompted much of the selling in butter. The Cenralizers report showed production 7 per cent greater than last year and slightly greater than the previous week, while the four markets reported an inward storage movement. New selling was fairly heavy, liquidation also prevailing. Covering appeared as the market started down and kept the decline from going farther. Egg receipts again were sharply under last year, but interest in the futures continues decidedly light. Sales: Butter, 116 cars; eggs, 6 cars; potatoes, 20 cars. Prices follow:

PROVISIONS LOWER

Outside trade in provisions was limited, with sufficient scattered selling coming into the market toward the close to carry lard off 5@10c and bellies 2½@15c from the finish of the previous day. Expectations of a larger run of hogs next week if country roads remain frozen had some effect on the market. Hogs were steady to 10c lower, and while receipts in the west were somewhat smaller than a week ago they were about the same as last year. A good demand was reported for fresh pork loins with no accumulation of stocks. New York cleared 1,223,000 lbs lard for export. Prices follow:

for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Why pay more than
HOUSEHOLD'S
LOW RATE

Household loans, $50 to $300 to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.
